Introduction

The 2020 election reeked with fraud, manipulation, scandalous behavior, and aberrations carried out in a concerted, coordinated effort by a few leaders, electoral workers who joined in the effort, and a mainstream media willing to look the other way.

There was no fraud, they say.

Nothing to see here, they say.

Biden clearly won, they say.

It was the safest and most secure election ever, they say.

This book reveals the facts of all the things that were not part of a safe, secure, or fair election.

The sad thing is that the fraud impacted more than just the presidential election where Trump clearly won before the concerted effort to count ballots over and over again, illegal ballots, empty ballots filled out by machines, mail-in ballots without signatures, pristine ballots that never would have survived the U.S. mail in that condition. Trump should have won the presidential election. Surprised that he did not win?

John James should have won the U.S. senator election in Michigan. He was leading before the flood of illegal ballots and the illegal pushing out of legal observers at counting stations in Detroit. Surprised?

Kelly Loeffler should have won 50% of the vote for U.S. senator in Georgia, but she lost in a clearly illegal run-off election in 2021. Surprised?

Her fellow Georgia senator, David Perdue, should also have won with 50% of a legal vote in the 2020 election, but he lost in a clearly fraudulent run-off election in 2021. Surprised?

Nick Freitas should have won the U.S. representative election in Virginia's 7th district against Abigail Spanberger. He had a clear lead until more ballots were suddenly discovered on a flash drive. Most of the votes on that drive were for Spanberger. Surprised?

Sean Parnell should have easily won the U.S. representative election in Pennsylvania's 17th district against Conor Lamb. But the illegal shenanigans around mail-in voting allowed by the Democrat governor, the Democrat secretary of the commonwealth, and the Pennsylvania supreme court enabled Lamb to eke out a win. And, as it turned out, there were 60,000 more votes than voters in Lamb's district! Surprised?

How many other U.S. representative elections in 2020 were won illegally by the Democrats?

The truth is simple: The Republicans should be in control of the presidency, the senate, and the house of representatives after the 2020 general election—if it had been run fairly and openly.

The 2020 election was stolen, plain and simple.

The 2020 election was a coup of the first order.

An illegal coup was staged against the people of the United States during the 2020 general election.

Can we now stop calling this an election? By pretending this insurrection is a legitimate democratic process, we're playing into our enemy's hands, giving credence to the lie that a decrepit, corrupt, sickly old man, Joe Biden, has been elected president of the United States. This is not an election; it's a coup. — Peggy Ryan, columnist, American Thinker

Ignoring the Facts

The mainstream media are ignoring all the evidence, the affidavits, the irregularities, the impossibilities. Nothing to see hear. Move on.

Sadly, the mainstream media is calling Republican attempts to call for a fair accounting of the election as an immoral and corrupt power grab when what they are actually supporting is a real coup against the American people.

[The Republicans] are definitionally people who signed on to a desperate desire to subvert the will of the American people, to disenfranchise voters in Georgia, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and Michigan based on lies and conspiracy theories, putting an immoral and corrupt power grab above democracy.

— Jake Tapper, CNN talking head

The truth is that the mainstream media are the ones who are subverting the will of the American people. They are the same people who are working so hard to disenfranchise the voters of the 19 states that challenged the election in front of the U.S. Supreme Court. They are the ones who are supporting this coup against the American people, based on lies and conspiracy theories of their own.

The Democrats (and their partner leftists, BLM Marxists, and antifa terrorists) are celebrating the coup as well. In the streets. Without masks. Whooping it up and challenging anyone to question Biden's so-called victory—a victory called by the mainstream media.

And what the Democrats really want to do is to destroy the Republican Party and its supporters. Listen in to their proposal. It's not just one person asking for such a commission. It's many.

When this nightmare is over, we need a Truth and Reconciliation Commission. It would erase Trump's lies, comfort those who have been harmed by his hatefulness, and name every official, politician, executive, and media mogul whose greed and cowardice enabled this catastrophe. — Robert Reich, Democrat leader

The Big Tech people are celebrating their win as they continue to censor talk of election fraud and any other talk of aberrations, impossibilities, and hundreds of affidavits. I guess evidence doesn't matter in this case. Nor truth.

Google and YouTube, for example, announced that they were de-platforming any challenges to Biden's fraudulent victory. Again, truth doesn't matter in this case.

No one person should have as much power as Mark Zuckerberg, and no corporations should have the power that the tech companies have amassed. — Andrea Widburg, deputy editor, American Thinker

The Department of Justice, the FBI, and the rest of the DC swamp have remained silent (except when they are celebrating the illegitimate win). Will we ever see any true justice? Not likely. That's sad.

If you think our esteemed authorities will turn a blind eye to serious secession efforts the way they did to blatant violations of the Electors Clause and 14th Amendment in the Texas case, go ahead and try. But something tells me your effort won't get far before it's met with overwhelming opposition from the national government, including its courts. — Mark Landsbaum, columnist, American Thinker

The court jesters—State courts, district courts, courts of appeal, even the Supreme Court justices have joined in this coup by refusing to recognize any fraud, any real standing for legitimate suits, and even supporting laches as an excuse to ignore the illegitimacy of this electoral process.

This is a coup on all levels. An illegitimate coup. A sad coup. Will Americans stand up against it? Will the courts ever take a brave stance?

Just ask yourself: Who raised the issue of Court packing? We didn't. Why would the Democrats raise an issue that was hurting them? We would never bring it up; we never thought of packing the Court. They did. It was a systemic effort, that succeeded, to intimidate the U.S. Supreme Court. — Dick Morris, political commentator

Too many Republicans have surrendered to this coup as well. They are bowing down already to Joe Biden and the Democrats. They call it nonsense. They want to do away with any challenges to an illegitimate election. Move on. Nothing to see here. Let's keep the deep state in place. Let's keep the DC swamp in place. Let's keep our place in both.

But every American who cares about the rule of law should take comfort that the Supreme Court—including all three of President Trump's picks—closed the book on this nonsense. — Ben Sasse, U.S. senator

It is not nonsense. It is the most basic common sense to people who actually follow the truth. The book on the 2020 presidential election should never have been closed. The truth should have seen the light of day. It must still see that light! We have to ask more questions about this fraudulent election!

I don't know whether the Democrats stole the 2020 election, but I do know that they tried hard to steal it. — John Hinderaker, columnist, PowerLine

But the coup was against we the people. Not against Trump. Not against James. Not against Perdue. Not against any of those who lost as a result of the coup. The real losers were the American people.

We cannot let this happen again!

They didn't just steal the election from Donald Trump, they stole it from all of you. There was a fraud in their inducement of all things Biden in order to con you. They conned you and they conned America. They wanted to win no matter what. Win at all costs. You didn't matter. You never mattered because it was never about you. — Jeanine Pirro, host, Justice with Judge Pirro

And the people still have not been allowed to hear the evidence about the 2020 election. The mainstream media insists there is no evidence of fraud. The social media mafia refuses to let people share the evidence of fraud. The court jesters have refused to allow a legal hearing to judge the evidence of fraud.

Complete silence. Move on. Nothing to see here.

A robbery is not negated because you cannot catch the thief. ... And here's the even worse news: the depth of fraud was such that a coordinated effort is suggested. Yes, a conspiracy to steal the election.
— Malcolm Beifong

And few brave Republicans have called out the fraud and stood up to incredible fraud that took place this election. Too few to make a difference. Way too few Republicans are brave enough.

Facts have been kept from them. Not a single court decision has had a hearing yet. They haven't heard from a single witness. They haven't looked at a single tape. They haven't listened to a single recording. There are thousands of them. — Rudy Giuliani, former mayor of New York City

The entire world just witnessed the biggest crime completed in US history. — Mark Lutchman tweet

President Trump, we will always have your back because we will never forget how you put us FIRST! ... I did not watch the inauguration because I don't like watching crimes being committed. — Terrence K. Williams, actor and comedian, tweets

Pray

I believe one thing that everyone of good will should remember: Ultimately everything is in the hands of God.

So pray. Pray for today. Pray for tomorrow.

Please pray about this election, as God can fix anything.

Pray for the American people.

Pray that there be no more violence.

Pray that there be no more vandalism or theft.

Do your little bit of good where you are; those little bits of good together overwhelm the world. —
Desmond Tutu, South African bishop

A Transparent Fair Election?

With an election so close in counting votes, any little efforts, even seemingly insignificant efforts, to change votes, add votes, delete votes, or influence an election can make a huge difference in the outcome, especially with the close battleground states.

More than any election in memory, the 2020 presidential election will be memorable for all the irregularities: the mail-in ballots being sent to dead people, the vote dumps, the hidden counting that banned certified poll watchers, the electronic malfeasance, the manufactured votes, the deleted votes, the inner city manipulations in crucial states, and so much more.

There is no doubt that the 2020 election was a real coup to overthrow the votes of 75 million people and a legitimate U.S. president.

We are all witnesses to the greatest attempted crime against our republic and the rule of law in America's history. — Jared Peterson

We believe in the process, but this process has been tainted. And if you taint it for one party, you taint it for the other party. If you taint it for one American, then you taint it for all Americans. And we're not going to stand for this. — Vernon Jones, Georgia state representative

They have done it in every way imaginable, from having dead people vote in massive numbers to absolutely, fraudulently, creating ballots that exist only voting for Biden.

They also used an algorithm to calculate the votes they would need to flip, and they used computers to flip those votes from Trump to Biden. — Sidney Powell, attorney

The 2020 election was stolen because leftists were able to exploit the coronavirus pandemic to weaken, alter, and eliminate laws that were put in place over the course of decades to preserve the integrity of the ballot box.

But just as importantly, it was stolen because those same leftists had a thoroughly-crafted plan, and because they were rigorous in its implementation and ruthless in its execution. — Ken Blackwell, Family Research Council

Joe Biden's immaculate election—achieved in the dead of night under statistically impossible circumstances—will likely cause shockwaves across the American body politic that will have consequences of as yet unknown proportions. — John Steireich, author

Steireich's comments were made way before all the later election shenanigans, cowardice of the court jesters and state representatives, and media pressure to certify the election.

It's absolutely no surprise that Mexican President Andres Manuel Lopez-Obrador refused to recognize the results of the election here—all the things that happened here are the same things that happened to him when he had an election stolen from him in 2006. He knew. — Monica Showalter

Millions of Trump's voters—based on ... the massive number of statistical and numerical improbabilities that rise to the level of an impossibility—already are 100% convinced that Trump won decisively and that this was a coup attempt, not an election. — Jared Peterson

They had this all planned. They had the algorithms. They had the paper ballots waiting to be inserted if and when needed. And notably, President Trump's vote in the blue states went up enormously. That's when they had to stop the vote count. They had to go in and replace votes for Biden and take away Trump votes. — Sidney Powell, attorney

They were prepared, not only for the national election but also for the subsequent Georgia run-off elections. And they stole both of them. One thing is clear: We have to be ready for them next time. And we have to change the laws they changed to ensure they will not be able to steal future elections.

In the end, which is not far out, it all comes apart. It always does. Industrial scale fraud is not sustainable because lies that big just cannot be hidden. — Jay Valentine

Valentine is correct. This scale of electoral fraud cannot be sustained. It will be found out. Sadly, it did not come out until after the Harris-Biden administration was installed and started doing all their dirty deeds.

Massive undervoting. Completely abnormal proportion of "Biden-only" ballots. Yes, it's theoretically possible people hate Trump enough to only cast that single vote, but it only happened in great numbers in a handful of Democrat-controlled cities. — Maria Romanetti

The Democrat-controlled cities in the battleground states made all the difference. The fraud was rampant—and destructive of freedom and truth.

Many elected officials, politicians, judges, and national media commentators are insisting that we must trust the 2020 elections as long as no one can prove that the elections were rigged or a subject of a "wide-spread fraud" that affected their outcomes. According to these individuals, we must trust them that the elections were free, fair, and honest even if there is no verifiable and compelling evidence that they actually were.

Although some of them acknowledged that some cases of "minor" or "isolated" and, therefore, "insignificant" fraud did take place in 2020, they failed to notice that a large number of such "minor," "isolated," and otherwise "insignificant" instances of fraud add to a major, widespread, and significant fraud that could easily affect the results of the elections. — Mark Andrew Dwyer

Move on. Nothing to see here. Just a few minor glitches. Nothing at all. Move on. Move on.

This man was a winner—and when it came to the votes that were recorded for him, those showed a winner too.

Even assuming, as I do, that Democrats deleted or switched millions of Trump votes, Trump still gained 10 million more votes than he did in 2016, and substantially increased his votes from minority voters.

Meanwhile, we're being asked to believe that an incoherent man, mired in corruption, who refused to tell people what his policies would be, not only beat Trump but beat Obama's total in 2008! — Andrea Widburg, deputy editor, American Thinker

It really is hard to believe that Biden even got 50 million votes, much less 80 million votes.

It should be obvious to all Americans that the left orchestrated and pulled off the theft of the 2020 election. The plan had most likely been in the works for years, which is why Nancy Pelosi was so sure that "even if Trump won on Election Night, Biden would be inaugurated in January."

The fix has been in for a long time, which is why Biden could claim to have "built the most extensive vote fraud organization in history." — Patricia McCarthy

Skeptical of voter fraud in the 2020 election?

Here's your very extensive and very persuasive evidence: <https://thomisticthinker.com/skeptical-of-voter-fraud-in-2020-heres-your-evidence>.

How can anyone believe Joe Biden won this election? A corrupt, incoherent, doddering old fool who couldn't get 12 people to a rally, got over 80 million votes, including winning more black votes than Obama in 2008, even though Trump increased his share of black votes by 50%. Amazing, isn't it?

I will leave it to others to prove that the election was rigged. My case is simple: the court should require the election officials to show that they followed, not only the law, but the rules of fairness, to a degree that the public can trust. If they cannot, if they were sloppy or careless, then the election is irreversibly tainted with reasonable suspicion. —

Robert Arvey, columnist, American Thinker

Sadly, no court listened to the evidence. They rejected all appeals. The fix was in.

President Trump entertained 1.1 Million supporters at events from Labor Day till the election. Joe Biden entertained less than 2,000! Trump's events this year were even bigger than 2016 and he contracted COVID which kept him home for a couple weeks.

Trump absolutely crushed Biden in rallies—it was as if Biden knew he didn't need to campaign. President Trump had boat parades, car parades, horse parades, truck parades and more—these random events were not sanctioned by the campaign—they just happened. — Joe Hoft, editor, The Gateway Pundit

Biden won 15 million more votes than Obama in 2012 or 2008 (there is absolutely no way that Biden is or ever was more popular than Obama). Biden underperformed Hillary Clinton's 2016 totals in every county, except in the biggest cities in swing states! Biden lost almost every bellwether county to Trump. And Biden won despite Democrats losing in so many down-ballot races! Amazing, isn't it?

Trump Calls Into the PA State Senate Hearing as Senators Hear Stunning Accounts of Election Fraud.

Joe Biden went from stealing someone's wife, to stealing speeches, to stealing money, to stealing an election. He has really grown as a politician. — Michael Brace Moore, golf pro

Should we perhaps believe something more obvious, something that's staring us all right in the face? They cheated. — Simon de Hundehutte, columnist, American Thinker

Citing what they described as election law compromises, irregularities, and improprieties associated with mail-in balloting, pre-canvassing, and canvassing, 26 Pennsylvania lawmakers stated in a news release that issues raised about the election have “undermined our elector process and as a result we cannot accept certification of the results in statewide races.” If they stuck to their guns, Biden would have lost Pennsylvania. But they had to be braver than most politicians ever are.

There were public legislative hearings in Arizona, Pennsylvania, and Michigan. But they were never enough because the legislators never acted on any of the evidence.

This election stinks like high heaven. We had hope for brave legislators to make things right. We hoped and prayed. But bravery is all too rare these days.

Despite the glaring evidence of astronomical vote fraud, the local election officials who participated in the fraud or witnessed it have naturally been stubborn in their refusal to admit the cheating. The state judges before whom some of the lawsuits have come have likewise refused to admit there is cause for taking these incidents on....

If the SCOTUS declines to accept the vote fraud cases that will be presented to it, it may well be that the justices, too, fear the violent left. — Patricia McCarthy, columnist, American Thinker Sadly, even the Supreme Court justices were intimidated into ignoring the fraud. They feared the violent left.

Corruption at Every Level

In my years of experience in politics, I have never seen the amount of illegal voting like we have documented in Clark County, Nevada. It is a level of corruption I didn't think could happen in a modern, free country. — Matt Schlapp, chairman, American Conservative Union

Thousands of Illegal Votes

There are literally tens of thousands of illegal votes that were cast, counted, and included in the tabulations the Secretary of State is preparing to certify. The massive irregularities, mistakes, and potential fraud violate the Georgia Election Code, making it impossible to know with certainty the actual outcome of the presidential race in Georgia. — Ray Smith, attorney

This Is Not a Conspiracy Theory

To say out-loud that you find the results of the 2020 presidential election odd is to invite derision. You must be a crank or a conspiracy theorist. Mark me down as a crank, then. — Patrick Basham, director, Democracy Institute

This Is a Criminal Conspiracy

*You and I are witnesses to a crime; we are witnessing a criminal conspiracy to steal the American presidential election. What, in your opinion, is this crime's most astonishing feature? Is it how brazen it is? It is, after all, being done right out in the open, as if to rub our noses in what is being done to us. Is it the widespread corruption of our political process that has now been revealed, made too obvious to overlook by anyone any longer? — Robert Curry, author, *Reclaiming Common Sense

Major Problems with the Election

[Trump] should not concede. Everyone knows, instinctively everyone knows there are problems with this election. I mean you can look at the fact you know 75 million people. He increased his total by ten to 11 million.

We won 27 out of 27 toss-up states [U.S. representatives]. He increased his votes with Hispanic Americans and African-Americans. State legislatures that Republicans control—we kept all those plus increased those numbers.

You can just go down the line. He won 19 of the 20 bellwether counties. He won Ohio by eight, Florida by three, yet somehow he doesn't win?

So, we know we need to look at all this. ... Let's get to the bottom of this for the well-being of the country. — Jim Jordan, U.S. representative

What Does the Other Side Say?

Well, the election is legitimate and anyone who says the election was stolen is insane. There was no fraud. Nothing to see here. Move on.

In fact, no mention of election fraud is allowed on Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, Instagram, etc. The mainstream media are ignoring all evidence of fraud and electoral malfeasance. There was no fraud. Nothing to see here. Move on.

No Shortage of Witnesses

It now appears possible that Joe Biden will successfully steal the presidency from the voters. As ludicrous as that sounds, the reality is slowly beginning to sink in. There is no shortage of evidence; there is no lack of witnesses.

Worse yet, the consequences of the crime we are all witnessing will not be merely one team winning and the other losing. It may well be the end of the republic, and for those who are witnessing it, there is no hyperbole in that foreboding. — Robert Arvey, columnist, American Thinker

Credible Evidence of Election Fraud

We are looking at numerous credible allegations of election fraud, from late-night ballot dumps to mandated observers being excluded from watching ballot counts.

It was Pee Wee Herman in a boxing ring with Mike Tyson, with Pee Wee about to have his head knocked off. The arena lights suddenly went out and when they went on a minute later, Tyson is out cold with Pee Wee dancing in delight as the new champion.

How plausible would that be? Yet that's what happened on election night. — Brian C. Joondeph,

This Election Was Stolen

In my opinion, they stole it, they're thieves, and in my opinion, it is very, very obvious. No way that sick, lame, and lazy Joe Biden got more votes than any candidate in human history. Eighty million? That Joe Biden can't handle his own dog. ...

Colbert went down to Delaware to sit, yes, with Below Average Joe. This interview goes on forever, and I gotta tell ya, what comes through more than anything is that Joe is not up to the job. He is a very, very mediocre and damaged person—and his wife knows it. — Greg Kelly, host, Newsmax TV

Freedom Is on the Line

Mr. President @realDonaldTrump—we are with you in #Arizona. We are working every avenue to stop this coup & to stop our Republic from crumbling. Patriots are united. Those who are against us are exposing themselves. #Liberty & #freedom are on the line. #CrossTheRubicon — Kelli Ward, chairwoman, Republican Party of Arizona

No Protection

The institutions that are supposed to protect us all failed: The courts, the legislatures, Congress, the media, social media—they all failed us. In fact, they all seem to be in on the fraud. Not only in on the fraud, but active participants!

Lack of government action has made people more skeptical about the 2020 election. ...

Chris Krebs, the cyber guy, keeps saying it was the safest election ever.

But that's like the security guard at the hospital telling you how great the brain surgeon is. — Steve Hilton, host, The Next Revolution

The final conclusion of all the statements above is very simple:

We know the results are wrong. What we don't know is how bad wrong. — Mo Brooks, U.S. representative

The following chapters of this book reveal just a few of the ways that the Democrats and their allies in blue states, blue cities, mainstream media, social networks, the deep state, progressive judges, and possibly China stole the 2020 presidential election in the United States.

There is no question of fraud. It happened. Any reasonable person who actually looks at the evidence knows this was a coup. No doubt about it!

Anyone who denies that significant election fraud occurred in November is either dishonest or a fool. — Jon N. Hall, blogger, Ultracon Opinion

There seem to be a lot of dishonest people and a lot of fools hanging about. It's amazing what people will fall for. They are blind, willingly so. Just to get rid of Trump, anything to accomplish that.

Even the federal agency that should have had at least minimal influence in securing a fair election denies any problems with the 2020 election. That agency, the CyberSecurity & Infrastructure Security Agency of the Department of Homeland Security, proclaimed how safe and secure the election was:

Mis- and disinformation can undermine public confidence in the electoral process, as well as in our democracy. Elections are administered by state and local officials who implement numerous safeguards to protect the security of your vote pursuant to various state and federal laws and processes. — CyberSecurity & Infrastructure Security Agency, Department of Homeland Security

What undermines public confidence even more is a clearly illegal election with so many flaws that cry out to be corrected and the real winner declared. Otherwise, reasonable people will, indeed, have no confidence in such an electoral process.

The safeguards that should have protected the security of our votes were undermined by Democrat leaders at the federal, state, county, and city levels. It didn't help that there were also way too many fellow travelers among weasel Republicans.

Read the following chapters with an open mind (and with open eyes!). I believe you will discover what I have discovered: A fraudulent, illegal, and repulsive election.

Lack of Evidence? Really?

The Lack of Evidence! Really?

Over and over again, officials and media loudly proclaimed that no fraud occurred. Or, as they like to say, “We have seen no actual evidence of widespread voter fraud.”

What? Are their eyes closed? Can't they read? Can't they listen? It seems that the answers to these questions are No, No, and No.

Despite endless lawsuits and wild allegations from Washington, D.C. pundits, we have seen no actual evidence of widespread voter fraud, though we are investigating all credible reports. — Brad Raffensperger, Georgia secretary of state

Well, so let's look more closely at the state of Georgia, just to help Brad out since he has trouble seeing all the irregularities, anomalies, and other problems that occurred in the 2020 general election in Georgia. Let's look at the evidence!

I guess he hasn't seen the video of Georgia election officials scanning in votes after kicking out certified poll observers.

Or, perhaps he didn't notice the poll workers dragging out the hidden suitcase full of fraudulent ballots.

Or, perhaps he couldn't see the one lady rescanning the SAME ballots over and over again.

Or, maybe he didn't notice the number of dead people who voted in Georgia.

Or, maybe he's simply overlooked the number of affidavits on voting irregularities in Georgia.

Attached to the complaint are sworn affidavits from dozens of Georgia residents swearing under penalty of perjury to what they witnessed during the election: failure to process and secure the ballots, failure to verify the signatures on absentee ballots, the appearance of mysterious 'pristine' absentee ballots not received in official absentee ballot envelopes that were voted almost solely for Joe Biden, failure to allow poll watchers meaningful access to observe the election, among other violations of law. — Trump campaign statement

Or, maybe he didn't notice all those pristine ballots?

Or, maybe he didn't notice that in Georgia, thousands of new voter registrations provided illegal addresses as their home addresses.

Or, perhaps he's not counting the 20,311 absentee and early voters in Georgia who voted while registered as having moved out of state.

Or, maybe he doesn't find anything unusual about the fact that more than 46,000 people voted in the presidential election in Georgia but not in the senate race!

Or, perhaps he hasn't made this comparison: In 2016, Georgia had a rejection rate of faulty ballots—with no signature, no signature match, damaged ballots, etc.—of over 6%. In 2020, it was just 0.2%. Hmm?

He says that they are "investigating all credible reports." I wonder how hard they are investigating. I wonder if they've looked into any of the above irregularities. Have they even looked at the ones below?

Does he remember his own statements? In Georgia, the secretary of state announced that there were fewer than 25,000 votes left to count. A few hours later, he said there were around 55,000 to 60,000 absentee ballots still to count. Hmm? I guess he finds it hard to do standard math.

Does he remember his own suspect actions? An investigation by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution showed that Raffensperger's office weakened the computer system's defenses, disabling password protections on a key component that controls who is allowed to vote.

Does he remember his own illegal order? The compromised Secretary of State in charge of elections in Georgia ordered that the voting machines be wiped. Why? To hide the voting machine malfeasance? Or to hide his own mistakes and obfuscations?

The only reason the Georgia Secretary of State would order the voting machines to be WIPED is to destroy evidence. He is covering up his crimes. — Mike Coudrey tweet

Does he remember Zuckerberg's Safe Election Project? The Safe Elections Project gave $15 million to three counties that ultimately gave Biden the pre-recount win in Georgia. With the new rules, billionaires bought votes and elections. I know, this isn't fraud, but it is certainly something that should be investigated. Are we really willing to have idiot billionaires buy elections?

Does he even know that a recent poll revealed the following?

In Georgia, 15% of Biden's voters say they would have defected based on full information, taking 370,838 votes out of his column, and putting Trump comfortably ahead.

How does he account for the number of absentee ballots for Biden that lacked any folds?!? For the idiots out there, if a ballot has no folds, it could not have been mailed and, thus, could not be an absentee ballot! This isn't superstring theory or hard-core physics. It's plain common sense, by definition!

Does he notice anything at all? Glitches, anyone?

In Georgia, there were numerous glitches with voting machines where results would change. The most notable of these changes was a 20,000 vote surge for Biden and 1,000 vote decrease for Trump.

Did he notice any of the statistical anomalies?
Here's just one of those anomalies:

In Georgia, Biden overtook Trump with 89 percent of the votes counted. For the next 53 batches of votes counted, Biden led Trump by the same exact 50.05 to 49.95 percent margin in every single batch. It is particularly perplexing that all statistical anomalies and tabulation abnormalities were in Biden's favor.

Whether the cause was simple human error or nefarious activity, or a combination, clearly something peculiar happened. — Patrick Basham, director, Democracy Institute

Did he notice all of the other irregularities? This man is clearly blind, or an idiot, or both.

There are literally tens of thousands of illegal votes that were cast, counted, and included in the tabulations the Secretary of State is preparing to certify.

The massive irregularities, mistakes, and potential fraud violate the Georgia Election Code, making it impossible to know with certainty the actual outcome of the presidential race in Georgia. — Ray Smith, attorney

On December 17, 2020, Raffensperger finally announced plans to conduct a statewide signature-match review—but forbade that the count would have any impact on the 2020 election.

Now that the signature matching has been attacked again and again with no evidence, I feel we need to take steps to restore confidence in our elections. — Brad Raffensperger, Georgia secretary of state

Hmm? Again, attacks with no evidence? How can he expect to restore confidence in our elections when he ignores the evidence, over and over again?

When I was growing up in Minnesota, we had a saying for people like this. This man needs to be slapped silly, so he starts to make sense.

Note: I'm not advocating violence here. The slapping silly can be done gently just to wake the man up. Or, at the very least, to wake up his common sense! Or his honor.

And my initial instinct is, "Let me walk down and smack this guy on the head. What is he thinking?" — Barack Obama, former U.S. president

Well, surprise. Who would have guessed? Two weeks later Raffensperger reported that only two mismatched signatures were found among the more than 15,000 signatures audited. The audit involved state election investigators examining thousands of ballot envelopes and matching the signatures with those in public state records.

My question is simple: What about all the envelopes without signatures? What happened to them?

We waited and waited for a judicial hearing on the Trump campaign's 64-page complaint that claimed they had witness testimony for the courtroom that would identify the following illegal votes. Amazing numbers, if true. But nothing happened. Silence yet again. Check out these numbers:

- 66,247 underage voters (not legal in Georgia)
- 2,423 votes from people not registered (not legal in Georgia)
- 1,043 individuals registered at post office boxes (not legal in Georgia)
- 4,926 individuals who voted in Georgia after registering in another state (not legal in Georgia)
- 395 individuals who voted in two states (not legal in Georgia)
- 15,700 votes from people who moved out of state before the election (not legal in Georgia)
- 40,279 votes of people who moved without re-registering in their new county (not legal in Georgia)
- Another 30,000 to 40,000 absentee ballots lacking proper signature matching and verification (not legal in Georgia)

- 2,560 felons voted (not legal in Georgia)

Within Georgia election laws, the above claims are within the classification of errors that support contesting the outcome of any election.

Was this complaint ever be heard? Was it heard before Biden was inaugurated? What happened to all of these fraud claims in Georgia, as well as those in other battleground states? Don't be surprised because nothing happened. The laws were simply ignored.

The Nov. 3 election in Georgia has not been settled under the laws passed by the Georgia Legislature. An election contest remains pending that, if it were for any office other than President, would prevent an official from being sworn in until such time as it was settled.

The failure and refusal of the Judiciary and Executive branch officials of Georgia to acknowledge this FACT and apply the statutes as written is another basis to question the "good faith" of everything else that has transpired in Georgia over the past 60 days. — ShipWreckedCrew, columnist, RedState

And it would also make any reasonable person question the results of the run-off elections as well.

Here are some of the findings from The Chairman's Report of the Election Law Study Subcommittee of the Standing Senate Judiciary Committee of Georgia. Check out the full report at the website below:

http://www.senatorligon.com/THE_FINAL%20REPORT.PDF

- Protocols to ensure the proper chain of custody of ballots “throughout the Election, after the opening of ballots prior to the elections, and during the recounts” were not followed.
- It was “likely that large numbers of fraudulent ballots were introduced into the pool of ballots that were counted as voted.”
- There were pristine ballots in the mix “whose origin looked suspicious and which could not be verified.”
- Poll workers were not able to distinguish “between test ballots and absentee ballots.”
- Poll watchers observed that “ballots were not secured, that seals and security tags were not used,” both during the count and the recount processes.
- “There was a lack of enforcement of the law, sloppy handling of the ballots by those handling and counting, deliberate covering-up of voting numbers by poll workers, unsafe handling of military ballots, and “insecure data such as on laptops and flash drives.”
- Equipment failures were frequent, and some ballots would not go through the machines while others were counted more than once.
- Republican observers were deliberately blocked from observing the counting.

You should read the full report, which included plenty of testimony, to get a clear picture of the fraud and shenanigans that occurred in Georgia.

The Too Many Voters Cheat

In a 2016 article, Vote rigging: How to spot the tell-tale signs, BBC journalist Elizabeth Blunt asserted that the first sign of a rigged election is too many voters. The second sign is an unusually high turnout in specific areas. You never get over 90% turnout in an honest election.

Source: <https://www.bbc.com/news/world-africa-37243190>

In 2020, Wisconsin had a turnout of 3,289,465 voters out of a registered base of 3,684,726 people and an estimated same-day registration of 400,000. Their percentage of 80.53% of eligible registered votes was over the 80% that signifies a rigged election.

USA Today tried to minimize the disparity with a fact check they published days after the election: So when you divide the number of votes cast in Wisconsin—3,278,963 as of Nov. 5—by the voting-age population in Wisconsin (4,536,293 as of 2019, according to the elections commission), you get a turnout rate of 72.3%.

Source: <https://usatoday.com/story/news/factcheck/2020/11/05/fact-check-wisconsin-voter-turnout-line-past-elections/6176028002>

The fairer way to determine turnout is to divide the actual voters by the registered voters (those that can actually vote if they want to). That percentage in 2020 was 80.53% in Wisconsin. That percentage is too high to be valid.

The number of voters was 209,000 greater than the highest Wisconsin turnout ever (from 2012). Again, too many voters.

What's more, it is fully five standard deviations from the norm, which is 66.8 percent. Put in real-life terms, it is more likely that the Higgs-Boson particle does not exist than it is that Wisconsin saw a random uptick of this magnitude in votes. — Sam Jacobs, reporter, Libertas Bella Turnout in heavily Democrat Philadelphia, Pennsylvania was 90%. Too high. Turnout in heavily Democrat Detroit, Michigan, was over 90%. Again, too high. Turnout percentages of 90% or higher only happen in banana republics, dictatorships, and Marxist countries.

Clinton in 2016 outperformed Biden in 2020 in every U.S. city except for the following four:

Milwaukee, Detroit, Atlanta, and Philadelphia. —
Richard Baris, Big Data Poll

The number of votes Biden received is troubling. How could he get more than 81 million votes as a challenger? Particularly given that he did poorly across the country except where it really mattered—in big cities in battleground states.

He was the challenger. He has apparently, allegedly received more votes than any candidate for president in American history. And yet he has done very, very poorly in most of the country, except where it absolutely mattered. — Patrick Basham, director, Democracy Institute

With such a high turnout in 2020, there's a great chance that there was fraud in the collection and counting of votes in Wisconsin. No state has ever had a 107% increase in their top turnout percentage. It just doesn't happen.

Plus, in Milwaukee, seven wards had turnout rates higher than 100%. In two of those wards, turnout exceeded 200%! Perhaps there is a reasonable explanation for this, but so far no one has come forward to explain such high turnouts.

In five counties in Wisconsin, Biden out-performed Obama by 10 to 20%. Is Biden really more popular than Obama? All five counties had turnouts over 90%, one as high as 96.6%. Again, these kind of turnouts don't happen in honest American elections. They only happen in banana republics, Marxist countries, and dictatorships.

In these big cities in swing states run by Democrats ...the vote even exceeded the number of registered voters. — Robert Barnes, election analyst

Excuse Me While I Call BS: In Wisconsin

Let's face the fact here and now: Biden isn't Obama. Not only does common sense say this, but the data also says it.

The 2020 presidential election had the highest turnout rate in 120 years. — Michael McDonald, head of the Elect Project Potential case of vote fraud: As many as 100,000 fraudulent votes. This is not a simple blip or anomaly. It is likely the result of fraud.

A number of the cities that turned in such a high percentage of Biden-only ballots also just so happened to see "outrageous levels of voter turnout."

Most of them are forced to claim that basement-dweller Joe Biden somehow managed to get more votes than both Hilary Clinton and Barack Obama. — Michael Thau, columnist, RedState

Reflections on Voter Turnout

In 2020, according to Newsweek, 160 million people voted in the general election. Other numbers indicate that 155 million people voted in 2020.

The highest turnout for presidential elections years in the U.S. prior to 2020 was 136.6 million in 2016 (and only 131.5 million in the Obama lovefest of 2008).

Why are some of us committed to trying to understand how an otherwise unelectable pair, Mr. Biden and Ms. Harris, won 15 million more votes than President Obama?

There are a number of elements of this election that seem implausible. For starters, from his basement and with a less than enthusiastic base, Mr. Biden set a record for the number of votes in a presidential election. — Maker S. Mark, columnist, American Thinker

How did we get 23.4 million more votes in just four years?

Trump got 10 million more votes than he got in 2016. Even if Biden matched Trump's new vote reach, that would still leave 3,400,000 unaccounted for votes—likely fraudulent votes.

For Biden to have matched Trump's new vote reach, Biden would have had to overcome the falling Democrat registration number in most states AND a clear lack of enthusiasm for an old, addled man. Trump would get thousands of people to every campaign event while Biden got 10 to 20 people to his few events.

We're in a situation where we have put together, and you guys did it for our administration— President Obama's administration before this—we have put together I think the most extensive and inclusive voter fraud organization in the history of American politics. ...

If enough people vote, it's going to overwhelm the system. — Joe Biden, presidential candidate

If you had told me before the vote counting began that Trump would outdo himself by 10 million votes over four years ago, I'd have told you that it can only mean that Trump won in a Reagan-style landslide. But instead, we see Biden with 18–20 million more!

Massive corruption with literally tens of millions of counterfeit votes is the only way this could have happened. — James Nollet, columnist, American Thinker

In the previous three presidential elections, the total number of votes was between 127 million and 129 million. In this election, it was 155 million. This is a 20 percent increase.

The increase for Trump is expected. He did a great job as president. The increase for Biden can only be explained as voter fraud. — Martin Marcus, columnist, American Thinker

The 2.6 Million Vote Error

The other day, several tweets about the 2020 election got my attention. They were about voter turnout and votes. Check them out here:

With 212 Million registered voters and 66.2% voting, 140.344 M voted. Now if Trump got 74 M, that leaves only 66.344 M for Biden. These numbers don't add up to what we are being told. Lies and more Lies! — Bill Binney tweet

In reply to Binney's tweet, Bansi Sharma tweeted the following:

Stop fooling your followers with deceitful math. That 66.2% is not percentage of "registered voters." That is 66.2% of "voting-age population" which is 234 million. 66.2% of 234 million is 155 million, not 140 million.

*74 million for Trump
81 million for Biden.*

The math works. — Bansi Sharma tweet

Now, I knew that the math did not work because there were almost 2.6 million people who voted for the libertarians, the greens, and other candidates. So, I tweeted back to Sharma calling him on his oversight:

The math doesn't work. You forgot to include the votes for Libertarians, Greens, and others. They received almost 2.5 million votes. Hmm, I wonder where those 2.5 million votes for Biden's final total came from?

Stop fooling your followers by ignoring the facts!

Sharma tweeted back to me that it was simply a rounding error. Really?

How can 2.5 million people be a rounding error?!? He said the math works, but it doesn't work. See the math here:

We have a reported 155 million voters (66.2% of the voting age population of 234 million), but 157.6 million votes (74,111,419 votes for Trump, 81,009,468 votes for Biden, and 2,479,790 votes for other candidates).

That's a total of 2.6 million extra votes that came out of nowhere. They did not come from people who voted in the election. There were 2.6 million more votes counted than people who were actually recorded as having voted in the election!

There was fraud, clear and simple: More votes than voters!

Let's assume that those extra 2.6 million votes are the overnight added votes for Biden in Detroit, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Las Vegas, Milwaukee, and Phoenix. Then we really do have a major case for electoral fraud. 2.6 million mysterious votes for Biden in six states, or about 433,000 votes per contested state.

That many unaccounted-for votes could easily change the direction of any election!

Many people, as well as the mainstream media and the social media mafia, say there was no significant voter fraud in those six states, but isn't 433,000 votes per contested state significant?

2.6 million extra votes came out of nowhere. They did not come from people who voted in the election. There were 2.6 million more votes counted than people who were actually recorded as having voted in the election!
#The2020ElectionCoup

Is there a case for electoral fraud? Let me count the 2.6 million ways. That's too many unaccounted-for votes!

Pennsylvania Voters vs. Votes

There seems to be proof that there were more votes than voters in Pennsylvania as well. Lawmakers in Pennsylvania checked the records and found the following:

A comparison of official county election results to the total number of voters who voted on November 3, 2020 as recorded by the Department of State shows that 6,962,607 total ballots were reported as being cast, while DoS/SURE system records indicate that only 6,760,230 total voters actually voted.

Among the 6,962,607 total ballots cast, 6,931,060 total votes were counted in the presidential race, including all three candidates on the ballot and write-in candidates.

The difference of 202,377 more votes cast than actual voters who voted, together with the 31,547 under-votes in the presidential race, adds up to a significant discrepancy of 170,830 votes.

On November 24, 2020, the state of Pennsylvania certified that Joe Biden received 80,555 more votes than President Donald Trump. That's half the votes that came out of nowhere—certainly not from real voters! Did Biden get most of those votes? Yes.

Did Trump really win Pennsylvania? Yes, he did!

726,000 ballots were recorded in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, yet only 605,754 people actually voted in the county. The difference: 120,966 more votes than voters.

Under Pennsylvania law, if the number of ballots cast exceeds the number of voters who were recorded as voting, no votes can be recorded until the matter is investigated. Note: This matter was NOT investigated.

The Vote Dump

A time-honored tradition in big city machine politics, the vote dump guarantees your candidate wins! Do you want to win a dishonest election? Simple. Dump a lot of questionable ballots into the counting bins in the middle of the night.

Example: Poll watcher Kelly SoRelle reported that three vehicles arrived at the counting station in Detroit, Michigan, with 138,000 mail-in ballots—ballots that were not delivered before the official cut-off time.

The shift was ending around that time but one of the people in charge of counting ballots announced over the microphone that an entire load had just come in.

SoRelle was also told that the vehicles these ballots were delivered in had out-of-state license plates.

Over 99% of those ballots were votes for Biden. Such high percentages of votes for one person, again, are only achieved in banana republics, dictatorships, and Marxist countries.

Ballots are not segregated by candidate. So, if 65,000 ballots with Biden selected arrive at once with zero Trump votes, the odds are 265,000:1 against this being real. Get back to me next year when you're done counting the digits. Michigan's 138,499 will take you a bit longer.—Ted Noel, columnist, American Thinker WATCH: Ballot Count Watcher Describes At Least 130,000 Ballots ALL FOR BIDEN Arriving in Three...

A woman monitoring the ballot counting in Detroit has asserted that at least 130,000 ballots, all for Joe Biden.

Around the same time, Philadelphia discovered 23,277 missing votes all of which were for Joe Biden. Not one vote for another candidate. None for Trump. None for the Green Party candidate. None for the Libertarian.

The way you do counting is you simply count all of the ballots. You don't divide. They're not divided up between the candidates. ...

So again, if it's confirmed that there are these weird reports coming out of votes only for one candidate and not the other, you've got to question, what exactly is going on?—Hans von Spakovsky, manager, Election Law Reform Initiative

138,000 fraudulent illegal ballots in Michigan.
23,277 fraudulent illegal ballots in Pennsylvania.
And that was just two instances of vote dumps in those swing states. How many vote dumps happened in other battleground states? How many happened in noncompetitive states like California, Illinois, and New York?

Between 11:14 and 11:42 came a big Biden vote dump. At 11:43, when the dump had ended, total votes were 3,368,181, and Trump had 1,512,627 votes (45.8%) and Biden had 1,771,663 votes (52.6%). During this half-hour period when the fraudsters switched the lead from Trump to Biden, Trump gained 93,337 votes (a 6.58% increase), and Biden gained 513,099 votes (a 40.77% increase). That is, there were about 5.5 Biden votes for every Trump vote during this interval. ...

By my calculation this means about 479,337 fraudulent votes were created for Biden. — Nick Chase, columnist, American Thinker

You really should read Nick's entire article on the Virginia vote count cheats. The time code reveals a massive vote dump of artificial votes: It's in the Code: Hanky-Panky in Virginia's Votes:

https://www.americanthinker.com/articles/2020/11/its_in_the_code_hankypanky_in_virginias_votes.html

In 3,276 precincts, there were 431,954 excess ballots. In four voting locations, 384,733 ballots were process in only 2 hours and 38 minutes. Given the available equipment in those four locations, it would be physically impossible to count that many ballots in that little time. Fraud? Obvious to anyone who knows science and probability.

Based on the significant anomalies and red flags that we have observed, we believe there is a significant probability that election results have been manipulated. ... after the counting was closed at 2 a.m., the situation dramatically reversed itself, starting with a series of impossible spikes shortly after counting was supposed to have stopped. ...

There were 289,866 more ballots processed in the time available for processing in four precincts/townships, than there was capacity. — Russ Ramsland, computer security expert Potential case of vote fraud: As much as 161,000 fraudulent votes in Michigan and Pennsylvania. As many as 479,000 fraudulent votes in Virginia. As many as 289,866 more fraudulent ballots in Michigan. As many as 150,000 votes in Wisconsin. Not at all minor.

Hundreds of thousands of suspicious ballots, many of them 96% up to 100% for Biden were DUMPED into the count in the wee hours of the morning AFTER election day in SWING STATES and the counting had been "stopped" with the intention of fraud. — Joe Hoft, editor, The Gateway Pundit

Thomas More Society filed suit in Wisconsin to stop certification because they found more than 150,000 potentially fraudulent ballots cast in the Wisconsin election. Note: The Society also filed actions in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Nevada, Georgia, and Arizona.

The Society discovered double votes, votes by people out of state, votes by people who didn't reside where they voted, ballots filled out by someone other than the legal voter, and more.

The result of their actions? Nada. Their valid lawsuits were ignored.

Of 600,000 votes added during curious counting spikes in Pennsylvania, 570,000 votes went to Biden while 3,200 went to Trump. Odd, isn't it? That spike almost defies the laws of science. Actually, that spike does defy the laws of science to anyone who looks at it with unbiased eyes.

Four updates to votes (aka data dumps) in three swing states came early on November 4, 2020. What a surprise!

- ❑ 6:31 a.m. Eastern update in Michigan with 141,258 Joe Biden votes and 5,968 Donald Trump votes
- ❑ 3:42 a.m. Central update in Wisconsin with 143,379 Biden votes and 25,163 Trump votes
- ❑ 1:34 a.m. Eastern update in Georgia with 136,155 Biden votes and 29,115 Trump votes
- ❑ 3:50 a.m. Eastern update in Michigan with 54,497 Biden votes and 4,718 Trump votes

The vote dumps were all anomalous. Not real.

[Biden] didn't win the Election. He lost all 6 Swing States, by a lot. They then dumped hundreds of thousands of votes in each one, and got caught. Now Republican politicians have to fight so that their great victory is not stolen. Don't be weak fools! — Donald Trump, U.S. president, tweet

The Great Vote Switch

The first sign of vote problems occurred in Antrim County, Michigan. Before the problem was discovered, votes were switched between Trump and Biden, giving Biden thousands of extra votes in a very red county.

For more about the problem in just this one county, check out Exhibit 7: Talking Points on Voting Machines later in this book.

Meanwhile, in Georgia, data scientists described a multiple thousand vote switch from Trump to Biden that would have given the state to Trump. And given Trump Georgia's 16 electoral votes!

Around 9:11 p.m. local time, the analysts said that Trump got 29,391 votes while Biden received

17,218. But during the next update, the president's vote tally had fallen to 17,218 and Biden's increased to Trump's previous total of 29,391, according to the published data. — Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

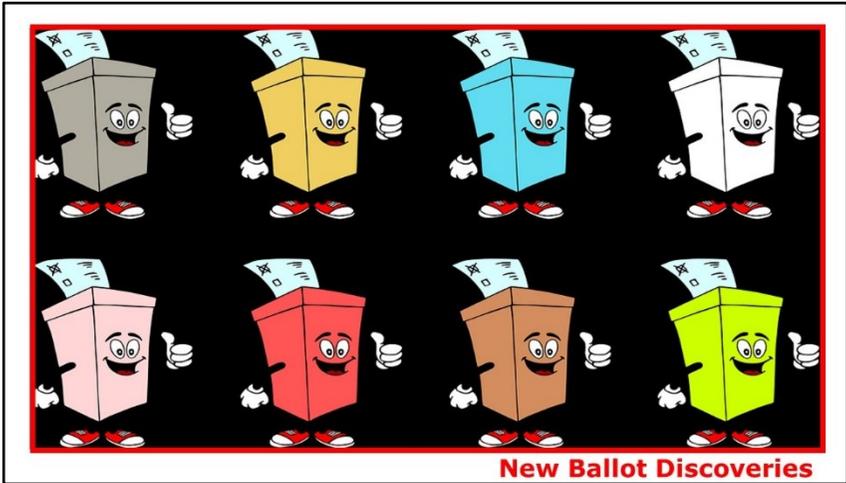

That's a 12,173 vote switch within minutes. But its impact was 24,346 votes.

Trump lost 12,173 votes while Biden gain 12,173 votes. That's a 24,346 vote change, enough to impact the reported results of the Georgia election and give Georgia's 16 electoral votes to Trump.

Here's what they did—and you haven't seen it yet but when I describe it, you're actually going to feel something physically, so get ready for this. You're going to feel this physically.

They simplified. They simplified here. They brought it down to one question. Here's the question: Is there ever a reason that the cumulative vote count could turn negative under normal non-hacked conditions? Because it did so, that's the part that I think they'll be able to show with no doubt about it. — Scott Adams, cartoonist and contrarian

The only way to lose votes is if someone manually entered the computer databases and took them away from him. There's your fraud, and it was fraud in numbers more than sufficient to ensure a "Biden victory" in Georgia. QED. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

New Ballot Discoveries

Democrat representative Abigail Spanberger of Virginia, who had been down by about 1,350 votes, surged into the lead when officials discovered thousands of new overlooked ballots just hanging around on a flash drive. And most for Abigail. Now, who would have thought that could happen?

Potential case of vote fraud: As much as 2,000 fraudulent votes. Not at all minor.

In NY-22, the Democrat incumbent was trailing by almost 30K on election night. The mail-in ballots got him close. Then a Democrat judge from Syracuse ruled he would personally "review" all of the spoiled ballots that had been rejected.

Guess what happened next. The judge miraculously "found" enough ballots that he felt were okay and the incumbent now "leads" by 13 votes. — Jazz Shaw tweet

Almost 100,000 absentee ballots were included in the vote count in Georgia—even though there was no record that they were ever returned to county election boards! Where did they come from? And where did they disappear to?

And who cares?

Potential case for vote fraud: 100,000 votes. There was no way that these unrecorded ballots were legitimate.

Pause the Count Controversy

Stop counting votes long enough so you can calculate how many votes you'll have to find/create/invent/discover so your candidate wins.

Five swing states paused their count overnight on election day. This pause might have occurred so fraudsters had time to reprogram voting machines to give more votes to Biden (alleged by some).

On election day, Trump was leading five swing states by 100,000 votes or more. He led Pennsylvania by 750,000 votes. Within days, most of those leads disappeared as vote dumps, computer glitches, and other voter fraud turned the true votes into a false votes.

On Election Day night at about midnight Eastern Standard Time, President Trump led comfortably in those and other swings states to the degree that the Las Vegas betting odds gave him a 75% chance of being reelected. Approximately one hour later, Democrat-controlled North Carolina, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Nevada paused their vote counting for over three hours.

Why this was done—seemingly in coordinated fashion—has never been satisfactorily explained nor even investigated by the legacy media. — Stu Cvrk, systems analyst

In the BBC article on how to spot vote rigging, the sixth sign of a rigged election is delaying the announcement of results. It isn't a coincidence that many of those battleground states desperate for a Biden win proved to be incapable of getting their votes counted.

In big cities where they control the political apparatus and they control the apparatus that counts the votes, and they control the polling places and the ones who count the votes, it's widespread and it's deep. — Rod Blagojevich, former Democrat governor

Potential case of vote fraud: As much as 2,000,000 fraudulent votes. Not at all minor.

We have reports of vote-counting stoppages announced almost simultaneously. We have reports of pre-printed ballots being delivered across state lines. We have video of ballots being counted after the monitors were sent home. We have reports of thousands of ballots delivered in the early A.M. after poll-watchers had been removed in the previous hours.

The evidence for the open-minded is that a lot of activities that secured the election for Mr. Biden occurred in 7–10 cities in the same 4- to 6-hour timeframe.

*Given that implied coordination, I think it unreasonable to assume that these cities all started these activities spontaneously. The documented coordination is a red flag that there was someone organizing and funding these activities. — Maker S. Mark, columnist, American Thinker

Here's one more person calling a pause to the pause:

Joe Biden was losing and losing big. Panic set in, and someone sounded the retreat. Five states withdrew from the action and stopped counting votes. This move is solid evidence of a conspiracy to overthrow the United States government. It's impossible for five states to independently, separately decide to take the same unprecedented action at the same time. Yet that's what they would have us believe as Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and Nevada simultaneously stopped counting votes. — Peggy Ryan, columnist, American Thinker

The Endless Countdown

Keep counting until you win. This is a tested and proven technique the Democrats have used again and again. Their big test was in the 2000 Bush/Gore presidential election where every chad counted. The Democrats counted and recounted and recounted trying to get enough votes in Florida to elect Gore. If the U.S. Supreme Court hadn't intervened they might still be counting.

The Democrats used the same countdown strategy to eke out a victory for Al Franken in the 2008 Minnesota senate election. It took them eight months of counting and court cases to find enough votes to get Franken elected.

In 2020, the Democrats finally got Biden crowned as president-elect by counting and counting (and discovering new votes everywhere) in Pennsylvania.

You won the elections, but I won the count. —
Anastasio Somoza, Nicaraguan dictator

I consider it completely unimportant who in the party will vote, or how; but what is extraordinarily important is this—who will count the votes, and how. — Joseph Stalin, Communist dictator

It is enough that the people know there was an election. The people that cast the votes decide nothing. The people that count the votes decide everything. — Joseph Stalin, Communist dictator

It's not the voting that's democracy; it's the counting. — Tom Stoppard, leftist playwright

The secrecy that shrouded the vote counting by the special election committee cast doubts on the results and lacks transparency. — Hosni Mubarak, Egyptian president

Mail-In Ballot Shenanigans

Automatic Mailings — States like California and Nevada automatically mailed out ballot applications to every registered voter in the state, even if they had moved since they had registered. Or had died years before.

Some voters received five or six ballot applications for people they didn't even know. It's possible that hundreds, possibly thousands, of people voted more than once via these indiscriminate mailings.

Voter registration rolls are notoriously inaccurate, containing names of voters who are deceased, have moved, or otherwise have become ineligible. In 2018, California was sued over maintaining 1.5 million inactive voter files. — CATO Institute on the JW v. Logan Settlement

Voter Turnout Operations — The first coronavirus relief package actually paid for states like Wisconsin to send information packets to millions of registered voters, again whether dead or alive. These packets were, in effect, a federally-funded voter turnout operation. Perhaps that's why Wisconsin had over 80% turnout rate.

Even many scholars who argue that fraud is generally rare agree that fraud with voting by mail seems to be more frequent than with in-person voting. — MIT Election Data and Science Lab Mail-In Ballot Fraud — Mail-in ballots are always open to more fraud than can happen when a person votes in person at a polling place.

Absentee ballots remain the largest source of potential voter fraud. — Jimmy Carter, former U.S. president

The Unfair Ballot — In 2020, mail-in ballots were treated differently from in-person votes. No voter I.D. required. No signature matching. More time to vote (even after Election Day!). No security standards.

If you voted in person in Pennsylvania, you were subjected to rigorous security standards: checking voter id ... signature matching. If you mailed in a ballot, which 2.65 million Pennsylvanians did, there were no such safeguards. You cannot have an election and treat different voters differently within the state. That is a violation of the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution and it's a very serious offense. — Matt Morgan, attorney

The Unsecret Ballot — Mail-in ballots have so many ways to be compromised. Family members could coerce voters. Postal workers could throw out a person's vote. Poll workers could alter ballots. All out of sight of the original voter!

Because the ballot is cast outside the public eye, the opportunities for coercion and voter impersonation are greater. Coercion by family members, employers, union leaders, religious leaders, or others might occur. — National Conference of State Legislatures

The most important argument against vote-by-mail is that it ends the secret ballot.

In Daniel Horowitz's analysis of mail-in votes in Pennsylvania, 64.7% of mail-in votes came from registered Democrats, 23.7% from Republicans, and 11.6% from independents and other parties. Horowitz estimated that even if Biden won 95% of mail-in ballots from Democrats, 21% from Republican mail-in ballots, and 80% from the independent mail-in ballots, he still would not have reached the number of mail-in ballot votes he is reported to have received in the election.

Source: <https://www.theblaze.com/news/pennsylvania-election-results-show>

The Wisconsin Supreme Court held that more than 200,000 ballots cast (estimated to be heavily for Biden) in the 2020 election were illegitimate.

In Georgia 460,000 absentee ballots, most of which went to Biden, were counted with no compliance with the chain of custody requirements of Georgia law.

In Pennsylvania there still is a case pending before the Supreme Court. There the state allowed "hundreds of thousands of ballots to be counted even though they were not turned in until after 8 p.m. on election day as state law mandates." — Clarice Feldman, columnist, American Thinker

Margins Out of This World

In Pennsylvania, Biden got a 57% margin of mail-in ballot votes over Trump, even though Democrats represented only 65.5% of those who returned ballots, while Republicans represented 23.4% and Independents 10.4%.

If the independents split evenly between Biden and Trump (highly unlikely), his margin of victory in mail-in ballots should have been $65.5 - 23.4 = 42.1 + 5.2 = 47.3\%$. So how did he get a margin of 57% from mail-in ballots?

Are you really saying that he got 10% of his margin of victory from Republican voters? Not likely.

And Trump should have gotten at least 20% of the Democrat mail-in votes and more than 80% of the independents! So, Biden's margin of victory in mail-in votes really is out of this world and likely out of this universe!

If the mail-in vote split were not 57%, as announced, but something more consistent with the party registration of voters who sent back mail-in ballots, the change in the margin for Biden among this voting group is a reduction ranging from 175,000 to 373,000 votes in the three scenarios with different vote margins from 42.1% to 50%.

Is there a good explanation for why Biden would win this voting population by so much more than the registration numbers suggest? I do not see it.

The Ghost Gambit, aka Dead People Voting

Did 3 million dead people vote in the 2020 election as at least one person asserts?

What we do know is that dead people voted in major numbers in Georgia, Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and Nevada.

How many of you had your vote negated by a dead person?

As of October 7, 2020, at least 9,212 registrants have been dead for at least five years, at least 1,990 registrants have been dead for at least ten years, and at least 197 registrants have been dead for at least twenty years ...

Pennsylvania still left the names of more than 21,000 dead individuals on the voter rolls less than a month before one of the most consequential general elections for federal officeholders in many years. — Pennsylvania GOP suit

In 2016 and 2018, there were 216 proven cases of dead people voting in Pennsylvania. In 2020, 840 people who voted in the election were older than the oldest people in the U.S., and 39 of the people were so old they could have fought in the Civil War. Hmm, seems like dead people were walking.

6,553 registered voters in Michigan have been confirmed dead by the Social Security Death Index. Over 14,000 dead people were actively registered to vote in Wayne County, Michigan; many actually voted in the 2020 election.

The United States has 353 counties with 1.8 million more registered voters than eligible adults. In 2017, the entire United States had 3.5 million more registered voters than living eligible adults. Room for fraud? Indeed.

<https://www.judicialwatch.org/press-releases/new-jw-study-voter-registration>

One of the most effective strategies for protecting the integrity of American elections is keeping voter rolls clean. Carefully maintained records will better prepare state and local governments to quickly recover from any future cyber-attacks.

In addition to fraud concerns, unkempt rolls can serve as a warning signal to future corruption and failures in local governments. — J. Christian Adams, president of PILF

Over 42,000 people voted more than once. At least 1,500 dead people are recorded as voting. More than 19,000 people voted even though they didn't live in Nevada. — Jesse R. Binnall, attorney

The Alien FlimFlam

In 2019, the state of Pennsylvania had almost 8,700 non-citizens on their voting rolls. Activists now claim that there are more than 12,000 alien voters in Pennsylvania. You'll also find lots of illegal aliens voting in Texas, North Carolina, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Virginia, North Carolina, Illinois, California, and Colorado.

Potential case of vote fraud: As much as 2,000 fraudulent votes per contested state. Not minor.

Trump and his supporters have proved repeatedly, in every way possible, that every one of the Biden votes that pushed Biden into an alleged victory smells foul.

Those votes reflect cemetery votes, illegal alien votes, fake signature votes, underage votes, felon votes, multiple ballots from the same place votes, and votes that were created within a computer and then fleshed out by photocopied ballots delivered in the dead of night. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

On the other side of the ledger, legal American minorities and immigrants voted in the highest numbers ever for Donald Trump.

As a New York Times headline blared: Immigrant Neighborhoods Shifted Red as the Country Chose Blue.

Although, of course, there are many of us who question whether or not the country actually chose blue. More likely, the shift to blue occurred via massive, massive fraud. What do you think?

The Vacated Movement

In 2020 in Nevada, more than 3,000 votes were cast by people who no longer lived in Nevada (according to a national change of address database). As many as 9,000 out-of-state people voted in Nevada's election and then went on to vote in their new state's election as well!

Many California voters who had vacation homes in Nevada voted in California and in Nevada.

Registration is so easy in so many states that vacationers and fraudsters can vote in multiple states if they choose to do so.

Voters can take the fraud into their own hands by casting mail-in or absentee ballots where they have previously lived. Forensic audits reveal low amounts of it, maybe 1 in 4,000 votes, a few thousand across a large state. Double-voting depends strongly on the ethics and motivations of the fraudster, tempered by fear of prosecution after being caught in routine audits. With Trump, motivation was likely strong. — Anthony Ciani, columnist, American Thinkier

Later, Ciani discovered even more electoral fraud, especially fraudsters using the names and addresses of people who have moved—often moving out of state and often moving more than ten years ago. The voter rolls are so inaccurate that anyone can vote more than once—even ghosts!

It is not just people that moved out, but also people who never existed. In Arizona, volunteers checked the properties of a filtered list of questionable registrations and found that 53% of them were false. Thirty percent of the addresses were not even residences. If 53% of the lower end of the data analysis, 160,000 falsely registered voters, are truly falsely registered voters, then about 3% of Arizona's votes were from people who never existed, compounded with 3% from stale records.

That's a +6% margin of fraud for Democrats in a "swing" state! ... Cleaning rolls in the current system is a fool's errand. The fraud is jaw-dropping, significant and widespread. — Anthony J. Ciani, columnist, American Thinker

In the Georgia U.S. Senate run-off election in 2021, many people said they would move to Georgia to be able to vote in the run-off. Evidence indicates that many thousands actually followed through on this promise. Many moved back to California and parts unknown after the election. Note: Moving to Georgia to vote in an election is illegal, but when did that stopped any of the vote fraudsters so far?

That thousands of specific, identifiable voters, cast ballots after they moved out of state [Georgia] as evidenced in their registration in a national database, and may even have cast votes in their new states also which can easily be checked against the other state's records. This accounts for thousands of votes. — Harmeet Dhillon, attorney

Potential case of voter fraud: Perhaps millions. We don't know even after the Senate run-off election is over. Since both leftist Democrats won the Senate seats, the amount of voter fraud was undoubtedly high. In a fair Georgia election, the people of Georgia would vote for the incumbent, non-leftist Republicans.

In State, Out of State

Georgia: Thousands of new voter registrations provided illegal addresses as their home addresses: P.O. boxes, Mail Boxes Etc., and the UPS Store.

The other category Matt Braynard has researched & documented, is thousands of identifiable, specific registrations at fraudulent addresses such as P.O. Boxes, non-residential, etc. These seem to be specific and of a sufficient volume that their disqualification would affect the outcome of the election. — Harmeet Dhillon, attorney

Here's the citation in the Georgia lawsuit for those illegal voter registrations:

(d) Further, as calculated by Matt Braynard, there exists clear evidence of 20,311 absentee or early voters in Georgia that voted while registered as having moved out of state. (See Id., attachment to report). Specifically, these persons were showing on the National Change of Address Database (NCOA) as having moved, or as having filed subsequent voter registration in another state also as evidence that they moved and even potentially voted in another state. The 20,311 votes by persons documented as having moved exceeds the margin by which Donald Trump lost the election by 7,641 votes.

Nevada: In an affidavit filed in a Republican election challenge in Nevada, Dorothy Morgan found a huge surge of incomplete voter registrations as well as registrants giving casinos and temporary RV parks as their home or mailing addresses in Clark County, Nevada.

In that same affidavit, Morgan noted that there was a strange jump in voter registrations missing the age of the voter and/or their sex—thus making confirmation impossible for poll workers.

In 2016, 68 voter registrations were missing that essential information. In 2020, 13,372 registrations did not that important information.

Wisconsin: A Wisconsin lawsuit alleged that 156,807 illegal votes were certified that should never have passed a smell test. Anomalies included 14,420 ballots requested by someone other than the actual voter, 12,071 Republican ballots that were not counted, 26,673 in-state people who voted where they did not live, 6,966 out-of-state residents who voted in Wisconsin, and 234 double votes.

Here's a graphic they included in their lawsuit:

The Down-Ballot Void

More than 450,000 ballots in key battleground states were cast only for Biden as president. No down-ballot votes were made. That's a clear sign of fraudulent ballots since most people would vote for at least a few other candidates down the ballot.

But, when you are creating a lot of new ballots for your candidate, you don't have time to vote for other people on the ballot. Vote for your one candidate and then more on to the next ballot. Vote again. Next ballot. Vote again. Etc.

Fraudulent ballots for president only are one reason Republicans were so successful in winning the down-ballot races for representatives, state legislatures, and other state offices. As well as so many key ballot measures—even in California!

In Pennsylvania, the incumbent state treasurer, Democrat Joe Torsella, was soundly defeated by a Republican, Stacy Garrity. He had outspent her 10 to 1 and still lost by almost 80,000 votes!

Meanwhile, Republican Timothy DeFoor won the Pennsylvania auditor general's race by almost 200,000 votes.

And, finally, the Democrat minority leader of the state legislature, Frank Dermody, lost the seat he occupied for 30 years to Republican Carrie DelRosso.

These top local Democrats lost while Biden was "winning" Pennsylvania with 81,000 votes. Is that really believable?

None of the results in the above down-ballot races is in line with a decisive Biden victory. Not even close.

More than 46k voted in the presidential but not the senate race in Georgia. In South Carolina, the number was 519. — Brian Anderson 519 seems like a reasonable number of people who only voted for president and for no down-ballot races. But 46,000 smells like fraud, plain and simple. Why are the legacy media not digging into this anomaly? I smell a rat. Why don't they?

When you take a look at Republicans who won their races for state auditor, for state treasurer, it turns out that those Republicans did better than Trump on mail-ins but not on Election Day. On Election Day they had fewer votes than Trump. Whereas, when you go to the Democrat victors, such as Dan Shapiro, the notorious attorney general, he seemed to do better than Biden on Election Day ballots but worse than Biden on mail-ins. ...

When you look at other states, we're finding a similar pattern of a bunch of ballots cast that only had Biden, and of course, they're always mail-ins.
— Daniel Horowitz, host, Conservative Review Podcast

Potential case of vote fraud: As many as 450,000 votes but probably a lot more. Plus 46,000 additional suspicious votes in Georgia. Not a minor thing. Not a minor thing at all.

Again, why are the mainstream media not investigating these numbers? And why are the social media kingpins not allowing these questions about election fraud? What do they think will be found if these questions are actually pursued?

Democrat Fraud?
In the past 120 years, only one presidential candidate has ever lost both Ohio and Florida and still won the national electoral vote.

The 2020
Election Coup

How the Democrats Stole the Presidential Election and Canceled the Legitimacy of Your Legal Vote!

David Walker

The Bellwether Break-Down

Even if you disregard all the other indications of election fraud, shenanigans, and outright crimes by election officials, how do you disregard the history of bellwether states and counties that have predicted elections for 120 years or more?

Bellwether States

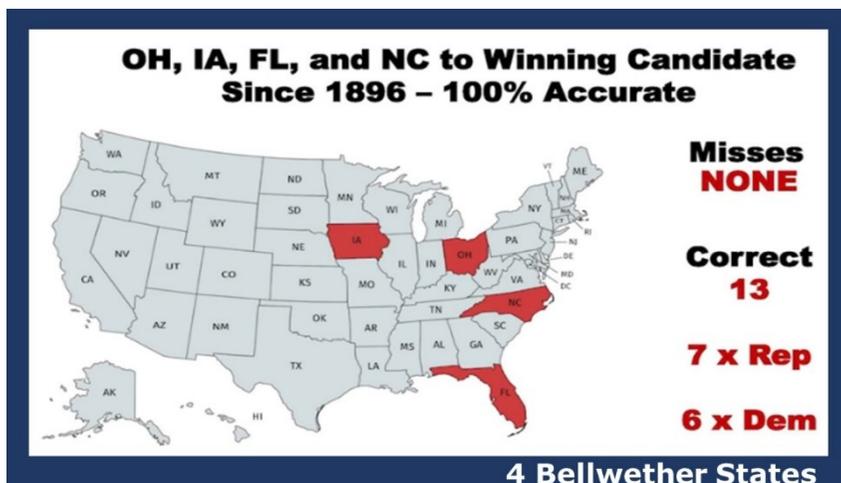

In most presidential elections of the past century, there were two bellwether states, Ohio and Florida, that were almost always won by the eventual winner of the national election. As the adage went, "As Ohio goes, so goes the nation."

Only twice since 1904 has the presidential winner not won the state of Ohio. During that same time, only three presidents won the nation without winning the state of Florida.

In the past 120 years, no presidential candidate has ever won both Ohio and Florida and still lost the national electoral vote (except Nixon vs. Kennedy with Mayor Daley's and the mafia's help).

In 2020, Trump won both states by large margins. Biden failed miserably in both states yet was declared the winner of the presidential race by the mainstream media.

Even more accurate is the 4-state combo of Iowa, Ohio, Florida, and North Carolina. Every time a presidential candidate won all four states (since 1896!), that candidate won the national election. No misses. Absolutely correct. But not in 2020. Hmm?

Bellwether Counties

Just as there are bellwether states, there are also bellwether counties. Indiana's Vigo County has been won by every presidential winner since 1956; the same is true for New Mexico's Valencia County since 1952. Trump won both counties in 2020, Vigo by over 14 points and Valencia by 11 points.

82% of bellwether counties were apparently wrong in 2020 (at least according to the mainstream media that called the election for Biden). 82% of the bellwether counties were won by Trump.

What are the odds that all these bellwether states and counties got it wrong in 2020? And yet got it right for 70 years or more?!?

Was the Democrat fraud so prevalent in 2020 that only the bellwether states and counties could point to the truth of who won the real vote for president?

Impossible Probabilities

Impossible Probabilities

Too many impossible things happened during this election: impossible late night vote changes in Michigan within minutes, the processing of almost 400,000 ballots in less than three hours, the same margin in 53 batches of votes, Biden outperforming Obama, and so much more.

Statistical anomalies. In Georgia, Biden overtook Trump with 89 percent of the votes counted. For the next 53 batches of votes counted, Biden led Trump by the same exact 50.05 to 49.95 percent margin in every single batch. It is particularly perplexing that all statistical anomalies and tabulation abnormalities were in Biden's favor. Whether the cause was simple human error or nefarious activity, or a combination, clearly something peculiar happened. — Patrick Basham, director, Democracy Institute

You must read this article to understand all the impossible things that had to happen so Biden could be elected:

Reasons why the 2020 presidential election is deeply puzzling To say out-loud that you find the results of the 2020 presidential election odd is to invite derision. ...spectator.us

If we are to accept that Biden won, against the trend of all these non-polling metrics, it not only means that one of these metrics was inaccurate this time, for the first time ever. It means that each one of these metrics was wrong for the first time and at the same time as all the others. It is not statistically impossible, but it is statistically implausible. — Patrick Basham, director, Democracy Institute

The statistical impossibility of precincts reporting more than 75% of votes for a single candidate—although 151 precincts reported over 90% of votes for Biden—and the impossibly large number of votes adjudicated and then destroyed. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

Peter Navarro releases 36-page report alleging election fraud 'more than sufficient' to swing victory to Trump. A great report by Peter. Statistically impossible to have lost the 2020 Election. — Donald Trump, U.S. president, tweet

And yet, miracle of miracles, everyone says Trump lost. Statistically impossible, but a done deal. Something smells fishy.

The Poll Watcher Torture

In state after state, Republican poll watchers were harassed, rejected, escorted out of the polling place, and more. Here are just a few of the stories.

Keep Your Opponents in the Dark — In Wayne County, Michigan, Republican poll watchers were denied their legal right to monitor the election and purposely kept in the dark, both literally and figuratively. Election workers blocked windows and padlocked doors. Despite a guarantee under Michigan law, the Trump campaign was denied access to voting locations across the state.

Harass Your Opponents — Also in Michigan, Republican poll workers were harassed and intimidated until they could no longer do their job of ensuring a fair and transparent election. Election workers refused to allow verified poll workers an opportunity to challenge questionable ballots. Over 2,800 harassment incidents were reported. Many were also certified by witness affidavits.

Unequal treatment of Republican and Democrat poll watchers violates equal protection under the law, and the potential counting of ineligible ballots unconstitutionally devalues the vote and voice of eligible voters. These irregular activities could be the tip of the iceberg. We look forward to further developing those facts through this process.

The Complaint is based on affidavits showing that designated challengers were denied meaningful observation as required by law, that our poll watchers suffered illegal and official intimidation, interference, intimidation, harassment, including testimony of derogatory language used against those Republicans who were in the room.

Because these Republican poll watchers were pushed out, harassed, intimidated, and denied their right to have meaningful observation, there may have been more unconstitutional practices that our credentialed poll watchers were not able to see. — Matt Morgan in a lawsuit filed in Michigan

Kick Out Your Opponents — Republican poll workers were kicked out of many polling places. They were not allowed to do their jobs. Once kicked out, some polling places covered up their windows so poll watchers couldn't even have that much access to the polling places.

In at least one voting site, election workers wore Biden T-shirts and applauded when Republican poll watchers were kicked out. Were these workers counting fairly? Or were they counting falsely?

Is this how a fair election is run? No, not at all.

Whenever they removed a Republican attorney, or Republican poll observer, the election workers were cheering. They were being kicked out of the room for things like adjusting their face mask or accidentally brushing up against some other folks.

— Aric Nesbitt, the Republican leader of the Michigan GOP-led Senate (<https://justthenews.com/politics-policy/elections/michigan-leader-says-detroit-voting-irregularities-reprehensible-and>)

For places like Detroit to chase out and not allow legally appointed poll watchers in there to watch them processing these absentee ballots raises serious questions about possible misconduct going on. Now, I don't have evidence of misconduct. But the point is, if the poll watchers were there, we would know what was exactly going on in the vote counting process. — Hans von Spakovsky, manager, Election Law Reform Initiative

Count Ballots After Kicking Out Poll Watchers

—Georgia election officials told poll watchers to leave because they were going to stop counting. Once the poll watchers left, they resumed counting ballots—unlawfully! A video showed them bringing out boxes of extra unverified ballots. Why has this not been resolved in a way that protected the law?

Fulton County elections officials falsely announced that the counting of ballots would stop at 10:30 p.m. Officials unlawfully resumed the counting of ballots after our observers left the center. — David Shafer, chairman, Georgia Republican Party

Reject Your Opponents — Election workers often didn't even let certified poll workers into their assigned polling places. It happened in Philadelphia, where people report that it's an "old Philly trick."

When only Republican observers are harassed or kept away, this is prima facie evidence of criminal intent by Democrats. It is parallel to obstruction of justice, but again, election law is different. A court is allowed to use this sort of action against the offending party.

Potential case of vote fraud: Millions of potential votes created or destroyed. Not a minor thing. And, because poll workers were harassed and kicked out, there's not way to find out the truth.

Kicking out certified poll workers is illegal in most states. Why did the mainstream media never cover this story?

The Poll Worker as Voter

A viral video showed poll workers filling out ballots in a Pennsylvania county counting room:

<https://www.theblaze.com/news/viral-videos-show-pennsylvania-poll-workers-filling-out-ballots>.

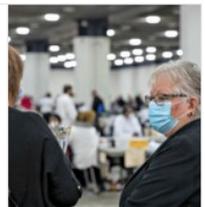

Two observers completed affidavits claiming to see election workers in Detroit, Michigan, creating new voter files with information obtained from other ballots.

In Clark County, Nevada, another whistleblower witnessed mail ballots being counted without verified signatures.

Affidavits: Detroit Ballot Tabulators Entered Names of Non-Voters During Count: Two observers who were at the TCF Center in Detroit during the absentee ballot counting process have produced... www.breitbart.com

Attached to the complaint are sworn affidavits from dozens of Georgia residents swearing under penalty of perjury to what they witnessed during the election: failure to process and secure the ballots, failure to verify the signatures on absentee ballots, the appearance of mysterious 'pristine' absentee ballots not received in official absentee ballot envelopes that were voted almost solely for Joe Biden, failure to allow poll watchers meaningful access to observe the election, among other violations of law. — Trump campaign statement

Potential case of vote fraud: Thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands of illegal votes. Not a minor thing.

In Georgia, 106,000 ballots were manually adjudicated. That means that the ballots were destroyed and then the ballots were replaced with possible fake ballots created by poll workers!

A Georgia official stated that 106,000 ballots, out of 113,130 ballots scanned, were manually adjudicated. That meant that 106,000 ballots were destroyed and replaced with whatever the adjudicators wanted. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

Election Officials as Violators of the Law

Election Officials as Violators of the Law

Election officials ignored a lot of state laws while prosecuting the election in favor of Biden.

For example, in Pennsylvania ...

Election officials clearly violated the law by inspecting mail-in ballots before November 3. According to Pennsylvania's election rules, county election boards were required to "safely keep the ballots in sealed or locked containers" until pre-canvassing legally began at 7 a.m. on Election Day.

*Not only were an unknown number of mail-in ballots mishandled by election workers days before the official start date, election observers were not present at the premature inspections. — Julie Kelly, author, *Disloyal Opposition

What could possibly go wrong when handling ballots without poll watchers being present?

What does the Pennsylvania election code actually say about such shenanigans? Read this:

The county board of elections shall meet no earlier than seven o'clock A.M. on election day to pre-canvass all ballots received prior to the meeting. A county board of elections shall provide at least forty-eight hours' notice of a pre-canvass meeting by publicly posting a notice of a pre-canvass meeting on its publicly accessible Internet website. One authorized representative of each candidate in an election and one representative from each political party shall be permitted to remain in the room in which the absentee ballots and mail-in ballots are pre-canvassed.

The actions of election officials in Pennsylvania were clearly against Pennsylvania law. Why have these election officials not been charged with violating the law? Why have they been allowed to get away with this? Again, why hasn't the mainstream media covered this story?

Along with all the evidence about faked ballots, statistical anomalies, dead voters, felons voting, illegal aliens voting, computer cheating, etc., you need to add highly suspicious human behavior to your evidentiary list proving massive fraud in the 2020 election. The whole thing can be summed up this way: If a poll worker walks like he's cheating, and talks like he's cheating, is a good bet that he's cheating—and all of his fellow poll workers are too.
— Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

Potential case of vote fraud: About 82,000 votes in Pennsylvania alone.

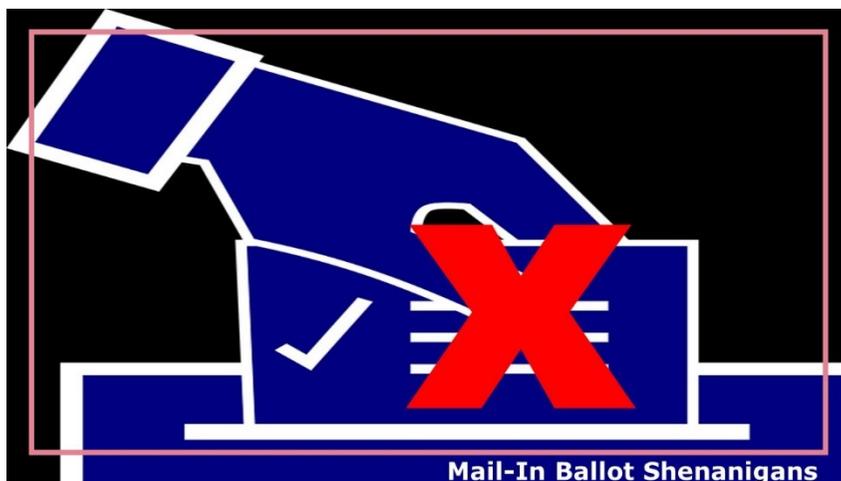

And in California ...

California Secretary of State Alex Padilla entered a controversial $35 million no-bid contract with SKDKnickerbocker, a company with ties to the Biden campaign. He claimed the Vote Safe California contract was for educating people on the new form of mail-in voting due to the pandemic.

In truth, it was actually an illegal get-out-the-vote campaign directly favoring Democrats.

Source: <https://redstate.com/jenniferroo/2020/11/24/vote-safe-california-contract-comes-back-to-bite-sos-alex-padilla-in-the-butt-n284616>.

Just like Newsom, Padilla treats the citizens as his subjects, and the tax revenue as his piggy bank. With a whole new set of curfews and restrictions issued by Newsom, it is imperative the people of California rise up and say, "No more of this", and take back their lives. If Padilla and Newsom have their way, soon there will be no living possible. — Jennifer Roo, columnist, RedState

Mail-In Ballot Rejections

In past elections, mail-in ballots were rejected at a 3% to 6% rate nationally. In 2020, the mail-in ballot rejection rate was less than 1% nationally.

In 2016, Georgia had a rejection rate of faulty ballots—with no signature, no signature match, damaged ballots, etc.—of over 6%. In 2020, it was just 0.2%. In Pennsylvania, 2016 saw a rejection rate of 1%, this year it was only 0.3%. Michigan fell from a 0.5% rejection rate to a 0.1%.

This is not proof of vote fraud, but it is highly suggestive of vote manipulation.

Put another way, if rejection rates in 2020 were consistent with 2016, Trump would have easily won this election. — Chris Ruddy, CEO of NewsMax

Typically, Georgia rejects 3.5% of absentee ballots because they cannot be validated. This year the rejection rate is 0.002%. With nothing more, that discrepancy points to vast fraud. — Dick Morris Potential case of vote fraud: Potentially millions of non-rejected ballots that should have been rejected in a normal fair election. Was the 2020 election a fake election?

A total of 450 were rejected ballots out of about 1.3 million mailed-in ballots received in those counties [in Pennsylvania]. That is a rejection rate of .0003%. Such numbers are simply ludicrous and defy belief. — ShipWreckedCrew, columnist, RedState.com

Miscellaneous Election Shenanigans

SharpieGate

In Arizona, poll workers gave selected voters felt pens to complete their ballots. Ballots completed with felt pens were initially rejected for feeding into the counting machines because of the bleed through from the felt pens. The poll workers knew this. Eventually, the felt pen ballots were apparently accepted and tabulated.

Potential case of vote fraud: Perhaps no votes, but these wrong instructions and inappropriate voting tools occurred in more than one state.

What is more significant is that these actions are proof that election workers were too often biased against easily identifiable Republican voters. Why did the mainstream media miss this story?

The Ballot Dump

Want to get rid of some votes? Just dump opposing ballots into the trash. 500 Trump absentee ballots were found in the trash in Marysville, Michigan. Who put them there?

Three trays of mail, including absentee ballots, were found in a ditch in Greenville, Wisconsin. Who put them there?

Potential case of vote fraud: Thousands of votes? Possibly more. Not a minor thing.

The Military Mission

Military votes, which usually break strongly for Republican candidates, also experienced suspicious activities. In Luzerne County, nine military ballots were found in the trash. Seven of the nine were votes for Trump. How many other military ballots may have been discarded?

Military people serving overseas had trouble sending in their votes. Military ballots had horrible instructions for how to turn in or mail in their votes. Was this intentional?

Potential case of vote fraud: Hundreds of votes? Thousands of votes? Perhaps a minor thing except that it involved our brave military people.

In Michigan, hundreds possibly thousands of military ballots were processed incorrectly. One witness affidavit reported:

Not one of the military ballots was a registered voter and the ballots looked like they were all exactly the same xerox copies of the ballot. They were all for Biden across the board. There wasn't a single Trump vote.

Another witness saw military ballots being put through the tabulators multiple times. And, she witnessed the military ballots being duplicated. I just thought it was strange that only Biden's name was selected, no down ballot ... and not one was for Trump.

Why doesn't the Defense Department do a review of military mail-in ballots that inexplicably went 100% for Joe Biden? — Jay Latimer, columnist, American Thinker

The Nursing Home No-No

25,000 senior citizens in different nursing homes in Pennsylvania requested mail-in ballots—all at the exact same time. What are the odds? About the same as all 25,000 senior citizens being struck by lightning at the same time.

Why did the mainstream media not cover this story? Where have the brave journalists been who should have been covering this story?

You can't ballot harvest in Pennsylvania. What are the odds that 25,000 people in different locations of the same age group requested at the same time a ballot? Somebody is up to no good in these nursing homes. — Lindsay Graham, U.S. senator Potential case of vote fraud: 25,000 harvested votes that all went to Biden. Just horrible. Taking advantage of senior citizens to steal an election.

The Disability Dodge

A Texas social worker was charged with 134 felony counts for submitting voter registration applications for 67 people with developmental disabilities — without their signatures or consent. And while pretending to be their agent. Shades of ballot harvesting.

Social Worker Charged With 134 Counts of Voter Fraud, Related Crimes Involving the Disabled: It's a turbulent time, and as America sits on the edge of its seat, accusations of misconduct abound. Amid the turmoil... redstate.com Potential case of vote fraud: 134 votes in this particular case. How many more of these cases occurred around the U.S.?

The Goal Post Gambit

Keep changing the goal post by adding more ballots to count, over and over again. In Georgia, the secretary of state announced that there were fewer than 25,000 votes left to count. A few hours later, he said there were around 55,000 to 60,000 absentee ballots still to count. Why did the number of ballots to be counted keep changing?

Change the Rules Ploy

Too many governors tried to change the rules of the elections in their states. And judges went along with those changes—even though the U.S. Constitution clearly says that only state legislatures can change the rules.

A Michigan court extended Election Day for two weeks.

A Pennsylvania court, along with the Democrat secretary of state, nullified signature verification for mail-in ballots and extended the time for ballots to be received.

Every rule change favored the Democrats. And every rule change was unconstitutional!

Potential case of vote fraud: All the rule changes made it easier to commit vote fraud on an industrial scale. How do you begin to measure the potential damage to the electoral system?

The Miracle Cure

A number of states allow voters to cure or fix problems with their absentee ballots (such as a missing signature) and then re-submit them.

The Democrats went full-court in Georgia helping people cure their votes.

Democrats also sued in Arizona to get a list of voters who needed their ballots cured.

They advertised in Georgia: Anyone in Georgia? Team Joe needs people to go door to door helping voters fix their mail in ballots so they count. Sign up!

Curing ballots works very much like harvesting ballots. As long as you're helping people with their signatures, you can also help them fix their votes.

In fact, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, poll workers cured thousands of votes by correcting or adding required "information to the ballot itself" using red pens (reported by WUMW-FM, Milwaukee public radio).

Also, according to WISN-AM, Wisconsin clerks and poll workers may have "unlawfully altered witness statements" on thousands of mail-in ballots. Note: Wisconsin state law requires that an absentee ballot be signed by a witness, who is also required to list his or her address.

And, in Pennsylvania, ballots were cured even before Election Day!

What they did in Pennsylvania was conduct, basically, an unconstitutional election. Depending on where you were in the state and when you voted, you were treated differently. ... Democrat voters in Philadelphia were called and said, "You better come on in. There might be a problem with the mail-in ballot that you submitted," and they were invited to cast a provisional vote.

This is before Election Day. That is not allowed. That is prec canvassing a ballot before Election Day. Republican voters were not given that same opportunity. That is disparate treatment. — Tim Murtaugh, Trump campaign spokesperson

Georgia Democrats Going Door-to-Door to Fix Flawed Ballots, Told to Minimize Helping Republicans:

Potential case of vote fraud: Thousands of votes were cured. Were voters intimidated during the cures? Was there bias in who was helped with their cures? Why were there cures only in swing states?

The Christmas Eve Caper

Someone planned to update election machines in red counties the night before the election. The tech company responsible for a major glitch in Michigan, was also responsible for a glitch that halted voting in two Georgia counties. All because of an update to the software they ran the night before the election.

Really stupid. Smart people know you update weeks in advance, not the eve before a major election. Unless they are really, really smart people who planned the update to screw with the vote in major ways. Hmm.

Potential case of vote fraud: The so-called glitch slowed down voting in two Georgia counties. Was it enough to cut the number of Trump voters who voted? How many votes did the untimely update impact? But, nothing to see here. Move on.

Unverified Signatures Scam

200,000 mail-in votes were verified only by machine. In Nevada, Clark County registrar of voters Joe Gloria set the factory setting on the machine to accept signatures with only a 40% match. That's hardly good enough to catch fraudulent voters.

In many states, mail-in voter signatures weren't even looked at. Absolutely ignored. Every vote counts—even the illegitimate ones. And every time such a vote gets counted, your legitimate vote is devalued just that much more.

Several thousand votes separate Biden and Trump in Nevada. But with a "verification" system that is meaningless, that number of votes could be produced with very little effort if there was an organized and deliberate desire to do so. — ShipWreckedCrew, columnist, RedState

Potential case of vote fraud: 200,000 votes (and possibly many more) simply slipped through the system. Indeed, they were intentionally slipped through to allow illegitimate votes to slip through, again and again, without verified signatures.

Competitor Cancellations

To win, try to keep minor candidates off your state ballots, especially the minority candidates (like the Green Party candidates) that might take votes away from your candidate.

In Pennsylvania, the Democrats sued to keep the Green Party presidential candidate off the ballot. They won their case at the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in September—a court dominated by Biden supporters.

Biden had 3,365,338 votes and Trump had 3,320,235 votes, a difference of 45,103 votes in Pennsylvania. Libertarian Jo Jorgensen had 77,654. If the Green Party candidate, Howie Hawkins, had been on the ballot, Biden would have had 40,000 to 50,000 fewer votes. In that case, Trump would have won the Pennsylvania election outright.

Potential case of vote fraud: Not exactly fraud, but certainly cancelling competitors is a great win to keep 30,000 to 70,000 people voting for you.

Early Voter Remorse

A survey from the Media Research Institute found that 17% of Biden voters regretted their votes. Surprising to some, 45% said they had never heard of the Biden scandals, ranging from the sexual assault allegations from Tara Reade, to the evidence of selling influence to China, other deals found in the abandoned laptop of Hunter Biden, or the Biden Crime Family. 9% of those Biden voters said they would have changed their votes based on the news of corruption, which had been suppressed on social media and ignored by mainstream press.

The Democrat call to cast your vote early worked in Biden's favor because many people had already voted by the time the Hunter Biden computer scandal broke.

It was all to Biden's benefit, because once he had the vote in hand, it was very easy to swing to the

The Time Travel Twist

In a remarkable twist of time, thousands of mail-in ballots were actually received before they were official sent (as measured by their postmark). That's our wonderful U.S. Postal Service in action—or a wonderful time travel twist. It's hard to think which it might be.

Thousands of Pennsylvania voters are recorded as casting a ballot days or months before the state claims they mailed out the ballot. In addition, thousands of more ballots were reportedly cast and counted during the summer but were never recorded as having been sent out by the state!

Potential case of vote fraud: All the thousands of mail-in ballots that defied the laws of time and space. This is no small matter.

If you truly believe in science, you have to question this time travel conundrum big time! It defies all laws of science now known to humans! But Democrats only believe in science when it's fake.

*Irregularities that raise questions about the remote voting process in Pennsylvania. How can someone request a ballot, receive it, and return it on the same day? According to the Epoch Times, more than 35,000 same-day ballots were recorded in Pennsylvania alone!

Yet the mainstream media have still not covered this shocking story. Why aren't they interested in time travel? This should be very big news.

The Stolen Ballot Jig

More than one Trump voter reported that they were not able to vote because someone had stolen their mail-in ballots and voted in their place. How would you feel if you came to the voting precinct only to find out someone else had already stolen your vote? That was devastating for too many legitimate voters!

A voter in Pennsylvania was told that he could vote provisionally. Why? Because he had been sent a mail-in ballot (which he did not receive!) and could not vote cleanly without bringing the unused mail-in ballot packet to the polling place. His vote was thrown into a box of provisional ballots that will never be counted.

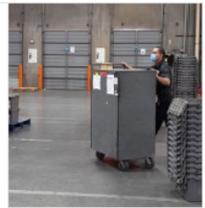

In Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, Republican voters who had for years voted in the same location were told their names were not in the voter registration book and, thus, they could not vote. Not even provisionally. How would you feel if you were so betrayed by your local election board?

Potential case of vote fraud: These cases might only add up to a hundred or more cases but, again, how would you feel if the vote fraud took away your legitimate vote? Quite honestly, we don't know how many voters were impacted by these shenanigans.

Witness Intimidation

Witnesses of fraud and some members of election commissions were only a few of the people who were intimidated by leftists, Democrats, and the mainstream media.

A legislative committee chairperson asked one witness a simple question: "But why is it that we're not having more people come forward?"

Melissa Carone answered:

I'll tell you why. My life has been destroyed. My life has been completely destroyed because of this. I've lost family. I've lost friends. I've been threatened. My kids have been threatened. I've had to move. I've had to change my phone number. I've had to get rid of social media.

Nobody wants to come forward. They're getting threatened. Their lives are getting ruined. I can't even get an actual job anymore because Democrats like to ruin your lives. — Melissa Carone, witness before the Michigan House Oversight Committee

The Threat Matrix

Vote counters, attorneys, and board certifiers have all been threatened over the contentious fraud carried out by Democrats and their allies. When you can't win clean, you make a threat. That's the motto of most people who carry out fraud.

Democrat Abraham Aiyash from Wayne County just threatened and doxed his fellow board member Monica Palmer's children, announcing names of their schools after calling their mother racist. She changed her decision shortly thereafter. — Miss Michigan tweet

The above threat had an impact on the Michigan general election for U.S. president and U.S. senator. How many other threats or potential threats also had impacts? We might never know.

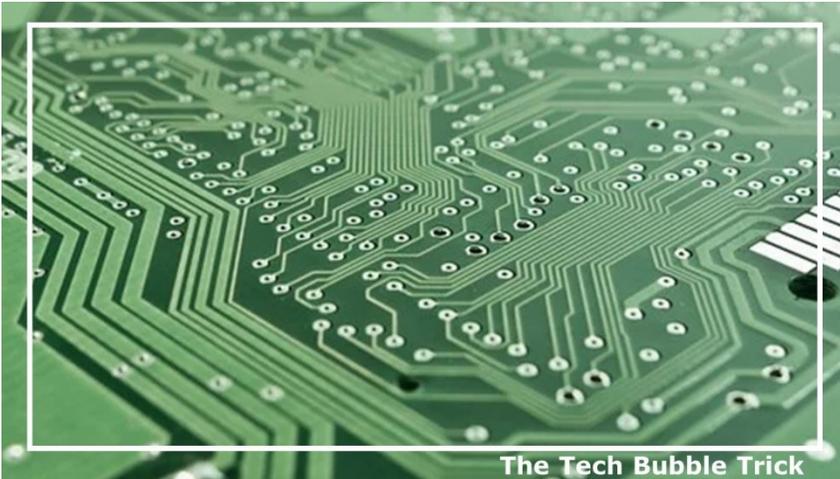

Another individual sent photos of a dead body and a threat of harm to the family of Monica Palmer—with photos of corpses attached. One of the messages asked Palmer to imagine the dead person as her daughter. Another message called her a terrorist for interfering in the election.

Meanwhile, GSA head Emily Murphy was denigrated and threatened for several weeks for not giving money to Biden for his transition (even though he had not yet been certified as president-elect). Thousands of people not only threatened her life, but also her family, her staff, even her pets!

Now after two weeks of constant organized harassment by Democratic groups and threats that are visible all over Twitter (not stopped in any way by Jack or the powers that be), Murphy has decided to cut resources to Joe Biden for the transition. ...

Democrats threatened a woman and her family to demand they be given power as soon as possible, even before officially declared by law. So, wait, tell me again, who is it that is breaking norms here? Who is it that is putting the country in danger?

Hint: it isn't Trump. — Nick Arama, columnist, Redstate.com

The Tech Bubble Trick

The election software used in 28 states produced a glitch that reversed the votes for candidates in Antrim County in Michigan. Biden won a very red county by thousands of votes, yet those votes actually belonged to Trump. Of course, this was blamed on a glitch.

When you hear that there is a "glitch" in the dark of night and votes got moved around, you can bet it wasn't the lightning strike or a broken water pipe. It was someone changing something. It likely left some tracks. — Jay Valentine

How many other counties in how many other states got caught up in the same glitch but were not rectified? How many votes were reversed?

Ringling Up the Votes

Ringling up the votes is what someone does when they add fraudulent votes onto a voting machine. This is what seems to have happened to millions of votes in the battleground states.

Headed into one of the most consequential elections in the state's history, Georgia's new electronic voting system is vulnerable to cyberattacks that could undermine public confidence, create chaos at the polls, or even manipulate the results on Election Day. ...

An investigation by The Atlanta Journal-Constitution shows, Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger's office weakened the system's defenses, disabling password protections on a key component that controls who is allowed to vote. ...

Either by tampering with individual voting machines or by infiltrating the state's central elections server, hackers could systematically alter the barcodes to change votes. — Alan Judd, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution (10/23/20)

Voting Machine Traitors?

Don't worry about the election. Trump is not going to win, I made fucking sure of that. — Eric Coomer, vice president, voting machine company

Eric Thompson, a voting machine representative and someone who scanned ballots in a Georgia county, worked as an official photographer for Senator Harris in 2019, according to his LinkedIn profile. He still has a portfolio online with photos he took of her:

Would you trust his vote counting, vote scanning, or his representation of voting machines to be fair? Or anything else he did during the 2020 election?

The Voting Machine Wipe

The compromised Secretary of State in charge of elections in Georgia ordered that Georgia's voting machines be wiped. Why? To hide malfeasance? This is called destroying evidence in any other court of the land. It's also called evidence spoliation in election speak.

The only reason the Georgia Secretary of State would order the voting machines to be WIPED is to destroy evidence. He is covering up his crimes. — Mike Coudrey, CEO, YukoSocial.com

Voting Machine Outright Fraud

Some voting machines were actually designed to be used for fraud.

Tremendous problems being found with voting machines. They are so far off it is ridiculous. Able to take a landslide victory and reduce it to a tight loss. This is not what the USA is all about. Law enforcement shielding machines. DO NOT TAMPER, a crime. Much more to come! — Donald Trump, U.S. president, tweet

Why are election officials afraid to have these machines audited fairly? What have they got to lose—other than a fraudulent election?

They are very scared of having those machines audited in Maricopa County, Arizona. The fact that the Maricopa County Supervisors are covering up crimes by refusing to comply with a subpoena shows you just how bad it really is. They know it would flip the state to Trump. — Mike Coudrey, CEO, YukoSocial.com

The Glitch Gimmick

When caught with an apparent mistake, fraud, or error, simply call it a glitch. This happened many times during the election count as software didn't work properly and procedures weren't followed.

It was a glitch in the software. It's no biggie. Nothing to see here. Move along.

Two other suspicious excuses are "clerical error" and "human error."

Ah, it was just a human error. No biggie. Nothing to see here. Move along.

A viral social media post allegedly showed several people who were over 118 years old casting their ballots in the 2020 election. Michigan's secretary of state's office said the error is a glitch in the system.

No biggie. Nothing to see here. Move along.

It's time for Trump to concede and move on. — Washington Examiner

Yup, no biggie. Nothing to see here. Move on.

Potential fraud? Every glitch, every human error, every clerical error, is likely real fraud. Glitches are deep fraud that likely affected the 2020 presidential election and possibly some of the down ballot races as well.

We really shouldn't accept excuses in such a close election. No glitches. No human error. No clerical errors.

It is a biggie. There is a lot to see here. We will not move along.

But then suddenly at 11:57 these votes had swapped. Biden was reported with 46,649 and Trump was reduced to Biden's former total of 37,133. These votes had swapped from President Trump to Biden – again a swap from a Republican to a Democrat. The net impact was 19,032 votes. — Joe Hoft, editor, The Gateway Pundit Potential case of vote fraud: Just this one case in a Wisconsin county switched votes from Trump to Biden in a split second. The result: 9,516 votes from Trump to Biden for a total difference of 19,032 votes, making Wisconsin a clear toss-up.

But no mainstream press covered any of these stories. Nothing to see here. Move along. Really?

The China Connection

A Newsweek story broke the day before the 2020 election. Its Headline? Very descriptive: 600 U.S. Groups Linked to Chinese Communist Party Influence Effort with Ambition Beyond Election.

China has a master plan to take over the world a little bit at a time. One of their key conquests will be the United States of America.

If I could communicate one thing to the American people from this unique vantage point, it is that the People's Republic of China poses the greatest threat to America today, and the greatest threat to democracy and freedom world-wide since World War II. The intelligence is clear: Beijing intends to dominate the U.S. and the rest of the planet economically, militarily and technologically. Many of China's major public initiatives and prominent companies offer only a layer of camouflage to the activities of the Chinese Communist Party.

I call its approach of economic espionage "rob, replicate, and replace." China robs U.S. companies of their intellectual property, replicates the technology, and then replaces the U.S. firms in the global marketplace. — John Ratcliffe, director of national intelligence

Wuhan Virus — As Tucker Carlson recently noted, the coronavirus pandemic was and is a global fraud perpetrated by China and abetted by powerful politicians and the deep state—all for the purpose of defeating Donald Trump in the 2020 Election and creating worldwide havoc. Again, it all started in China and was abetted by its agents in the U.S. and around the world.

Biden Crime Family — The Chinese clearly expect quid pro quo from the Bidens after paying his son and family more than a billion dollars. That's the way the Chinese work: They expect a return on their investments. And they got their money's worth when they rigged the election for Biden.

In a video, a top Chinese Communist leader spoke about the problems China had with Trump being president and how it needed to be fixed:

Prior to Trump's election, China had friends among the Wall Street elite who were able to step in and fix problems between the two countries as they arose from time to time. But Wall Street was not able to fix President Trump.

With Trump as president, the Chinese couldn't get any of their programs promoted, but they expect Biden to resolve any conflicts and give China all the perks of favored nation status.

Unlike other foreign-influence operations, those of the CCP [Chinese Communist Party] are not organized around sowing chaos in any single election. Instead, Chinese political interference seeks to create an environment conducive to the Party's political objectives in the long term. ...

CCP activity manifests in all the affected countries, its threat to proponents of democracy and human rights everywhere is constant in its seriousness. — Jimmy Quinn

Does China have an ownership stake in any voting systems? Did Chinese agents use software to ensure that Biden won? Is the Deep State only an arm of the Chinese Communist Party? Have the mainstream media been influenced by Chinese propaganda (surprise: the media often run Chinese press releases as if they are real news)?

These are important questions, but these are not questions the mainstream media or the Democrat party will ask or answer. They do not want these questions answered. The answers could reveal too much.

China is a malevolent force in the world, and their overriding consideration behind all political and economic policy decisions is advancing on the goal of displacing the United States as the preeminent military and economic power in the world. They understand that their window to achieve this goal is limited, and closing fast. — ShipWreckedCrew, columnist, RedState

This election is about far more than Trump versus Biden. It's about the future of America. Trump is the only thing standing between the land of the free and a takeover by globalists, including China and the United Nations, conquering America in the name of socialism and communism. — Brian C. Joondeph, columnist, American Thinker

We assess that China prefers that President Trump—whom Beijing sees as unpredictable—does not win reelection. China has been expanding its influence efforts ahead of November 2020 to shape the policy environment in the United States, pressure political figures it views as opposed to China's interests, and deflect and counter criticism of China. — William Evanina, NCSC Director

Did China Print U.S. Ballots?

A few whistleblowers have claimed that some electoral ballots were fraudulently printed in China. True? I don't know, but it's certainly possible.

A Chinese whistleblower has come forward claiming that over 5 million ballots were printed in communist China that were mailed and used in the 2020 United States elections.

Source: <https://thedcpatriot.com/chinese-whistleblower-comes-forward-claims-5-million-ballots-for-2020-elections-were-printed-in-china-for-us-elections-video>

If this is true, it is evidence of foreign Communist influence in the 2020 election. We don't know for sure who they favored with these ballots, but it is clear interference in our domestic election.

Chinese Propaganda

Some key propaganda from China about the 2020 presidential election came from CGTN, China Global TV Network. CGTN is an international media group that aims to provide global audiences with accurate and timely news coverage ... enhancing cultural exchanges and mutual trust between China and other countries.

The Chinese government didn't just want America or Donald Trump to lose, they apparently wanted Joe Biden to win. Cui bono? Biden has been thoroughly corrupted through the business dealings of his son, Hunter, according to well-documented public information and confirmed by Joe's own words. ...

There can be little doubt left that Chinese influences corrupted the 2020 elections, interfering on behalf of Joe Biden. Given their admitted bias against Donald Trump, is there any reason to assume the release of the virus and election interference wasn't a deliberate act of war? — John Leonard, columnist, American Thinker

Even forgetting about covert activities for a moment, the Chinese have continually spoken against Trump publicly while promoting Joe Biden, directly or indirectly. Nothing has ever been more obvious than the fact they wanted Trump to lose. This is clear intervention. — Bonchie, columnist, RedState

From the earliest days of the 2020 campaign, it was pretty clear that China was going all-in to try to hand the presidency to Joe Biden. This is not exactly a secret. — Streiff, columnist, RedState

1/5/21 - China Announces That It Won the 2020 Election and Expects to Collect on Its Investment.

China Conclusion

When Biden won, China won. They will control the president via his milk-toast son and Biden's own weak will and horribly past sins in international affairs. China will win everything they want without firing a shot. Did they influence the 2020 election? Absolutely.

China has invaded America without firing a shot, first by exploiting the moral weaknesses of people in the upper echelons of the political, educational, corporate, and entertainment world and second by using the Wuhan Virus as a bioweapon to psychologically place America under siege without an overt military effort. — Dex Bahr, columnist, American Thinker

What more has the Chinese Communists done to interfere with our political processes? And, more important, what more do they plan to do? These are important questions all Americans should be asking. These are also important questions that all American media should be asking. Where are the real journalists when we need them?

Sexspionage, graft, and influence peddling may once again put the CCP inside the Oval Office. Conspiring with Wall Street, media, and Hollywood to bring about a Trump defeat, along with the strong possibility that Joe Biden wet his beak on his son's China dealings, China now appears on a solid footing to achieve global dominance in the next four years. — Rick Fuentes, columnist, American Thinker

The social media billionaires and tech titans are all beholden to the Chinese. They will bend over backwards to get into the China market. As will the NBA, the Hollywood elite, and any deep state government official who wants to make big money.

Our pretensions to civilization have become very thin. Political violence was legitimized last year and is spreading wildly now. "Might makes right" is clearly the only principle behind freedom of speech.

That's why Chinese Communists will never be censored by Big Tech. — John Hayward, columnist, Breitbart

How did the Chinese state media react to Biden's inauguration? Simple: Good Riddance, Donald Trump! — China Xinhua News tweet. That's all we need to know about where China stands on Biden.

Even the leftist Associated Press recognized where China stands, by noting that China's sanctioning of U.S. diplomats under Trump "underscore Beijing's antipathy toward a U.S. administration it regarded as hostile."

China and Iran celebrating TRUMP Leaving office is all we need to know about the future of US. — @DoctorEmto tweet

China and Its Friends

Meanwhile, in another terrorist state, Iran's President Rouhani celebrated the departure of Donald Trump. In Rouhani's words, Trump was a stupid terrorist (obviously a stupid remark by a really stupid leader of a terroristic state).

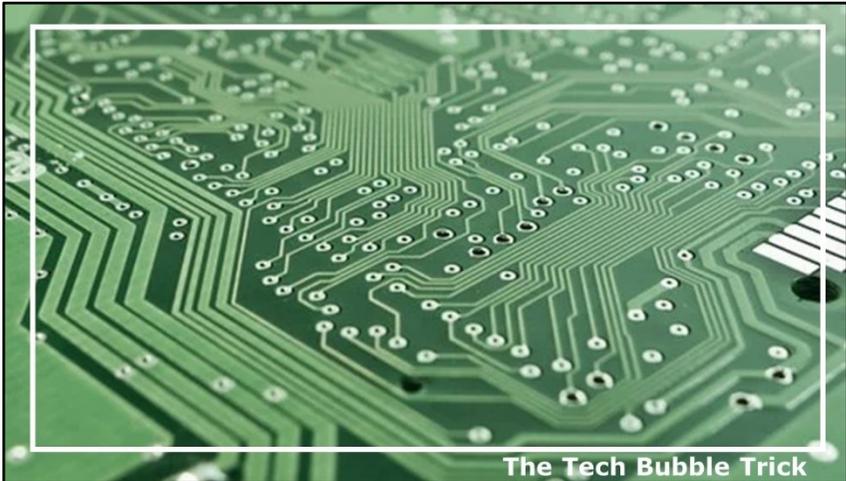

Source: <https://www.breitbart.com/middle-east/2021/01/20/irans-president-rouhani-celebrates-departure-stupid-terrorist-donald-trump>

It has become evident to our nation and the whole world that the policy of economic terrorism and maximum pressure has failed 100%. Of course, the Iranian people suffered under the pressure and economic war, but they endured ... and, through resistance, did not allow the enemy's goals to be realized. — Hassan Rouhani, president of Iran

The real people of Iran only have to endure the dictatorship and killing of the Iranian state. They have protested. They have resisted. And they will yet be heard. Someday Iran will rejoin the world as a sane country. Until then, the people endure.

My hope is that the people of China will come out to resist the terror, the fascism, and the evil of the Chinese state. The Chinese people are great and incredible people. Let them prevail in freedom!

Buy Votes Scheme

One of the grand old strategies for winning elections in the United States since the beginning of the country has been buying votes. In the 1800s, the way to buy votes was to offer free hard liquor to voters. Today, the way to buy votes is to spend a ton of money on TV commercials and social media ads for the side you want to win.

$100 million was spent by Democrats in their attempt to win the senate race in Maine. It failed.

In South Carolina, Democrat Jaime Harrison raised a record $57 million in the last three months of his campaign against incumbent Republican senator Lindsey Graham. And spent it. And still failed.

Dozens of super PACs and dark money groups spent nearly $141 million to influence the senate race in North Carolina. The Republican incumbent Thom Tillis still won, despite this wave of exorbitant spending to defeat him.

How many people spent money buying votes for Biden? We might never know. How many votes did they successfully buy? Again, we might never know.

Get Out the Vote – Pay for Play

Another sneaky way to buy votes is to set up Get Out the Vote systems that favor your candidates. It looks patriotic but still gives you the chance to spend more money to encourage people to vote for your candidates.

Mark Zuckerberg's Safe Elections Project gave $15 million to three counties that ultimately gave Biden the in Georgia. With the new rules, billionaires are buying votes and elections.

Did you notice in the 2020 election how billionaires like Soros, Zuckerberg, Gates, Steyer, Bloomberg, and others spent extraordinary amounts of money to get Biden elected?

Would it surprise you to find out that they funded the vote dumps, ballot harvesting, technical glitches, etc. that were all part of the 2020 election coup? I don't know if they funded the coup, but would it surprise you if they did?

Potential case of vote fraud: Three counties funded by Zuckerberg provided the difference in Biden's gain of 221,751 votes over Clinton's vote total in 2016. Not exactly fraud, but definitely a case of influence buying.

The payoff? The social networks will get away with more and more censorship under Biden—censorship of conservatives and Republicans and libertarians.

They will be given free rein to not just censor but also to persecute free speech. It will not be pretty.

And, sadly, money is now pouring into the two Senate runoff elections coming up in January 2021 in Georgia. These two races could be the most expensive political races in U.S. history. Will the side that spends the most win these races?

Let's hope that's not the case because the Republicans will be outspent by millions and millions of dollars.

Did Mark Zuckerberg's $350M Contribution to Safe Elections Project Improperly Influence 2020 Presidential Election? Yes, It Did!

Source: https://redstate.com/mike_miller/2020/12/19/did-mark-zuckerbergs-350m-contribution-to-the-safe-elections-project-improperly-influence-the-2020-presidential-election-n297209

Meanwhile, along the same lines, California secretary of state Alex Padilla illegally gave $35 million in taxpayer funds to a Team Biden firm for so-called voter education. Hmm, what voter education, or was it simply a payoff to make sure the right people vote for Biden?

Pay for Votes

The Nevada Native Vote Project used gift cards, electronics, and other gifts to bribe Native Americans to vote—and to vote for Democrats.

Democrats and liberal donors, such as Michael Bloomberg, George Soros, and Mark Zuckerberg, poured hundreds of millions of dollars into the states to take over legislatures, with unprecedented spending in Florida, Texas, and Pennsylvania. ... And all they got was a lousy T-shirt. ...

Money doesn't buy love with voters. — Stephen Moore, economics columnist, Washington Examiner

These billionaire donors tried to buy the votes of the American people to change the power structure in key states. Why? So they could steal more state electoral votes in 2024?

We Need to Know Who Are Buying Votes

In the national election as well as in the Georgia senate run-off elections, lots of money was spent, often dark money. This was a billion-dollar election, and most of the money came from the rich who support the deep state and DC swamp, because that's where their money comes from.

America is becoming a fascist state with big corporations getting into bed with the government and, in turn, getting payback for their work.

Fascism only comes about when the government and corporations link arms to censor the people and dictate to them the terms of surrender. Fascism cannot exist without the acquiescence of media, banks, entertainment, and other companies.

Having such large influences of outside and often dark money is concerning. It is both troubling from the transparency perspective, who is really funding these activities, and from a capture standpoint—what will those who are funding these activities expect in return for such large investments? — Dylan Hedtler-Gaudette, policy analyst, Project on Government Oversight

As Brendan Fischer, director of federal reform for the Campaign Legal Center, noted, “Elections increasingly look like a battle between billionaires and millionaires.” These money men are looking to buy influence and have things go their way!

We need to know more about who is donating to any election—because donors don’t give lots of money for nothing. They are looking for a return on their investment.

Voters have a right to know who is trying to influence their vote. Disclosure of donors tells voters who is trying to influence them, and also who potentially stands to benefit from the election of a particular candidate. — Brendan Fischer, director of federal reform, Campaign Legal Center

We can’t let our leaders be bought. We can’t accept a situation where fraud and corruption rule the government and often rule our lives as well. It’s bad enough that the deep state and DC swamp already rule us. We can’t let billionaires and multi-millionaires rule us through their money!

If members of Congress know that their election depends largely on their ability to convince people to give them money, it is a rational (albeit ethically dubious) choice to gear your activities and behavior toward the people who end up funding your campaign. — Dylan Hedtler-Gaudette, policy analyst, Project on Government Oversight

We need to get our voices back. We need to get our votes back. We need to have our votes be meaningful, so our government returns to being for the people and not for the rich. And not for the deep state. And certainly not for the DC swamp!

The Postal Dis-Service

Note: The postal carrier union officially backed Joe Biden for president. It seems they took a lot more actions than simply backing him to ensure that Biden won.

Check out these reports—with most of them backed by affidavits and videos.

Back-Dating Ballots

In Erie, Pennsylvania, a postal worker revealed in a Project Veritas video that his supervisors told his fellow postal workers to give any ballots that came in after the election to them. The supervisors then gave the ballots a November 3rd postmark AND delivered them. The postal worker swore an affidavit to this story.

Similar back-dating USPS efforts happened in Michigan and Nevada as well.

Toss Out Ballots

Mail-in ballots have been found in a number of states—tossed in garbage cans, ditches, and other locations. It seems postal workers are working hard to make sure all ballots are not delivered.

Supplying Extra Ballots

According to a whistleblower affidavit, mail carriers supplied ballots to fraudulent voters in Las Vegas, Nevada. How many of these extra ballots were delivered by mail carriers?

Source: <https://www.washingtonexaminer.com/news/nevada-whistleblower-affidavit-alleges-disregard-of-mail-in-signature-verification>

Postal Sweeps

In Pennsylvania and North Carolina, postal workers were required to sweep postal buildings for missing ballots and then to deliver those right away to counting stations. Surprising to some people, these postal sweeps only occurred in Democrat strongholds. Fair play? Or foul play?

Potential case of vote fraud: With so many millions and millions of mail-in ballots, the fraud could be staggering—and number in the millions of fraudulent votes.

BREAKING: Another One! Erie, Pa. USPS Insider Exposes 'Nov. 3' Postmark Voter Fraud Scheme: Erie, Pa. USPS Insider: "We have to separate out the ballots and give them directly to the supervisors. www.projectveritas.com

USPS Trailer Disappearance

During Jesse Morgan's routine postal subcontract route from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, to Bethpage, New York, to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and back home to Lancaster, his mail trailer with thousands of mail-in ballots went missing from.

The postal supervisor in Harrisburg (where the ballots were intended to be sent) told him to drive home to Lancaster without unloading the ballots in Harrisburg.

After parking in the USPS parking lot that night, the next day, "As I arrived at Lancaster, at Lancaster's United States Postal Service facility ... my trailer was gone." According to later reports, Morgan had been delivering pre-filled ballots for Biden to the battleground state of Pennsylvania.

All of this was weird. I arrived at about the same time every day. The expeditor scans all my seals and barcodes and they unload me. But from the time I first arrived ... everything got weird. ...

But as things became weirder, I got to thinking and wondered why I was driving complete ballots from New York to Pennsylvania. I didn't know why, so I decided to speak up. — Jesse Morgan, USPS subcontract driver

USPS Driver Who Hauled Ballots from NY to PA Says Trailer Disappeared - Jesse Morgan, who drives for a USPS subcontractor, detailed the irregularities he witnessed while delivering ballots...www.breitbart.com

A printing shop in Michigan prints ballots for Delaware County, Pennsylvania and Lancashire County, Pennsylvania (this is normal). But along with the ballots it prints on contract and delivers to those counties, it prints some ballots that get diverted to Bethpage, New York.

There, a boiler room of folks fill in "Biden" (often without even voting down ballot). The ballots (which are forensically legitimate, given that they come from the same print shop as the good ballots) then get trucked into Pennsylvania and mailed. Hundreds of thousands.

We have all of that documented. Texts, statements, affidavits, everything. — Patrick Byrne, founder, Deep Capture (in a series of tweets)

Social Media Censorship

Search Engines Take Sides in the 2020 Election

Dr. Robert Epstein, an admitted Hillary Clinton voter, predicted that social media bias and search engine leanings could impact up to 15 million votes in U.S. elections. In November 2020, Epstein reported that he had already found that Google alone turned 6 million votes in the 2020 presidential election. All for Biden.

Google suppressed search results for Breitbart News. Now they slap "nutrition labels" on articles about voter fraud. This is a form of election interference that will likely continue. — Joel Pollak, columnist, RedState

Social Media Takes Sides in the 2020 Election

In 2020, most of the social media networks were also clearly biased against Trump and for Biden. Would Trump have won by 10 million votes nationwide if the tech billionaires had not been opposed to him but treated both sides fairly?

Twitter censored posts by Trump while votes were still coming in across multiple states on election night 2020. Twitter blacklisted angel families for days after the election. And Twitter continues to censor so many conservative voices but allows Antifa and BLM terrorists free reign.

Social media censors have assured us that there's no evidence of any wrongdoing. — William Sullivan, columnist, American Thinker Facebook censored conservative groups and posts. It also demoted any posts that shared election misinformation (as defined by the Facebook very biased censors). Facebook actively worked to promote Biden as the good guy and Trump as the bad guy in the 2020 election.

*Hashtags on Parler denoting Trump's favorite conspiracy theories—#Dominion, #Sharpiegate, #QAnon—trend freely, without the restrictions Twitter and Facebook have instituted to suppress them. — Tina Nguyen via Politico Prominent Conservative voices were getting suspended by Twitter after the election. Accounts belonging to Mark Levin, David Limbaugh, Evan Sayet, and Streiff were suspended after tweeting about this:

Joe Biden's votes violate Benford's Law, a mathematical law describing the natural distribution of numbers (versus those that are clearly fabricated like Biden's votes).

The decision of Silicon Valley companies to censor information during the election had a profound effect whose true impact may never be fully known. We do know this: Biden would not have won the 2020 election without their help in censoring Trump and Biden-related negative stories.

Twitter regularly censored the U.S. president as well as the New York Post's news reporting on the financially corrupt escapades of Hunter Biden, Joe Biden, and the Biden Crime Family.

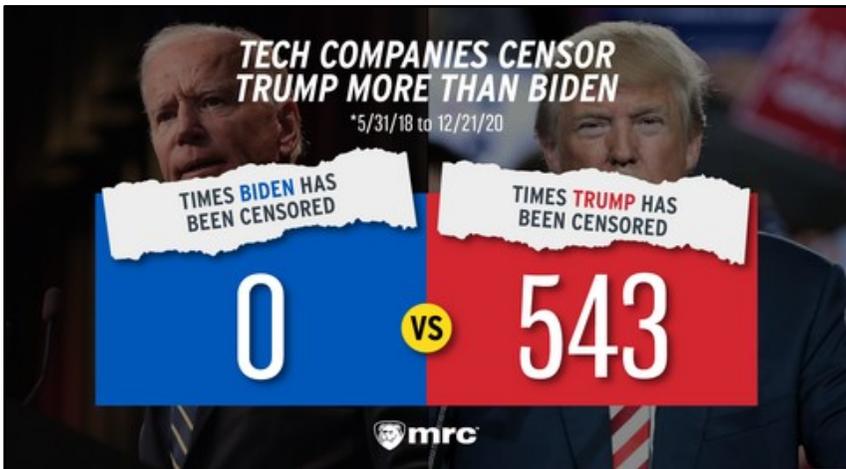

It pays to have social media censors on your side when you are rigging an election. You can't (and couldn't) tweet about the Democrats stealing an election. Twitter will ban you. Guaranteed.

As the social media censors have noted: There is no evidence of fraud. Nothing to see here. Move on. Their claim is absolute fraud, absolute censorship.

The tech monopolies spent the final weeks of the presidential election suppressing the voices of Trump supporters and hiding damaging information about his opponent Joe Biden. That happened. We saw it firsthand. We experienced it. ...

If we are going to have real and fair elections going forward, then we have to end Silicon Valley's total control of information. It's the first thing we must do. We can't have free and fair elections without that. If voters aren't allowed to learn critical facts about political candidates before they vote, you can't have a democracy. — Tucker Carlson, anchor, Fox News

All the institutions that are meant to defend the public interest just sat on their hands and watched as these big tech oligarchs developed the most powerful censorship machine for controlling and manipulating information, and swaying elections, that we've ever seen, and we're now all living with the consequences. — Allum Bokhari, author of #Deleted: Big Tech's Battle to Erase the Trump Movement and Steal the Election

Potential case of voter manipulation: 15 million or more voters were influenced by the lies and so-called fact checks of the billionaire titans of social media (who clearly had a stake in the election).

Even leftist political websites noticed the stake that the big-tech titans had in this election:

Biden's transition team has quietly recruited employees from Google and Facebook, who will, shockingly, concurrently work for the transition team and their respective companies. — Politico

During the election and the two months after, Twitter, YouTube, Facebook, and other social media kept saying something like this on any post or video questioning the validity of the election:

The Electoral College has confirmed Joe Biden as president-elect.

Since the inauguration, they've dropped most of these notices, except for YouTube which continues to state the following on the videos published by most conservatives, even when they are NOT talking about the 2020 election!

Joe Biden is the President of the United States.

And, yet, he is only president because of the 2020 Election Coup by the Democrats and their allies.

Twitter Censorship

Perhaps Twitter is just God's way of reminding us that most men are flawed, depraved, and not nearly as bright as they think they are.—David Harsanyi, columnist, National Review magazine

On January 8, 2021, Twitter banned Donald Trump, the U.S. president, permanently. As they put it, After close review of recent Tweets from the @realDonaldTrump account and the context around them we have permanently suspended the account due to the risk of further incitement of violence.

Twitter is now literally doing the bidding of the Democrats. ...

Facebook and Instagram already suspended Trump for at least two weeks and possibly permanently.

Shopify even pulled MAGA goods from their online stores. Because MAGA hats are apparently evil now.
— Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

President Trump's @Potus account was still active for a few days, but Twitter began deleting all his tweets, including the following which I was able to capture before it was deleted. They also deleted posts on any other official White House twitter accounts as well as Trump's campaign accounts. They were vicious and relentless in their censoring activities.

As I have been saying for a long time, Twitter has gone further and further in banning free speech, and tonight, Twitter employees have coordinated with the Democrats and the Radical Left in removing my account from their platform, to silence me—and YOU, the 75,000,000 great. ...

We will not be SILENCED! Twitter is not about FREE SPEECH. They are all about promoting a Radical Left platform where some of the most vicious people in the world are allowed to speak freely. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Team Trump, the White House, the Potus account, radio talker Kevin McCullough, @Techno_Fog, Sidney Powell, Michael Flynn, and Tracy Beanz have all been taken down or banned.

The video statement that inspired Twitter to dump Trump was a simple call for peace. Sharing the video resulted in other users also being banned by Twitter. Check it out, since you won't find this statement on Twitter or Facebook or Google or Instagram or YouTube or Snapchat:

I know your pain. I know you're hurt. We had an election that was stolen from us. It was a landslide election, and everyone knows it, especially the other side. But you have to go home now. We have to have peace. We have to have law and order. We have to respect our great people in law and order.

We don't want anybody hurt. It's a very tough period of time. There's never been a time like this where such a thing happened where they could take it away from all of us—from me, from you, from our country. This was a fraudulent election, but we can't play into the hands of these people.

We have to have peace. So, go home. We love you. You're very special. You've seen what happens. You see the way others are treated that are so bad and so evil. I know how you feel. But go home. And go home in peace. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Now, that's my president! Speaking truth amid a stirring call for peace.

He made a similar call for peacefully making our voices heard right before the Capitol incursion. Here is what he actually said (note that he never called for violence):

We have come to demand that Congress do the right thing and only count the electors who have been lawfully slated. I know that everyone here will soon be marching over to the Capitol building to peacefully and patriotically make your voices heard.
— Donald Trump, U.S. president

With their censoring of Trump, did Twitter violate a court order? Perhaps we'll find out in court later this year, if any court jesters still have any honor.

Years ago, a court ruled that it was unlawful for the President to block people on both his personal and his POTUS accounts. The reasoning being was his tweets are deemed as part of the public record of the Presidency. In its ruling, the court declared that when Trump blocked anyone on the account it became a case of "unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination."

This leads to the question—if he was prevented from denying access to his messaging, how is it acceptable for the provider to deny his messaging outright? Did they not discriminate against his viewpoint with this action? — Brad Slager, columnist, RedState

So, will there ever be a public record of Trump's tweets. Will Twitter suffer for its irresponsible and biased censorship? Will courts actually step in to stop this fascist behavior by Twitter and other social media? Will the billionaire tech titans be stopped?

Meanwhile, Rush Limbaugh deactivated his Twitter account (as have many other Trump supporters, such as Dan Bongino who is no longer tweeting).

Twitter is going after anyone they think is violating the narrative. They've now booted a slew of well-known influencers on the right. More pointedly, they took down the people who were not posting anything offensive that would violate the terms of service but were questioning things about the Democratic narrative about the facts. — Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

Many people lost Twitter followers, often thousands at a time: Tammy Bruce lost 7,000, Leo Terrell 16,000, Catturd 15,000, Richard Grenell 53,000, Elijah Schaffer 15,000, Jesse Binnall lost 6,000, Kirstie Alley 9,000, Dave Rubin 7,000, Mark Lutchman 25,000, James Wood 15,000, and many others.

There is no point engaging in a national conversation on a "forum" that is in actual fact a propaganda organ. — James Wood, actor

Since people lost thousands of followers, there's a good chance that Twitter shut down thousands of users (users that are shutdown don't count towards a person's follower numbers).

Hollywood celebrity idiots are now celebrating Twitter's ban of Donald Trump, the current president of the United States. Check out some of their hateful comments:

This is the most important moment in the history of social media. The world's largest platforms have banned the world's biggest purveyor of lies, conspiracies and hate. To every Facebook and Twitter employee, user and advocate who fought for this—the entire world thanks you! — Sacha Baron Cohen, actor

The entire world does not thank them. And anyone who believes in free speech has to be horrified by these actions. If these social media billionaires truly wanted to cut out hate and lies, they'd censor these millionaire Hollywood haters and liars.

This move by Twitter and Facebook are the biggest blows to his fascism. — John Cusack, actor

Really? This kind of censorship was perfected by the Nazis in Germany before World War II. The Nazis were successful in cowing the people of Germany and were, thus, free to exterminate millions of Jews, run rampant over Europe, and cause the destructive violence of World War II. Celebrating this kind of censorship is the work of blind idiots.

Here are a few more celebrations by Hollywood's dumbest so-called celebrities, such as actress Julia Louis-Dreyfus, "What the [expletive deleted] took you so long @jack?" and actor George Takei, "I'm feeling Jacked today." And actor and active Trump hater Mark Ruffalo, "Thank you @Twitter & the board."

I wonder what he meant by the board. Apparently, he loves censorship as much as many people loved the draft boards of the 1960s.

Thank you #Twitter! Church bells ring throughout the land, so everyone knows! It's over! Trump suspended from inciting to violence on Twitter! — Bette Midler, one of the most hateful Hollywood idiots (such a good singer, but such a hateful heart)

First, I doubt she's heard a church bell in years. She does not sound very Christian. Second, Trump never incited anyone to violence. The tweet that apparently led to his Twitter ban was a video call to stop the violence. But, then, when did we ever expect to hear common sense or truth from hateful Hollywood celebrities or social media billionaire censors?

Gollum has lost his precious. — Mazie Hirono, U.S. senator

I don't know how the people of Hawaii have tolerated this hateful senator for so long. Hirono was a charter member of the Hate Speech Hall of Shame. She seems to spout anti-Trump hate talk at least once a week, as have too many of the hateful Hollywood liars.

Meanwhile, on Twitter:

The Ayatollah of Iran and the Chinese Communist Party are still able to Tweet. What an absolute joke. And a disgrace, @jack — House Judiciary GOP tweet

Silencing a significant number of voters and erasing history is no way to unite us; it only further divides. Big tech & social media platforms want to act like media orgs but don't want to be held accountable with the rest of media. Speech should be free whether you agree or not. — Ben Carson, secretary of Housing and Urban Development

Even the very liberal opinion editor at Newsweek magazine was appalled:

Who elected Jack Dorsey and Mark Zuckerberg to dictate the terms of our 21st-century town square?
— Josh Hammer, opinion editor, Newsweek

Another Twitter competitor, Gab, added almost a million people per day since Parler was shut down. But Twitter deleted their tweet about that success. Why? Terrorism, I guess. It's clearly terrorism to tweet out your success, especially against Twitter.

Strangely, Twitter's public policy condemned internet shutdowns in other countries. Check out their virtuous tweet:

We strongly condemn internet shutdowns—they are hugely harmful, violate basic human rights and the principles of the #OpenInternet. — Twitter Public Policy tweet on January 12, 2021

Except, of course, in the United States. And, of course, if it is a competitor. Or, of course, if it's Trump. Here's the tweet slightly reworded:

We strongly condemn internet shutdowns of Parler and Donald Trump and other Trumpers. Shutdowns are hugely harmful, violate basic human rights and the principles of the #OpenInternet. — what should be Twitter Public Policy

Twitter's stock price took a dive as did those of Facebook and Google. "Memo to Twitter:

Remember MySpace,” wrote Monica Showalter, columnist at American Thinker.

Twitter is clearly biased. No reasonable person would think otherwise. Just check:

According to Twitter, if you're calling attention to heaps of voter fraud evidence that threatens a Democrat politician's political power then you're cancelled. If you call for the hanging of a Republican vice president, however, you are a trending topic. — OANN report

Big Tech Billionaire Censors

Both Apple and Google banned Parler, the anti-Twitter social network, from their app stores. Then Amazon shut down their servers. Apple warned Parler: Crack down on free speech or be banned! Parler championed free speech—and, thus, was banned by the social media billionaires!

Boom! Censorship became universal as the big tech billionaires worked to take total control over the expression of free speech (and truth!) in the United States. At the same time, they gave Communist China a free reign of terror and suppression of their own people, not only in the real world but also on the internet and in social media worlds. China gains as the people of the United States of America lose everything.

Even a leftist progressive model was concerned about the absolute power of billionaire social media kings and tech censors.

This gives Facebook/tech/Zuck THE MOST POWER. If he can shut the president up/off he can shut any of us up/off. — Emily Ratajkowski, progressive activist and model

She is correct in being concerned about the big tech and social media billionaires (as well as the finance and hedge fund billionaires). They are out to rule the world, not just the United States. You will not have the freedom to speak anymore, not unless you can speak approved speech.

Leftists are so blinded by their hatred for Trump that they do not understand how absolutely terrifying it is that tech companies can censor the sitting President of the United States. They will not get it until all of their freedoms are gone. ...

The [big tech billionaires] are creating a monopoly. Then want no ideas or conversations that they are not able to control. They do not want conservatives communicating with one another. — Candace Owens, author and activist

Email provider Campaign Monitor, Paypal, Discord, Reddit, Twitch, TikTok, SnapChat, and Pinterest piled on, all banning content related to Donald Trump, the president of the United States.

Many of these same services also banned free people like you and me from supporting the president or talking about election fraud, social media censorship, and related topics.

President Trump is the duly elected President until noon on January 20th. If our President's communication capabilities have been cut off, it means we have been overthrown & Democracy in America has officially ended. — Melissa Tate, political commentator, tweet

Glenn Greenwald, a long-time progressive political commentator, didn't mince words:

A handful of Silicon Valley oligarchs decide who can and cannot be heard, including the President of the United States. They exert this power unilaterally, with no standards, accountability, or appeal. Politics now is begging them to silence adversaries or permit allies to speak. That the ACLU can't issue a clear, definitive statement about Silicon Valley oligarchical monopolies radically expanding their control over political speech—see if you can figure out what this even means—speaks volumes not only about ACLU but how repressive this moment is. — Glenn Greenwald, co-founder, The Intercept

In a later interview with Tucker Carlson, Greenwald continued his condemnation of the tech oligarchs:

A tiny handful of tech oligarchs are more powerful than any nation state. They determine what we can hear, what we can speak, what is true, and what is false, with zero accountability and zero transparency. They overwhelmingly donated to the Democratic Party and support the Democratic Party. — Glenn Greenwald, progressive libertarian

Eventually, the ACLU was able to bring itself to mildly condemn the censorship from these social media power monopolies run by billionaires:

It should concern everyone when companies like Facebook and Twitter wield the unchecked power to remove people from platforms that have become indispensable for the speech of billions. — American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU)

Below are a few more points showcasing the billionaire tech censorship as well as other moves to ban free speech. It was a social media pile on by billionaires who do not care about the common people, but only enjoy exploiting them.

- ❑ Facebook deleted the Walk Away page, including more than half a million Walk Away testimonials (the Walk Away page promoted leaving the Democrat Party).
- ❑ YouTube terminated Steve Bannon's War Room podcast while half a million people were watching in real time!
- ❑ Vice President Pence unfollowed Trump on Twitter, encouraged by the Twitter mafia.
- ❑ The gun AR15.com website was dropped by GoDaddy for hosting the site.
- ❑ Facebook censored a video of Cardinal Juan Sandoval Íñiguez, archbishop emeritus of Guadalajara, because he suggested that globalists were exploiting the coronavirus pandemic to bring about a new world order.
- ❑ Google Play went after a free speech website called Minds. Google gave them 24 hours to make a lot of changes and to moderate their site. Or else.
- ❑ Christian crowdfunding site GiveSendGo dropped Paypal after the payment service demanded GSG censor campaigns on its site.
- ❑ CNN tried to get Fox News banned.
- ❑ Facebook cancelled the conservative group, StopTheScalpings, with 113,000 members.
- ❑ Facebook censored the term "Stop the Steal" from both Instagram and Facebook.
- ❑ Amazon pulled all "Stop the Steal" merchandise.
- ❑ Mexican Summer record label dropped Ariel Pink.

- Publisher Simon & Schuster dumped senator Josh Hawley's book, The Tyranny of Big Tech, obviously to protect the billionaire tech overlords. It was later picked up by Regnery.

Facebook permanently banned PatrioticMe, a retailer advertising pro-America products. Why? Terrorism, I guess. It's clearly terrorism to be patriotic, especially on Facebook or any of the social media dictatorships. And also on Amazon, GoDaddy, Paypal, and more. And, really, don't be patriotic in the real world!

Hey @JoeBiden and @KamalaHarris, Good Luck telling other countries they can't silence, censor, or shut down their political opponents. This is a crisis for the American brand, and you are celebrating the (temporary) power that comes with it. — Richard Grenell, former ambassador

Here's more from the tech titans, this from the nonprofit Mozilla group that supports the Firefox browser many people use to access the internet. The CEO of Mozilla is calling for the silencing and/or permanent removal of people, websites, and anything else they don't agree with.

*The rampant use of the internet to foment violence and hate, and reinforce white supremacy is about more than any one personality. Donald Trump is certainly not the first politician to exploit the architecture of the internet in this way, and he won't be the last. Changing these dangerous dynamics requires more than just the temporary silencing or permanent removal of bad actors from social media platforms. — Mitchell Baker, Mozilla Firefox

Baker is another California progressive who actually believes that Trump and his supporters foment violence and hate AND reinforce white supremacy. She is caught up in the same isolated, inner circle thought control that dominates too many of the tech elite and their foot soldiers.

For all of the claims that Trump is a tyrannical maniac, he has seen his various social media accounts dismantled in a very swift fashion. What is revealing: the silencing of opposition voices is the very method carried out by tyrants. — Brad Slager, columnist, RedState

ShipWreckedCrew, another columnist at RedState, noted that big tech, having absorbed the political views of social justice warriors, but it has now moved to silence political opposition via its dominance in social media.

This must end! And it might well end when Republicans come back into power in a fair and truly secure election in 2022.

We are well on our way to a Chinese-like social credit system, except here, the arbiters of your fate will not be faceless bureaucrats. Here the people who strip you of the ability to communicate with friends, make a living, and even travel will be the vicious and vindictive employees of Google, Facebook, Twitter, and the major financial services companies. — Streiff, managing editor, RedState

After all this censorship, it's not hard to see how the big tech billionaires influenced the 2020 election as well. They hated Trump and his supporters. They have now found a way to eliminate both.

Foreign leaders who are not necessarily fans of Trump decried this censorship from the billionaire oligarchs of the internet. Note how the president of Mexico says it's an issue of government.

How can you censor someone: "Let's see, I, as the judge of the Holy Inquisition, will punish you because I think what you're saying is harmful." Where is the law, where is the regulation, what are the norms? This is an issue of government, this is not an issue for private companies. — Andrés Manuel López Obrador, president of Mexico

Even the key opposition leader in Russia has denounced the work of Twitter.

Don't tell me he was banned for violating Twitter rules. I get death threats here every day for many years, and Twitter doesn't ban anyone. ...

This precedent will be exploited by the enemies of freedom of speech around the world. In Russia as well. Every time when they need to silence someone, they will say: "This is just common practice, even Trump got blocked on Twitter.” — Alexia Navalny, opposition leader, Russia

And here’s another European leader who has called out the social media censorship by high tech and social media billionaires:

Algorithms or the owners of corporate giants should not decide which views are right and which are not. There can be no consent to censorship. — Mateusz Morawiecki, prime minister, Poland

Around the same time, German chancellor Angela Merkel asserted that lawmakers should set the rules governing free speech and not private tech companies.

Similarly, the French finance minister Bruno Le Maire said that the billionaire digital oligarchy is not responsible for regulations. Indeed, he called big tech “one of the threats” to democracy.

Facebook and Twitter are perfect examples of socialism: You get it for free. You have no say in how it works. The guy who runs it is rich. They control your access to information. You have no privacy, and if you say anything they don't like, they shut you up. — Torben Mark Pedersen

Section 230 could end up destroying the social networks that sought to censor American thought and promote only one side of the discussion.

Once a company decides to eliminate the very basis by which they gain access to Section 230 protections, we enter into a problem. ... They cannot, however, hide behind a protection, granted on the basis those services are to remain free and open and act in a manner which would otherwise have them facing legal repercussions for their actions. In other words, they want their cake and to eat it too. — Scott Hounsell, columnist, RedState

As radio host Glenn Beck noted a number of years ago and reminded people again recently: “High tech will need the government, and the government will need high tech. And they will work together to preserve their power and their position. This is what's happening, today.”

And, it’s what happened in this very fraudulent 2020 election.

This is not the end of this. This is where the Left is starting. Those who persist in standing for freedom of speech, freedom of expression, freedom to assemble, freedom to keep and bear arms, those people will be targeted for deletion. You will be hounded, boycotted, fired, ostracized, and de-platformed. And the louder and the more significant and effective your voice is, the bigger the target is on your back. — Glenn Beck, radio host

Is our country really building toward being a fascist or communist nation? Or are we just moving toward total ruling party control? That’s fascism for sure.

No wonder Zuckerberg, Dorsey, and Brin are precisely implementing just that—a 21st-century version of total ruling party control. The merciless, preordained purge of dissidents is a well-known tradition of all leftist ideologies.

If they burned books and exterminated about 100 million innocent souls in the 20th century, we should not expect their ideological successors in the 21st to do anything different from what they are doing now. — Gary Gindler, columnist, Gary Gindler Chronicles Podcasts Banned!

The Associated Press news service jumped on the censorship bandwagon by calling on podcasts to also be dropped, banned, and censored.

Podcasts made available by the two Big Tech companies let you tune into the world of QAnon conspiracy theory, wallow in President Donald Trump's false claims of a stolen election and bask in other extremism. — Associated Press article

While calling for censorship, the AP also bought into the false claims theory of stolen elections. And basked in its own extremism.

Spotify already removes any podcasts that “violate its policies against hate speech, copyright violations, or break any laws.” Of course, if that’s what you want to see, you can ban anything for one of those three reasons.

Apple iTunes also has guidelines that allow it to “prohibit content that is illegal or promotes violence, graphic sex, or drugs—or is otherwise considered obscene, objectionable, or in poor taste.” Again, this allows Apple to censor anything it doesn’t like. That simple: It’s objectionable. What I find obscene is the censorship that’s happening to only one side of the discussion. That’s true violence.

Ban the Lot of Them!

When Apple decided to delist Parler from its app store, they said that decision was due to the fact that Parler was responsible for the content that appeared on its platform. Really?

If so, then other social media websites should also be responsible for their content and should be banned by Apple as well: Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, Twitch, Snapchat, YouTube, Amazon, etc.

But, of course, Apple will not be consistent in applying their own rules. Leftists and their allies are never consistent. It appears that consistency is not in their genes.

Without any warning, Facebook goons canceled conservative Facebook group StopTheScalpings (STS), co-founded by longstanding San Francisco radio personality Melanie Morgan and Brian Maloney in 2017. The group has 113,000 members. — Sally Zelikovsky, columnist, American Thinker

After those bans, Facebook lost $47.6 billion in market cap, costing billionaire Zuckerman billions of dollars. Good job, free markets! And, still, Facebook works against its investors and its users.

We are now removing content containing the phrase 'stop the steal' under our Coordinating Harm policy from Facebook and Instagram. ... With continued attempts to organize events against the outcome of the US presidential election that can lead to violence, and use of the term by those involved in Wednesday's violence in DC, we're taking this additional step in the lead up to the inauguration. — Facebook news release

Such idiots! The Stop the Steal campaign had nothing to do with violence, but when has any of the social media billionaires actually paid attention to common sense or reason.

Sadly, Amazon also pulled all, not a few, but all Stop the Steel merchandise from the site. I hope Amazon also suffers a market cap drop that cuts Bezo's billions in half. That would be true justice. This I know: I will spend less on Amazon this year. And next year. And the year after. Will you?

Amazon terminated its contract with free speech platform Parler for "violent content on your website." But Amazon itself deals with merchandise that advocates the death of all Republicans or specifically targets President Donald Trump. — MRC News Busters

What violent products are still on Amazon? Here are a few:

- Kill all Republicans t-shirt
- Hospitalize your local fascist t-shirt
- Punch TERFs clothing
- Be the guillotine you want to see in the world t-shirt
- Donald Trump knife rack (with the head of Trump filled with steak knives)
- drawing of Trump blowing his brains out t-shirt
- ACAB merchandise
- and so much more

Never before have a few companies had the ability to silence the entire conservative movement. Now, a handful of tech companies can censor both the people and the ideals of the right through a dangerous combination of computer programs and deliberate censorship. — MRC TechWatch

Billionaire Real World Censorship

The social media kings are now encouraging cable companies to censor Newsmax and OAN, the only current truth-tellers on cable TV. These censors are also urging the takedown of the apps for OAN, The Epoch Times, and more.

These billionaires are working hard for absolute power, for control over every person's life, dreams, decisions, and hopes. What will they leave us with?

Pretty soon, our throats will be cut. What else can they do after censoring and censoring and censoring anyone who questions their revealed truth? They will have to cut our throats and, sadly, seem willing to do that.

We just want the truth. Let the truth come out. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Here is a plan that many on CNN and MSNBC, as well as many Democrats, advocated:

We regularly discuss what the Big Tech companies have done to poison the public conversation by providing large platforms to bad-faith actors who lie, mislead, and promote conspiracy theories.

But what about TV companies that provide platforms to networks such as Newsmax, One America News — and, yes, Fox News? — Oliver Darcy, media idiot, CNN

In Darcy's proposal, he suggested—actually insisted—that cable companies ban conservative channels. If they did not follow his suggestion, he accused them of being complicit in the incursion in the Capitol. Guilt by association by association by association until anyone or any company could be called out for complicity.

This is how censors work. This is how socialists work. This is how potential fascists work.

If Darcy truly cared about the spread of disinformation, he would be checking his own network and others like it. He would acknowledge that left-leaning organizations have been deliberately pushing various falsehoods about the president and his supporters for four years.

But, Oliver Darcy is not a journalist. He is a media activist. There is a distinct difference between the two, isn't there? Yet, we can still give him points for trying. — Jeff Charles, columnist, RedState

Another call for banning an entire TV network from a writer and MSNBC analyst:

It's time for this question to be front and center: Should Fox News be allowed to exist? Brain-mashing as a business model shouldn't be legal. — Anand Giridharadas, publisher, The.Ink

Not to be out-done, Bill de Blasio, the mayor of New York, cancelled the services from the Trump organization for various New York sites. They want to wipe the memory of Donald Trump off the map and out of history, online and offline. That's sad.

Now, the real world tried to censor Trumpers as well. Check out this news story from Publishers Weekly, the magazine of record for the book publishing industry.

In an open letter, more than 250 authors, agents, booksellers, and publishers urged publishers not to sign book deals with members of the Trump Administration or anyone who incited, suborned, instigated, or otherwise supported the January 6, 2021, coup attempt. — Publishers Weekly

Publishers calling for censorship! Really?

This is one reason I chose to go with a much smaller publisher open to new voices.

Facebook and the social media oligarchs are trying to knock out their offline competitors and help their partners on CNN as well as YouTube:

We have to turn down the capability of these Conservative influencers to reach these huge audiences. ...

There are people on YouTube for example that have a larger audience than daytime CNN. ...

We are going to have to figure out the OAN and Newsmax problem. These companies have freedom of speech, but I'm not sure we need Verizon, AT&T, Comcast, and such bringing them into tens of millions of homes. — Alex Stamos, former chief security officer, Facebook

What happens in the next presidential election? It's only four short years away. Will the billionaire censors perfect their bans, censorship tricks, and illegal activity by then?

What's to stop them in October of 2022 coming into Texas and saying they don't like one of the candidates, so they're just going to de-platform them off everything. What would the recourse be?

I'm not sure there's any recourse right now under law. Even if there was, by the time you sued, it wouldn't make much of a difference. And so, they have really opened Pandora's Box on this. — Ron DeSantis, governor, Florida

DeSantis went on to call out the treatment of Parler by the big kahunas: Apple, Google, and Amazon, all owned by billionaire oligarchs out to censor anyone and any ideas they don't like. That makes them, according to DeSantis, more powerful than state or federal governments. Is that scary? Or what?

This was a coordinated assault on a company that was trying to compete and so I think about that and say, okay, if they can do that, that means the big tech oligarchy is in some ways, in many ways, more powerful than the government itself. — Ron DeSantis, governor, Florida

Now they're waking up to discover they won't even be allowed to SPEAK any more. Sorry, chumps, but you don't have enough might to protect your "right" to free speech. You're all classified as violent extremists now. The people with real Might have passed judgement on you. — John Hayward, columnist, Breitbart

Take Action Against the Billionaire Censors

Here's the truth: The free speech crackdown on social media is actually evidence that electoral fraud happened during the 2020 election.

Lots of fraud, not some occasional instances of fraud, but massive electoral fraud with millions of fraudulent votes. Why else would social media be censoring so many?

In light of the active censorship of Donald Trump and other Trumpers by Twitter, Facebook, Amazon, Apple, Google, Instagram, Snapchat, GoDaddy, Paypal, and YouTube, it's time to take real action.

Here are some actions you can take right now. You probably can't do all of them. But try to implement at least three of these actions.

- Delete your Twitter account. When was the last time Twitter actually offered you value?
- Switch your search engine to DuckDuckGo: it is private, and your personal search history is secure. You won't be sold down the river.
- Stop shopping at Amazon. Or cut how much you spend there. Cut hard.
- If you host your website on Amazon Web Services, switch to Epik.
- Don't buy Apple products. Stop spending your money with a socialist friendly company.
- Don't subscribe to Apple TV. And Disney Plus. And Hulu. And Netflix. Unsubscribe these socialist streaming platforms.

- Don't update your iPhone if you have one.
- Watch videos on Rumble rather than YouTube.
- Don't buy Facebook ads. Don't buy Amazon ads. Don't buy Google ads. Or, at the very least, cut back on advertising.
- Visit social media networks you can't give up only once a week.
- Don't give these censor-happy social networks the money they get simply from your visits to check on family or friends.
- If you host your website on GoDaddy, switch to another host.
- Spend less via Paypal.
- Spend less via Stripe.
- Delete your useless Instagram account.
- Delete your useless Snapchat account.
- Delete until it hurts! Stop spending until it hurts!
- Delete your internet cookies every day, or at least once a week.
- Use a good VPN network to protect your privacy.
- Join Parler, Gab, MeWe, and other social networks that promise to give you freedom of speech—and never ban you for posting your true thoughts, your passionate feelings, and your heart-felt opinions.
- Join Donald Trump's networks as they develop. Or follow him to networks he joins.

- Call your representatives and senators and call for reform of Section 230.

Any of these actions will impact these billionaire-owned companies on their bottom line. Twitter and Facebook have both already lost billions in market value. Make these censors pay!

At the very least, stop using these despicable services every day. Limit what you do on social media. Limit your internet searches. Cut their life-blood by your actions!

Rethink your relationship with big tech! — Dave Rubin, host, The Rubin Report

Free yourself of social media and search engine tracking cookies. Use a good VPN network to protect your internet activities. Don't let these social networks and search engines sell your information and track all your activities online.

Facebook rewrote its algorithms to dramatically reduce the traffic of conservative websites. ...

What this means is that the information you are allowed to hear is increasingly controlled by a small, completely unaccountable group of far-Left-wingers that live in Silicon Valley.

These are people with pronouns in their bios and MAO posters on their walls who believe everyone to the right of Tulsi Gabbard and Joe Manchin is a white supremacist. Do you trust them to be the arbiters of what news and opinions you are allowed to consume? — John Hawkins, Bongino.com

How do you defend yourself against such people and websites? First, get off Facebook NOW! Get off Twitter NOW! Start living a real life NOW!

Two headlines reveal some movement against these censorship efforts and billionaire bullying.

Poll: Over 80% of voters favor limiting the power of Big Tech in the U.S. Maybe this will cause power-hungry censors to be more cautious and judicious.

In the wake of the Trump ban, Facebook rival MeWe gains 2.5 million members in one week. That's a big number—especially if even half of those people also left Facebook.

Governments Take Action

One piece of good news: North Dakota is working on a law to allow its citizens to sue any website with more than a million users if they are censored by those sites. Their penalty for such censorship is way too small to dent the mindset of these censors, but other states might follow suit with much larger penalties. And that could make a very big dent in the profits of any social media and big tech censors!

[Websites with a million users would be] liable in a civil action for damages to the person whose speech is restricted, censored, or suppressed, and to any person who reasonably otherwise would have received the writing, speech, or publication. — proposed North Dakota law on censorship

A law introduced in Poland's parliament would allow anyone who has been a victim of social media censorship to be paid a fine of $2.2 million. Now, that's a law with teeth—and a good bite!

If only 10,000 of Poland's 37,865,542 population pursued their remedies with a strong financial incentive, Facebook would have to pay $220 billion.
— Jonathon Moseley, columnist, American Thinker

That would eat into a number of billionaire fortunes in a very big way.

Pray for the Censors

Pray for these people. They needs lots of prayers.

Pray every day for them. Pray hard.

God bless these idiots and fascists who are trying to obliterate Trump and his fans.

Trump will not be obliterated out of the hearts or minds of the people who believe he has been good for America and good for the world.

Voter Suppression by Polls

We can wonder why all the polls were wrong, but one reason so many polls were so terribly off is because too many of the polling services have become arms of the Democrat Media Complex.

Voter Suppression up the Yinging

In an attempt to suppress Trump voters, various polls obviously tried to convince Trump voters that it would be hopeless to vote for Trump when the polls so clearly and overwhelmingly favored Biden (by up to 18%!). The polls tried to convince the American people that there would be a huge blue wave for Biden and the Democrats. As it turned out, it was a red tsunami on the down ballots, but a sad loss for Trump (as called by the media first and later by the electors).

Four of the final five Wisconsin polls had Biden up by as much as 8 points, with one having him up by 17. He won Wisconsin by .62%.

Senator Susan Collins of Maine never led any poll all year, yet she won by 8%.

Only one pollster saw the Republicans winning any House races, and yet they won at least fourteen. The pollsters were predicting a Democrat wave that never came. Such poor predictions serve only one purpose: to suppress votes.

If you pay attention only to the polls and the mainstream media narrative, you'll believe that, even though the presidential race is tightening, Biden still maintains a lead and can handily win the upcoming election.

However, if you look at the information on the Twitter feed of Ronna McDaniel, the GOP chairwoman, you'll see an entirely different story and one that is more in sync with Trump's well attended rallies compared to Biden's anemic afternoon teas. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

Fundraising Suppression

Sadly, the polls also affected fundraising. Everyone wants to back the winning party. Rigged polls can cut off the fundraising spigot.

Are the Pollsters Done?

Pollster Frank Luntz stated that the polling industry was done after its poor 2020 forecasts:

<https://www.theblaze.com/news/steven-crowder-election-millions-viewers>.

On the other hand, pollster Nate Silver weakly defended his industry:

<https://dailycaller.com/2020/11/05/nate-silver-defends-fivethirtyeights-election-predictions>.

No!te: 7 Reasons Pollsters Deliberately Lie to the Public: Why would American pollsters whore out their credibility by deliberately rigging polls ... www.breitbart.com

Potential case of voter suppression: The polls could have suppressed voting by 20% or more, but probably didn't.

That's because smart people don't trust polls any more. The polls are too easy to manipulate to get the answers the pollsters want rather than the true expression of what the people think or believe.

Polls have become intertwined with the electoral process. Fluctuations are hyped by the mass media. Political surveys are reported constantly on 24-hour cable news. They flash through myriad online sources and are quoted regularly by prestige newspapers.

The numbers guide campaign strategies and shape the public policies of candidates. — Bill Boyarsky, Fall 2019

The polling services did it again by publishing fake polls in the Georgia Senate runoff. A SurveyUSA poll in early December 2020 showed Ossoff beating Perdue by a margin of 50-48 and Warnock beating Loeffler by a margin of 52-45.

These numbers are off any reality. Why? Because the poll oversamples Democrats by three points: 44% Democrats, 41% Republicans, and 11% independents. Yet, according to HotAir's Ed Morrissey, the actual turnout in Georgia on the 2020 general Election Day was 34% Democrats, 38% Republicans, and 28% independents.

Don't pay any attention to media pollsters. Please don't. They're all crap. All liars. All proven liars who have been deceiving and lying to you for at least three election cycles. — John Nolte, columnist, Breitbart

Non-Polling Metrics

The 2020 presidential election polls were so biased, manipulated, and untruthful that it's now clear that the polling services are merely another arm of the mainstream media and the Democrat party.

All the non-polling metrics, however, pointed to a Trump landslide. The only reason that a landslide did not happen is because of the election fraud carried out in a few Democrat-controlled cities.

What non-polling metrics point to a Trump landslide? Here are a few:

Party Registration Trends

Republicans were registering voters in greater quantities in battleground states than Democrats, often by a two to one margin! They had the voters eager to vote for Trump!

Primary Votes

Primary votes received by each candidate clearly showed that Trump was far more popular among independents and Republicans and a lot of Democrats than Biden was. Trump won his primaries with 95% plus of the votes.

Enthusiasm for the Candidates

Campaign events revealed two things: The people who showed up were far more enthused to vote for Trump (by numbers as high as 50,000 to 13).

Plus, Trump was far more enthusiastic to be out on the campaign trail than bumbling, dementia-riddled Biden. Trump saw the numbers, and the numbers told him he would win.

When you see thousands of people lining up to attend his rallies, no matter the weather, you've got to believe that they're also going to make the effort to vote. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

The Ground Game

The Republicans had a far stronger ground game than the almost nothing ground game of the Democrats. There was absolutely no comparison of the pre-election ground games.

What the Democrats did have, however, was an election worker ground game in a few big cities in six battleground states. It was those election workers who gave Biden the victory.

Social Media Followings

On Twitter, for example, @realDonaldTrump had 88.8 million followers while @JoeBiden had 20.2 million followers (1/4 of Trump's followers!).

In addition, a key Twitter alternative, Parler, broke out in early June to host millions of Trump supporters talking to each other.

Online Searches

Searches for Trump out-paced searches for Biden, even with Google's on-going censorship and favoritism (often sending Trump-interested traffic to Biden sites).

Digital Media Ratings

Broadcast Ratings

Fox News Network had a bigger audience than either of the liberal networks, MSNBC and CNN. Its primetime TV shows matched the combined viewers of MSNBC and CNN.

The Number of Donors

The number of donors, especially small amount donors, was far higher for Republicans than for Democrats.

Democrats took in big money from the tech elite, the Wall Street elite, the Hollywood elite, etc. but did not take in much money from the middle class or poor.

Election Betting

More people bet on Trump winning than for Biden. Many online betting sites had not paid out to the apparent winner bets until January.

Tweets

U.S. senators mentioned Trump 12,569 times in tweets while only mentioning Biden 486 times. This ratio of Trump vs. Biden tweets held for general tweets from real people as well.

The Cookie Poll

The swing-state Ohio bakery that correctly predicted the winner of the last nine elections with its cookie poll showed Trump in the lead right before the election. The Busken Bakery chain in Cincinnati said it had been predicting the results using the sales of its red and blue election cookies for more than 30 years.

In 2020, all of these non-polling metrics went for Trump and indicated that he would win the election.

Why were they ALL wrong in 2020 when in previous elections, they all predicted the resulting winner of the presidential elections?

You would have to believe that all these historically accurate measures all suddenly were wrong to believe that Trump lost. — Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

Here Are Some More Troubling Questions About the Election Numbers - Folks on the left and in media have been downplaying or mocking any questions about the legitimacy of the election...redstate.com

Media Mayhem

The mainstream media have become complete hacks for the Democrat party. CNN, MSNBC, New York Times, Washington Post, ABC, NBC, CBS, etc. no longer know how to be objective or fair. They've spent four years denigrating Trump and are now celebrating their victory for Biden.

It really helps if you are going to steal an election to have a compliant media to ignore your cheats and celebrate your victories.

Note how the mainstream media have ignored all the news about Hunter Biden and the Biden Crime Family just as they ignored Hillary's homebrew email server and the clear selling of influence via the Clinton Foundation.

Even this year, CNN called the Kenosha riots "fiery but mostly peaceful protests" as cars and buildings burned in the background. Bias? Yup! Truthful? No way. Fair? Objective? Journalists? None of those.

What the mainstream media doesn't understand is that we the people have eyes and ears. We can see that they are lying—over and over again.

Despite the media trying to tell everyone "give up, go home, we know who we want to win." That's not how it works. We need to follow the law, and that means allowing the legal process to play out. — Ted Cruz, U.S. senator

Over the past four years, members of the establishment media threw off all pretense of objectivity and launched a full-out assault against the president and those who support him. They aren't going to stop now, and the conservative movement better be ready to push back harder. — Jeff Charles, columnist, RedState

They spent this whole year hyping up a virus, instigating violent race riots and, of course, calling the president a racist. Their hard work appears to have paid off. Congratulations to the media—they've earned this victory! — Eddie Scarry, Washington Examiner

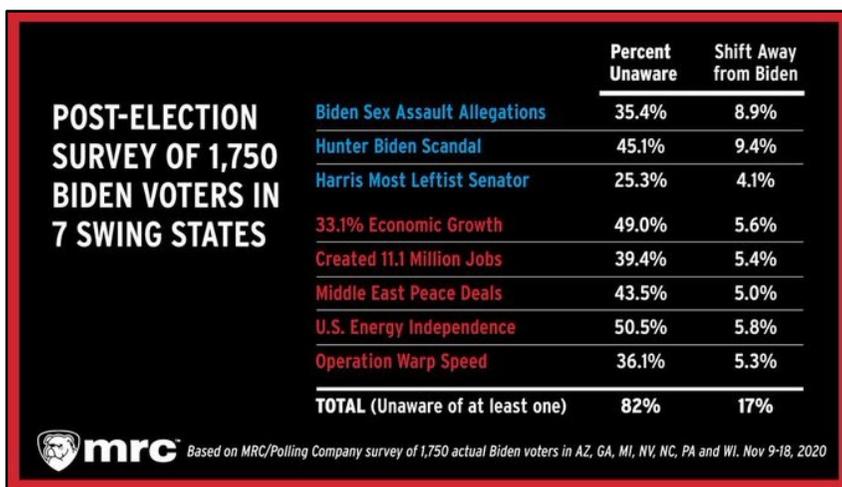

Potential case of voter manipulation: Probably not much. With the mainstream media's reputation for lies, fake news, and idiot opinion pieces, they currently have very little in the way of influence or respectability. I suspect more people would vote against the fake news articles and shows from the mainstream media.

The media are actively trying to block a fair and impartial look at what happened on election night, actively looking to suppress and dismiss evidence, even before it's presented; aggressively trying to shut down investigations, aggressively trying to stop even run-of-the-mill recounts and canvasses. The media are un-American, evil, and terrified of what might be uncovered. — John Nolte, columnist, Breitbart

A Biden administration is going to be an absolute disaster. It'd be nice to have a news media that actually attempted to hold him to account. — Bonchie, columnist, RedState

Will the fraud be exposed? That is not yet the question, as long as the media cries "What fraud?" alongside the Democrats. Joe Biden, the man-who-would-be-king, is proudly wearing the Emperor's New Clothes, noticing nothing out of the ordinary, and the media does not boast a single person of courage to note aloud that the Emperor does not have any clothes at all. — Jay D. Homnick, columnist, American Thinker

In one survey for MRC by McLaughlin & Associates, enough of Biden's voters would have switched their selection had they known about his son Hunter's money scandal to give Trump a victory. In that poll, 4.6% of Biden's voters said they would not have selected him had they been aware of his son's China money affair.

In the second, done by the Polling Company for MRC, 17% of voters would have shifted away from Biden had they known about Biden's scandals and Trump's achievements.

Tucker Carlson did an epic rant last night about how media and Big Tech had basically stolen the election right in front of us for Joe Biden, whatever else went on in the actual election itself. — Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

Potential case of voter manipulation: Here are the numbers for key battleground states, according to MRC polls. Check out all of the voter betrayal and manipulation:

In Pennsylvania, 15% of Biden voters said they would have defected. Using the reported vote totals as of noon on November 19, this would have reduced his total by 518,204 votes, flipping the state to Trump.

In Michigan, the percentage who would have left Biden was 14%, deducting 392,966 from his tally and flipping that state, too.

In Georgia, 15% of Biden's voters say they would have defected based on full information, taking 370,838 votes out of his column, and putting Trump comfortably ahead.

In Arizona, 21% say they would have changed their vote, deducting 351,150 from Biden's column and putting Trump in front there, too.

In Wisconsin, Biden would have lost 13% of his voters, taking away 211,987 from his column.

In Nevada, the percentage of those who would have left Biden was 18%, or 126,627 voters. Such a shift would have put both of those states in Trump's column, too. — Rich Noyes

<https://www.newsbusters.org/blogs/nb/rich-noyes/2020/11/24/special-report-stealing-presidency-2020>

Potential vote fraud: 518,204 + 392,966 + 370,838 + 351,150 + 211,987 + 126,627 = 1,971,772 misplaced votes resulting from the mainstream media hiding the news about the Biden Crime Family.

And six states Trump would have won if the news had actually been news in the mainstream media.

Not that it wasn't crystal clear before Election Day, but in the weeks since, the mainstream media has dropped any lingering pretense of objectivity in their "reporting."

We've seen examples galore of what state-run TV is likely to look like under a possible Biden-Harris administration from media performance artists like PBS NewsHour's Yamiche Alcindor to CNN's Brian Stelter and his colleague Jake Tapper, just to name a few. — Sister Toldjah, columnist, RedState

Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame

Here are a few of the charter members of the Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame: CNN national political reporter Maeve Reston and Bloomberg News political reporter Jennifer Epstein, both reporting on candidate fashion sense as news!

And Washington Post national political reporter Matt Viser reporting on guitars!

Three supposed political reporters doing the nice thing for Democrat candidates and appointees. Almost as if they were publicists for the DC Swamp!

Recently, NBC reporter Andrea Mitchell noted that a huge crowd of career DC-entrenched politicians were “not going to be political.” A senior Washington correspondent, Mitchell is stating for the record that for the next four years she is not going to be professional but rather political herself.

I do think that there needs to be a degree of investigations, and also a postmortem on what happened, and our institutions, where they softened, where they didn't hold. ... You can't let all these things go by and just pretend that they'll never happen again. We have to do something about the many perils that this president put toward our democracy. — Mika Brzezinski, MSNBC talking head

Stephen Colbert, host of CBS's The Late Show talked about Obama as a starstruck fan:

I just want to take a moment to drink you in for just a moment. Because I'm having to get used to looking at a President. — Stephen Colbert, host of CBS's Late Show with Stephen Colbert

And here's one more member of the Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame: Jim Acosta, perhaps the most partisan and hateful reporter to ever cover the White House:

You have a President who I think is pretty dishonest a lot of the time. I am not comfortable calling the President out for his falsehoods and lies, but it is part of our job and something we cannot shy away from. And I think that process has upset the President, his team, and a lot of his supporters, and I think that is why you see so much hostility directed at us, simply because we are correcting the record and making sure the American people have the facts. — Jim Acosta, CNN White House reporters

Acosta actually loves calling out Trump for "his falsehoods and lies." Acosta revels in it because it gives him more airtime. Acosta the Brave! Or, more accurately, Acosta the Preening Idiot.

One more member of the Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame: Jorge Ramos of Univision.

We journalists should have been tougher on Mr. Trump, questioning his every lie and insult. We should not have let him get away with his racism and xenophobia. — Jorge Ramos, Univision anchor

The person who really got away with racism was Joe Biden, a politician who frequently associated with actual KKK leaders.

We have a news complex that takes huge offense at a President who lies, and who calls them liars. They then feel free to lie as they see fit, but cannot grasp why people are just as upset with them—as they ended up proving him correct.

When liars tell us to condemn liars they are pointing at a mirror—whether or not Jim Acosta is using it at the moment. — Brad Slager, columnist, RedState

The Media's Most Fevered Conspiracy Theory Just Died a Fiery Death - There is perhaps no less self-aware, or no less shameless if you rightly assume bad motives, of a group than the...redstate.com

The first danger is the media. They cannot be trusted. Their credibility has long been suspect, but they are little more than a Democrat PR firm. They not only refused to call out Joe Biden on his corruption, but actively suppressed any stories relating to it.

Going forward, the so-called "fourth branch" can no longer consist of just the officially recognized journalists. They must forever be supplanted by citizen journalists who will disseminate information through means outside the control of the government and corporations. Americans have a right to hear all sides to all stories. — Rodney Willis

We Needed the Result We Got - There are two elections the Democrats have never gotten over: Bush v. Gore, and Trump v. Clinton. ...www.americanthinker.com

At the end of the day, what the media have done for the past four years is inane, shallow, vulgar, and mean-spirited to the point of evil, but the steady drumbeat works. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker

The tragedy of these lies in the United States is that the narcissistic reporters are doing this voluntarily. The notion of honest reporting is utterly alien to them. For them, truth is always defined by their ideological needs. Even worse, if they stop toeing the party line, they might find themselves disinvited from the cool kids' parties and forced to hold a real job (or maybe learn to code) somewhere in flyover country. — Andrea Widburg, columnist, American Thinker Powerful interests shape the news and information online. Those powerful interests include the deep state, tech billionaires, nonprofit crusaders, media billionaires, junk bond billionaires, corrupt politicians, and more.

The media at large announced it was committed to undermining and ultimately removing Trump from office, which only served to prove his point about their bias. It's no accident that reporters are asking one-sided, hostile questions of Trump but softball questions to the other side. Too often, reporters are no longer trying to get at the truth; they are trying to advance a particular narrative or 'take' on a story. This means they serve as willing vessels for propaganda and talking points. — Sharyl Attkisson, author, Slanted: How the News Media Taught Us to Love Censorship and Hate Journalism

When the blockbuster jobs report came out in October, the Washington Post and MSNBC posted this stupid headline: “Economy added 638,000 jobs as growth slows.”

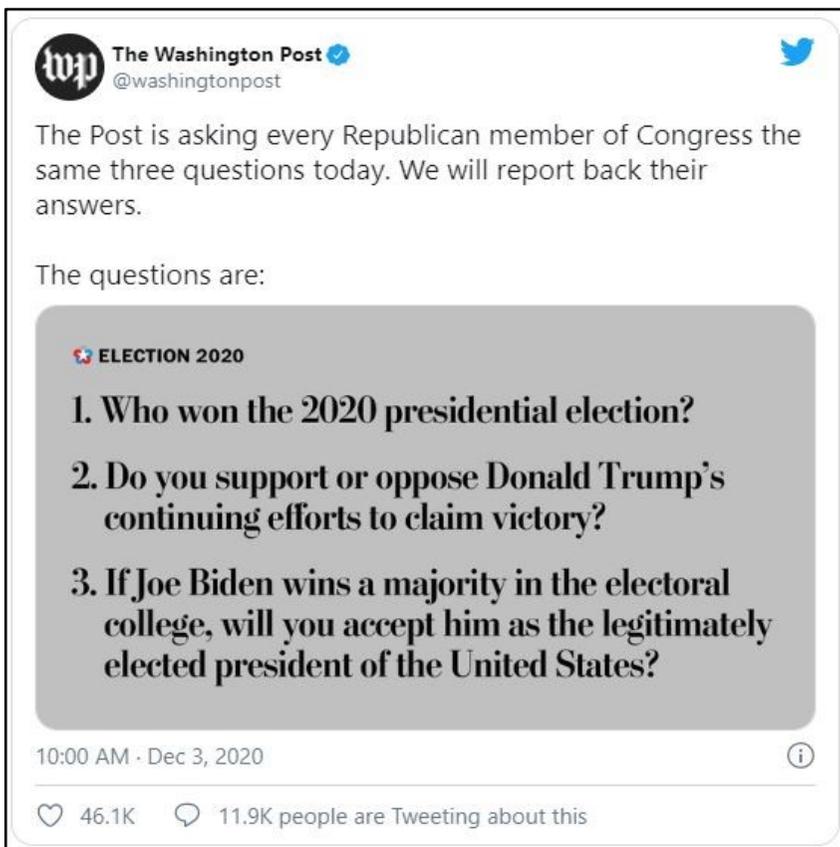

Why is the media disparaging the Trump recovery? One reason is that anti-Trump derangement syndrome is such a truth-altering virus in the newsroom that they can't give Trump credit for anything. — Stephen Moore, economics columnist, Washington Examiner

On December 5, 2020, the Washington Post asked Republican members of Congress three questions:

- Who won the 2020 presidential election?
- Do you oppose or support Donald Trump's continuing efforts to claim victory?
- If Joe Biden wins a majority of Electoral College votes, will you accept him as the legitimately elected President of the United States?

The Post didn't care about the answers to these questions. They simply wanted to force Republican members of Congress to take a stand—and to pit Republican against Republican. And pitting some of the Republicans against Trump. A win-win for the leftist media cause.

Democrat campaign workers, posing as journalists, and other Democrats do not care about election integrity, the truth, unity, science, kids, the poor, the middle class, minorities, women the LGBTQ community or anyone else.

They only care about leftists winning and power to infect the country with a known virus. That virus is a government run by leftists to move the country rapidly backwards towards socialism.

The greatest existential threat to America's survival as a great country and democracy is not COVID, nor Russian collusion, nor China, nor climate change and most certainly is not Trump legally challenging the results of an election.

It is a complicit, compliant, sycophant, puppet media which supports Democrats no matter what they say or do. — Jack Hellner, columnist, American Thinker

And here's another really stupid member of the shameful Mainstream Media Idiot Hall of Fame. National Public Radio is an arm of the Democrat party. They have been for many, many years.

Why haven't you seen any stories from NPR about the NY Post's Hunter Biden story? ... We don't want to waste our time on stories that are not really stories, and we don't want to waste the listeners' and readers' time on stories that are just pure distractions. — NPR Public Editor tweet

NPR doesn't want the truth. Why waste time on the truth? The mainstream media also don't want the truth. Nothing to see here. Move on. Move on quickly. Do not believe the truth. We are the truth.

Is that true? Or did you hear it on CNN? — T-shirt

I will be adding more shameful members of The Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame over the next few years. Whether it's a Biden administration or a Trump administration, the media will continue to reveal their partisanship and blindness. You can follow the 400+ members of the hall of fame here:

<https://www.myincrediblewebsite.com/the-mainstream-media-idiots-hall-of-fame>

Show a member of the leftist media the volumes of incontrovertible evidence that the Democrats massively cheated on Nov. 3rd to defeat President Trump and they will melt down all the while denying the obvious. ...

They had carefully planned to steal the election. They thought they could make it happen under the radar. Program voting machines to flip just enough votes at the margin to secure a Biden win. Submit all those fake ballots marked only for Biden. Count those ballots submitted by dead people. Count those ballots multiple times. Sure. That will work. Have hundreds of thousands of pristine, unfolded, ballots ready to go if needed. Truck them to be counted from New York to Pennsylvania? No problem. Bring them out from under the tables after you've thrown out the Republican observers? The bad news is, they got caught. — Patricia McCarthy, columnist, American Thinker

CNN would not book Republicans. They called them liars, when it was actually them doing all the lying. Have they no shame? Do they have consciences? Will they ever be real journalists again? Their hosts can't acknowledge reality. They can't speak the truth. They only know Democrat propaganda.

[Republicans] are so mendacious I just wouldn't put them on air. Kayleigh McEnany. I never booked her. Jason Miller from the Trump campaign, I would never book him. These are just people who just tell lies the way that most people breathe, there was no value in that. This is just what she does, she tells lies all the time. She can't acknowledge reality. So I'm just not going to put somebody like that on air.
— Jake Tapper, host, State of the Union

Tapper, one of the pervasive liars ever to appear on mainstream media, talks about other people lying. His only challenger for Lying King might be Brian Stelter of the same CNN network. These people on CNN are media idiots.

We know the mainstream media protect Joe Biden, and a lot of other powerful people are all out to protect this guy. — Greg Kelly, host, Newsmax TV

The legacy media are the same lying, manipulative and controlling entity they have always been. They are the same legacy media who decried President George W. Bush as a Nazi and President Barack Obama as a hero. ... They know what they've been doing, and they know what they're doing now. — Ian Haworth, host, The Ian Haworth Show

The concerns raised by the media about influence in our elections was no more than a game of mafia for them. While they went around murdering people's credibility and fact-based reporting, they were pointing the finger at Vladimir Putin saying he was to blame. — Scott Hounsel, columnist, RedState

Now, establishment media outlets have transformed into something that barely resembles journalism. At this point, it does not make sense to refer to them as news outlets. Instead, these entities are now functioning as full-on leftist activist organizations bent on pushing a political agenda instead of ensuring that American society is informed. — Jeff Charles, columnist, RedState

That is most astounding in this development is not simply that they clearly steered away from a story for the sake of ensuring an election result, but the manner in which they did so.

This was more than just a coordinated whitewash, although it was most assuredly that; the press has now completely undermined its own practices to such a level that they can be regarded as corrupt. This is not hyperbole. The evidence is blatant, and it is very clearly laid out. — Brad Slager, columnist, RedState

During the Age of Trump, the liberal media sock puppets not only no longer try to pretend they're not biased—in what they publish, not what they say—they're actually proud of their blatant bias—to the point of believing they wear a badge of honor on their collective puffed-out chests, to prove their Trump-hating chops for all the world to see. — Mike Miller, columnist, RedState

Despite the front they put up for the American public, they know that this election was not immaculate, and they know that the cheating came from their side.

Since they are activists, not journalists, they have no interest in reporting on a significant story such as this and then letting their audience decide what they believe about the election. Instead, they wish to control the opinions people form, which is yet another reason why they deserve the "enemy of the people" label. — Jeff Charles, columnist, RedState

That the media spent the past year hypothesizing insanity that would make Coast to Coast blush is simply an indictment on how useless and partisan they truly are. — Bonchie, columnist, RedState

One of the ways you can tell if a story is damaging to the Democrats is to look at how their close friends and allies in the corporate press handle it. For example, it turns out the left-wing activists in the media really really really don't want you to know about the recent revelations regarding voting machines in Antrim County, Michigan, so they are refusing to report on it. — Jeff Charles, columnist, RedState

The Washington Post Speaks

Editorial writers at the Washington Post made the following specious argument.

Voting is how the American people express their political will. It underlies the legitimacy of our government—and so of our nation. ...

*Trump has reached a new low with his post-election attacks on voting, the foundation of our democracy, when in fact we just had one of the safest, best, and most participatory elections in our history. —
The Washington Post*

More misinformation from our mainstream media. This was clearly not one of the safest, best, and most participatory elections in American history. In fact, it was one of the worst, most fraudulent, and least participatory elections—unless, of course, you count the 2.6 million votes that were counted over and above the actual number of real voters.

Trump did not attack voting, the foundation of our democracy. Trump attacked election fraud. And he did it via legal and constitutional avenues.

Trump is the real champion of democracy and voting rights in the 2020 election, not the mainstream media which keep peddling lies and obfuscations.

The Washington Post article, as Jeff Charles argues, “is nothing more than a badly-argued and authoritarian attempt to promote censorship and suppression of views they don’t like.”

The Washington Post is clearly a charter member of the Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame. It joins all the other mainstream media who are involved in whitewashing an illegitimate election and the fraud the Democrats and their allies carried out.

Hollywood and the Media

Hollywood celebrities, the Hollywood mafia, and the mainstream media work as one. These points about the collusion between the mainstream media and Hollywood is excerpted from an article by Armond White, author of Make Spielberg Great Again, in a December 2020 issue of National Review.

The current collusion between Hollywood and D.C. means that we can no longer trust contemporary filmmakers to be honest about the media's efforts to control our thoughts and habits. ...

Hollywood has given TV's political journalists the fantasy and license to view their actions as unquestionable, and this has made the possibility of state media—the media as the megaphone and guarantor of the powerful and elite—no longer a threat but a likely probability. ...

This then leaves misinformed viewers susceptible to ruling-class edicts that come down to them from politicians through the uncritical media. While observing these apparatchiks, we should rethink why we ever gave them attention. ...

*It appears that they don't really believe in our civil liberties or private well-being. They don't have ethics. They may not even have genuine politics, only mendacity. When seen up close and personal, narcissistic journalists and activist journalists believe only in themselves. — Armond White, author, *Make Spielberg Great Again

A recent study by the Center for Media and Public Affairs at George Mason University found that during the month of September 2020, the late night talk shows of Jimmy Fallon and Stephen Colbert featured 469 political jokes about the presidential candidates. 455 made fun of President Trump. Only 14 concerned Joe Biden.

The media and Democrats and Hollywood are only talking amongst themselves. No one else is even listening. These institutions have turned it up to 11 for the past ten or so days, and have persuaded no one NO ONE to drop their support for Trump. — John Nolte, columnist, Breitbart

The media will not make fun of Democrats, but they are absolutely happy to make fun of Republicans over and over again. Any bias? Only if you think 455 versus 14 is a little lopsided.

Forbes Magazine Speaks

In a shameful display of partisanship and rude behavior, Randall Lane, the chief content officer of Forbes magazine, condemned those who worked for Trump to a jobless existence. In addition, he threatened any company that hired a Trump supporter with increased scrutiny and bad reviews.

*Let it be known to the business world: Hire any of Trump's fellow fabulists above, and Forbes will assume that everything your company or firm talks about is a lie. We're going to scrutinize, double-check, investigate with the same skepticism we'd approach a Trump tweet.

Want to ensure the world's biggest business media brand approaches you as a potential funnel of disinformation? Then hire away. — Randall Lane, chief content officer, Forbes magazine

I condemn the so-called world's biggest business media brand for this inexplicably partisan behavior. Such words should never come from a believer in free speech. The Forbes brand has been going downhill for years. It has now hit rock-bottom.

The never-Trumpers over at Project Lincoln joined the bullies and announced that they are also working to blacklist anyone connected to Trump.

At @ProjectLincoln we are constructing a database of Trump officials & staff that will detail their roles in the Trump administration & track where they are now. No personal info, only professional. But they will be held accountable & not allowed to pretend they were not involved. — Stuart Stevens, idiot

The Truth and Reconciliation Committees have begun to do their work. These media people are bullies. They are liars. They are working full-time to deceive the American people. There is a reason why they are known as fake news media.

Patrick Henningsen called out Steven's tweet, pointing out that the true Fascists are the Project Lincoln people and their allies in this blacklisting.

The true Fascists are showing their faces now. Only true Fascists draw-up a blacklist of their opposition and pursue them. Duly noted in history. — Patrick Henningsen, global affairs analyst

ABC News Calls for Cleansing

ABC News political director Rick Klein called for a serious cleansing in a tweet that has since been deleted. His statement also originally appeared in an ABC news story.

Trump will be an ex-president in 13 days. The fact is that getting rid of Trump is the easy part. [Unsaid: It's easy if you cheat and have the media helping you cheat.] Cleansing the movement he commands, or getting rid of what he represents to so many Americans, is going to be something else. — Rick Klein, ABC News political director

For your information, here is what History.com has to say about cleansing campaigns:

Though "cleansing" campaigns for ethnic or religious reasons have existed throughout history, the rise of extreme nationalist movements during the 20th century led to an unprecedented level of ethnically motivated brutality, including the Turkish massacre of Armenians during World War I; the Nazis' annihilation of some 6 million European Jews in the Holocaust; and the forced displacement and mass killings carried out in the former Yugoslavia and the African country of Rwanda during the 1990s. — History.com

Hmm, who are the Nazis now? Who are calling for cleansing? Who are censoring people? Who are trying to ban other news networks and social media competitors? Who are doing the cleansing? Who are calling for literal genocide?

Tech monopolies—FB, Google, Apple, Amazon—have more concentrated wealth & power than any in history. They have used brute force 3 times in 3 months to manipulate US politics: censoring NY Post, banning Trump, destroying Parler. And liberals are overwhelmingly supportive. ...

That these Silicon Valley monopolies are grave menaces to political freedom & economic well-being is not a right-wing view. The most comprehensive report warning of these dangers was issued 3 months ago by a Democrat House Sub-Committee. — Glenn Greenwald, progressive libertarian

Again, who are the real Nazis in America today? Well, let's see: ABC, MSNBC, CNN, Nancy Pelosi, dozens of other congresspeople, Twitter, Facebook, Google, Amazon, other web hosts, and more. All Nazis, as defined by History.com!

One would think that with control of nearly every single government agency (regardless of who is president), media, academia, corporate America, Big Tech, Big Science, Big Pharma, and every platform and venue of information flow across the entire internet, leftists wouldn't feel threatened by the presence of some dissenting views. ...

So why does the left feel it must crush every last vestige of conservative news, analysis, and debate even on off-the-beaten-path platforms? The answer is as troubling as it is obvious. They are fascists. But they are also cowards.

Anyone who thinks that trajectory charted from the Reichstag fire cannot happen again is clearly not paying attention. Those who seek not just to defeat an opposition but to silence the opposition always have an ulterior motive. And it's never a good one.
— Daniel Horowitz, senior editor, TheBlaze and host of the Conservative Review podcast

MSNBC Admits Complicity

In a startling display of un-self-awareness, MSNBC anchor and a Biden advisor announced they were working together to promote a leftist agenda. Check out this interview from mid-January 2021:

There's been a lot of people pulling for this. Your help has been extremely important because not only have you continued to amplify some of the things that we're trying to do here, but you've been in the weeds and you've talked about the very policies that have been knocking around for a long time and that we finally have been able to get together and put into a plan. So, I want to thank you for your advocacy as well. — Jared Bernstein, Biden advisor

To that compliment, MSNBC anchor Stephanie Ruhle responded:

Well, Jared, if you're going to compliment me, there's always more time for that in our show. We're going to continue to cover this. Do you know why? Because policy matters. That's how people's lives change. — Stephanie Ruhle, MSNBC anchor

Not only is MSNBC going to continue covering Biden's agenda, but they are also going to promote it over and over again. Or, as Bernstein said, "Thank you for your advocacy."

CNN Tanks for Biden

Those outlets that propagate lies to their audience have unleashed insidious and uncontrollable forces that will be with us for years. ...

I wish I saw evidence that any of the people who pushed the Big Lie about the election had a conscience. — Jake Tapper, CNN anchor

Tapper is obviously referring to his own network CNN as well as MSNBC, ABC, CBS, NBC, and other members of the Mainstream Media Idiots Hall of Fame. Congratulation on his incredible insight gained from looking at himself and his network!

Personally, I wish I saw evidence that any of the people who pushed the Russian Hoax about the 2016 election had a conscience. But no one among the media idiots have come out to apologize for propagating this hoax. None. Not one. Nada. Zero.

Just two days after the Biden inauguration, Jake Tapper forgot who was in charge when he talked about the ill-treatment of the National Guard soldiers following the inauguration: "whoever is in charge," he said during a news story recount. Because, of course, he couldn't say Biden's name or Pelosi's name or Harris's name, among others.

This is the kind of media malfeasance we can expect in the next four years. People like Tapper do not deserve respect as journalists. They deserve scorn for so misappropriating the title and lying about their true beliefs and intentions.

Tapper loves to play defender of the troops ... until he might have to criticize a Democrat. Then, sanitized language like "whoever is in charge" makes an appearance. The timing of his memory lapse is just precious. — Bonchie, contributor, RedState

Again, I wonder if Tapper has any conscience at all. Since he works at CNN, I'm pretty sure he lost that a long time ago.

Here's another truth about all media:

The media want to pour gasoline on the flames of our political environment. They live for it. — Bonchie, columnist, RedState

Fortunately, now that Biden is in office, the major media can drop their pretense about the Wuhan virus and all the Democrat-run lockdowns (which were really in place for one reason: to win the election for Democrats).

Tucker Carlson noticed one major change in CNN's coverage of Covid news:

It's Joe Biden's first day in office and you know what that means: CNN can finally take that Covid death ticker off the screen. There no reason for it now. — Tucker Carlson, host, Tucker Carlson Tonight

Here's another tweet revealing the truth of the media Wuhan virus hoax. They continued to lie about the virus and the lockdowns so Biden could win. After the inauguration, not only did the Covid death ticker disappear but so did many lockdowns.

1 day after inauguration CNN has already taken down its Covid tracker, the WHO admitted high cycle PCR tests are BS, and Democratic governors suddenly see the problems with lockdowns. These sick fucks ruined people's lives and suppressed opinions to win an election. — Will Cormier, writer, Politics Betting

Bill Maher: Learn to Share

Here's one more Democrat idiot TV host talking about the people who support Trump.

I keep wrestling on this show with the hard question of how do Americans, all of us, learn to share a country with assholes you can't stand.

I preach, and still do, you can hate Trump, but not all the people who like him. And as counterintuitive as it may seem, you can like something run by assholes without being one yourself. — Bill Maher, host, Real Time with Bill Maher

Maher is right about one thing: We are all wrestling with the question of how we learn to share a country with assholes we can't stand.

For Trump supporters, this question has nothing to do with hate or intolerance (as is the case with Maher, the Democrats, and most mainstream media), but with the desire for freedom and the rule of law—both of which have gone out the window with the 2020 presidential election.

It's really funny and sad that Maher, in the same video decrying Republicans, said that his home state of California is a "blue state held together entirely by red tape." Lots of red tape and bad thinking.

He's right about that. And that is one reason Trump supporters don't want Democrats ruining America like they've already ruined California.

People Magazine Lies

In a recent online article announcing that Donald Trump left a gracious note on the presidential desk for Joe Biden. But People magazine couldn't let that information go without lying about Trump's dispute of the election.

Still, Trump continued claiming—without evidence—that the election was "rigged." — People magazine

Trump had a lot of evidence. He was claiming nothing without evidence, but People continued the mainstream media's lies about election fraud and malfeasance. All for the benefit of their Democrat allies.

Then People went on to falsely describe the events of January 6th. How many lies does it require to smear Trump? I count at least four.

Two weeks prior to Wednesday's inauguration, Trump spoke to a crowd at a "Stop the Steal" rally near the White House, telling his supporters to march to the Capitol and "fight like Hell."

Roughly an hour later, a violent mob of those supporters stormed the Capitol, leading to a deadly scene. — People magazine

What a way to color what actually happened by telling a number of lies. They take three little words (certainly important words) and take them out of context to say Trump told his supporters to march to the Capitol and fight like hell.

He did tell them to march to the Capitol peacefully. In another part of his speech he said it was important to fight like hell to save the country. He never put those two sentences together!

Then People calls the mob violent when only a few individuals, at least some of them being Antifa or BLM, were actually violent. And said they stormed the Capitol when the Capitol police opened the doors for Trump's supporters.

The People story is a false story, clearly fake news in just a few short sentences.

Here are a few excerpts from Trump's hour-and-fifteen-minute speech:

We will never give up. We will never concede, it doesn't happen. You don't concede when there's theft involved. ...

Nobody knows what the hell is going on. There's never been anything like this. We will not let them silence your voices. We're not going to let it happen. ...

There's never been a movement like this ever, ever for the extraordinary love for this amazing country and this amazing movement. Thank you. ...

We're gathered together in the heart of our nation's Capitol for one very, very basic and simple reason, to save our democracy. ...

But just remember this. You're stronger, you're smarter. You've got more going than anybody, and they try and demean everybody having to do with us, and you're the real people. You're the people that built this nation. You're not the people that tore down our nation. ...

You know what the world says about us now? They said we don't have free and fair elections and you know what else? We don't have a free and fair press. ...

We're going walk down to the Capitol, and we're going to cheer on our brave senators, and congressmen and women. We're probably not going to be cheering so much for some of them because you'll never take back our country with weakness. You have to show strength, and you have to be strong. ...

I know that everyone here will soon be marching over to the Capitol building to peacefully and patriotically make your voices heard. Today we will see whether Republicans stand strong for integrity of our elections. ... We're going to see whether or not we have great and courageous leaders or whether or not we have leaders that should be ashamed of themselves throughout history. ...

I said, "Something's wrong here. Something's really wrong. Can't have happened." And we fight. We fight like Hell and if you don't fight like Hell, you're not going to have a country anymore. Our exciting adventures and boldest endeavors have not yet begun. My fellow Americans for our *movement, for our children and for our beloved country and I say this, despite all that's happened, the best is yet to come.

And his speech went on for another hour with no further talk about fighting or violence at all!

In his complete speech, Trump offered all sorts of election fraud evidence, even though People magazine proclaimed he had no evidence. You can read the full transcript of his January 6th speech here:

<https://www.rev.com/blog/transcripts/donald-trump-speech-save-america-rally-transcript-january-6>

Corruption and tyranny flourish with a lack of accountability. ...

Corruption and tyranny flourish when you don't have a free and fair media. And flourish even more when you have an activist hack media fully in line with totalitarian goals of suppressing dissent. — Dan Bongino, host, The Dan Bongino Show

Pinocchio's Pretense

The premise of Pinocchio's pretense is simple: Lie like it's going out of style. Democrats keep repeating lies to paint their opposition as bigots, racists, haters, and more. They repeated the Charlottesville hoax, the military slander, the Russian hoax—lie after lie after lie.

And the fake news media go along with all of these Democrat lies, lie after lie after lie.

I don't understand how Republicans can allow Putin to dictate the fortunes of this country. And that's what's going on here. — James Clyburn, House majority whip (lie after lie after lie)

How dare he. After four years of pushing lies, dividing Americans and doing what they can to smear and damage Trump, he still can't give up the lie. He's still at it even when this nonsense has been long debunked. This, my friends, this is the Democrats. Lie, lie, and lie. Demand you unify (meaning comply). And still, they lie. — Nick Arama, columnist, RedState

Understand, the Biden crowd doesn't play between the lines. If the Biden cabal is willing to brazenly steal the presidential elections, they'd have no compunction about circumventing the system to ruthlessly press their agenda. They're stone-cold serious about killing America (i.e., unmooring it from the Revolution and founding principles and putting the U.S. on track to be a PRC clone). The rule of law is merely an obstacle to go over, under, around, and through. — J. Robert Smith, blogger

Potential case of voter manipulation: Probably not much. I think most people see through the lies of Democrats. You can only call people racist so many times before that label loses its power. And you can only repeat lies so often before people discount the lies and begin to ignore them. Real people catch on eventually. They can't have the wool pulled over their eyes forever.

We're now in a nation where facts don't matter. You make up facts. And not only do you have an alternative reality, how do you debate someone that is dealing with a totally fictitious premise? How do you debate a fantasy that someone wants to sell, and people want to believe? — Al Sharpton, TV talking head

Sometimes people can speak the truth when they had intended to tell a lie. Sharpton was describing the mainstream media even though he pretended to describe Trump and his followers.

Now, here's the real story of Trump, his hopes and dreams, and those of his followers:

As long as the American people hold in their hearts a deep and devoted love of country, then there is nothing this nation cannot achieve. Our communities will flourish. Our people will be prosperous. Our traditions will be cherished. Our faith will be strong. And our future will be brighter than ever before. — Donald J. Trump, president

"For our country and for our children, the best is yet to come," Donald J. Trump, president of the United States, foretold in his farewell address.

The Vandal Veto

The Vandal Veto

Rioters and looters have been trying to intimidate ordinary people and voters all since May. How much impact did they have on the election?

In the very blue county where I live, no one dared put up a Trump/Pence sign because of fear that their home or property would be damaged by people angered by the sign. Visceral anger. Dangerous anger.

Protestors and rioters are still intimidating people, even after the election. When will they stop their intimidation? Will they ever stop? Why would they stop when it's working so well?

Joe Biden supporters are stomping on the American flag and chanting "fk America" outside the Washington State Capitol. — Katie Davis court, reporter

Antifa rioters busted windows at the Multnomah County Democrats building in Portland and spray-painted messages such as F Biden and No Presidents. In January 2021, Antifa rioters broke windows at the Democrat campaign headquarters in Portland and again spray-painted F Biden.

More Antifa and BLM rioters also attacked people and swore against Trump, Biden, and America in New York City, Washington DC, Philadelphia, Seattle, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Detroit. More to come, I'm sure. And this after Biden was proclaimed the president-elect by the media!

VIDEO: Black Lives Matter militants march by outdoor diners - who make absolutely sure their fists... Is the training taking hold? www.theblaze.com

Impact on the Election? Probably not much. If anything, the on-going violence, looting, and rioting likely worked in Trump's favor. Not that Biden's election will stop Antifa or the Marxist BLM. It hasn't yet, even after Biden's inauguration.

Intimidate a U.S. Senator

Tonight, while I was in Missouri, Antifa scumbags came to our place in DC and threatened my wife and newborn daughter, who can't travel. They screamed threats, vandalized, and tried to pound open our door. Let me be clear: My family & I will not be intimidated by leftwing violence. — Josh Hawley, U.S. senator (1/4/21 tweet)

Sadly, here's what Hawley had to say in response to a Washington Post story describing the attack on his home and family as a "peaceful vigil."

This morning printing outright lies from the Antifa group who now describe themselves as sweet angels. BS. You screamed through bullhorns, shouted down my wife when she asked you to leave, vandalized property, pounded on our door, and terrorized neighbors.

And didn't have the guts to do it in daylight, but only under cover of darkness so you could hide. You're scum. And we won't be intimidated. — Josh Hawley, U.S. senator (1/5/21 tweet)

The Georgia Run-Off

I doubt that most of these voting irregularities and questionable activities would stand up in court. It's hard to prove malfeasance beyond a doubt. Plus, I wouldn't know how to remedy the infractions at this point.

All of the above tricks and devious activities were used in full force in the Georgia run-off elections.

The people of Georgia were inundated with TV commercials, fake social media posts, big money coming in floods, and all the tricks and cheats listed above. Learn from these Georgia elections. Stop the cheating before it begins in future elections. Don't let the Democrats steal another election!

Chuck Schumer, Democrat minority leader of the U.S. Senate, looked forward to stealing the two runoff elections and gaining control of the Senate. "Now we take Georgia. Then we change the world," he said at a rally in New York City. Notice that he didn't say win in Georgia. He said take Georgia, like in stealing Georgia.

If Biden succeeds in stealing this election, the blueprint will have been cemented for massive Democrat voter fraud in all subsequent elections, including congressional races in 2022. And an Iron Curtain of cynicism will descend on the American electorate in future elections, who will understand that the US has become the equivalent of Venezuela insofar as the integrity of elections is concerned. — Stu Cvrk, columnist, RedState

Historic Runoff for Two Senate Seats in Georgia Likely to Determine Direction of Country: Yeah - that's a big headline, but it is likely true. As things stand right now, the Republicans have a 50-48 lead in... redstate.com

The radical left is pouring money and people into Georgia because they know Perdue and Loeffler are all that stands between America and socialism. We're going to do everything humanly possible to keep radicals like Jon Ossoff and Raphael Warnock out of the Senate. — Steven Law, president, Senate Leadership Fund

The Democrats succeeded in stealing the Georgia senate run-offs, and thus gained control of the U.S. Senate as well as the presidency.

To have stopped them, the Georgia legislature would have had to stand up for real signature verification and not the false verifications used during the 2020 presidential election in Georgia. The legislators were not that brave.

But, then, no legislators in the battleground states were that brave. No courts were that brave. No media were that brave. Few U.S. congresspeople were brave.

@Kloeffler and @sendavidperdue will not be able to win on January 5th. unless these people allow Signature Verification in presidential race. K&D need it for their race also, & Georgia spirit will rise to such a high that they will easily bring home a great victory. Move fast @BrianKempGA. — Donald Trump, U.S. president, tweet

Trump told the truth here. The Georgia senate run-off election was run as fraudulently as the 2020 presidential election, so the current incumbents could not win. The Democrats stole the election.

Looking down the road, also, there will need to be a deep dive into finding how Georgia was made to flip like this so fast. You hear the predictions of other states and Georgia was noted as moving left—but not at this rate. Something bad happened here and that analysis needs to start right after this race ends on Tuesday night. — T. LaDuke, columnist, RedState

The vote totals in Georgia senate run-off election kept changing live on TV—even on ABC News, CNN, and Reuters!

They still haven't explained negative votes because the explanation is fraud. 32,400 votes taken from David Perdue live. $774,723 - 742,323 = 32,400$ - Live on ABC!

Elections are an additive process — you count the votes — and add them up. At no point should votes be going down. Unfortunately, here are another 5,000 votes subtracted from @Perduesenate live on ABC. $2,130,535 - 2,125,535 = 5,000$ — Kanekoa the Great tweets with videos showing the votes dropping on live TV (ABC News)

Reported vote in Fulton went from 99% to 96%, Chatham from 99% to 96%, DeKalb from 95% to 94% to 92%, and Henry from 99% to 95%. That's not the fault of those reporting. It's the officials being incompetent, or worse. But "reversals" in estimated vote remaining are not typical. — Rich Baris, data journalist

What Are We to Do?

Election fraud leads to fraud and conspiracies in all parts of the government. This 2020 election fraud didn't just affect our national elections. It also affected state and local elections. We really can't let such fraud be successful in the future. We must make sure these shenanigans and fraud don't happen again in ANY American election.

We are fighting for the rights of all Americans who want to have faith and confidence not only in this election, but in any elections to come. There is only one party in America that opposes voter I.D. One party in America that opposes verifying signatures, citizenship, residency, eligibility. There is only one party in America trying to keep observers out of the count room. And that party, my friends, is the Democrat party.

You don't take these positions because you want an honest election. You don't oppose an audit of the vote because you want an accurate count. You don't oppose our efforts at sunlight and transparency because you have nothing to hide.

You take these positions because you are welcoming fraud, and you are welcoming illegal voting. We want every legal vote to be counted, and we want every illegal vote to be discarded. —
Kayleigh McEnany, presidential press secretary

What Will the Media Do?

Even an MSNBC talking head realized the election was illegitimate. He just didn't call it that. But he did say that the 2020 election was a repudiation of the Democrat party.

This election for the most part was an absolute repudiation of the Democratic Party as a brand. Their brand doesn't work across most of America. It just doesn't. — Joe Scarborough, host, Morning Joe Sometimes even the talking heads get something right. Not often, but sometimes. Actually, it would be nice if they got more things right by actually being objective journalists. But that is a silly hope when it comes to mainstream media people.

We are right to be highly suspicious and disgusted by a Democrat Party and national media who are fighting tooth and nail to oppose transparency and verification. — John Nolte, columnist, Breitbart

It's easy to do it the cheap way and get away with stuff—but it comes back around. — Van Jones, CNN talking head

Yes, stealing elections is the cheap way. You can get away with it sometimes, but it will come back around to bite you in the ass! Let us hope that happens soon.

We really do need to clean up the election process, so this kind of fraud does not happen again.

We need to clean up the election process, so we are not left feeling the way we do today. Put laws in place that protect us against voter fraud.

Investigate every state. Film the counting. Flush out the fake votes. Require ID. Make Voter Fraud end in 2020. Fix the system. — Gina Carano, actress

And check out Michelle Obama as she tells the truth when she was trying to tell a lie:

Let's remember that tens of millions of people voted for the status quo [aka the deep state], even when it meant supporting lies, hate, chaos, and division. — Michelle Obama, former first lady

She was trying to say that millions of Trump voters supported lies, hate, chaos, and division. Yet the truth is very simple: It is the deep state and the DC swamp that support lies, hate, chaos, and division. The deep state and the DC swamp are the real status quo.

And, since the worst case scenario happened and Biden became president for a while (before Kamala Harris takes over), the deep state will go on in all its glory and corruption. Biden and Harris are deeply involved in that corruption.

But here's an important message from Star Wars that Trump can easily assert: If you strike me down, I will become more powerful.

To lose to these leftists, and this disputed way, will make Trump president in absentia to millions of Americans. He will continue to hold massive rallies. He will continue to be almost omnipresent in our media. He will continue to be the sun of the right's solar system. Most days, it will seem as if he is still president in every way other than holding the official levers of power. — Steve Deace, podcaster, Blaze TV

And, now, that Joe Biden has been inaugurated and has already signed many executive decrees canceling so many of the best changes that Trump made, ask yourself: Will Biden be our president or not? Not mine.

Not my President and never will be. The American people aren't fools. We know you cheated to win, and we'll never accept these results. Fair elections we can accept but cheating to win; never. It's not over yet. — Amanda Chase, Virginia state senator

What to Do: Personal Edition

Personally, I'm still hoping to report the truth: That the 2020 presidential election was a fraud. That real reporters discovered the fraud. That our elected representatives bravely called out the fraud and voted for the real winner. That our Supreme Court finally took a stand against election fraud and saved our republic.

Is that too much to hope for?

Well, it was too much to hope for before the 2021 inauguration day, but it could still happen if there are one or two brave and smart people out there.

Regardless, here are a few things I want everyone to remember—and act upon.

No riots.

No violence.

No marauding.

No destruction.

No threats.

No burning down the government.

No secession.

No hate.

No fear.
No surrender.
Never give up.
Be kind.
Enjoy your life.
Talk to your neighbor.
Pray.

What Will We Do?

After seeing the massive Voter Fraud in the 2020 Presidential Election, I disagree with anyone that thinks a strong, fast, and fair Special Counsel is not needed. ... This was the most corrupt election in the history of our Country, and it must be closely examined! — Donald Trump, U.S. president

At the very minimum, there must be a thorough and intensive examination of the evidence, the anomalies, and the fraud that occurred during the 2020 presidential election. That's essential for healing to take place. And we do need healing.

Remember the words of Thomas Paine around the times of the American Revolution:

These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands by it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph.

What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly: it is dearness only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as FREEDOM should not be highly rated.
— Thomas Paine, pamphleteer

And here's the last statement from a mad-as-hell retired engineer—an ordinary man who will not settle for the 2020 election coup. There are more than 75,000,000 of us who stand with him. This truly is going to be epic. Watch what happens in the 2022 and 2024 elections!

Only one thing is as certain as taxes and Clinton corruption, we have not heard the last of Donald J. Trump yet. Perhaps that's why the left looks more terrified than confident right now. They know they screwed up. They drew a line in the sand (then called for unity), and then danced across it themselves. They walked across the field, spit in their opponent's face, and then insulted his mother.

But I'm sure that won't make him want a rematch. God help the Democrats because we sure won't. This is going to be epic. — John Green, retired engineer

It's in the Hands of God

I believe one thing that everyone of good will should remember: Ultimately everything is in the hands of God.

So pray. Pray for today. Pray for tomorrow.

Pray for whoever is the U.S. President. Pray for Biden. Pray for Trump.

Pray always. Pray unceasingly.

Pray for forever. This 2020 election is just a small blip in the history of America. It is also a small blip in our own lives.

Pray for yourself.

Pray for your family and friends.

Pray for me.

Pray for all Americans.

Pray for our nation & our president this weekend. Pray that God's hand would be on President @realDonaldTrump, & that He would give him wisdom in the coming days; & pray that God would spare our nation from the evil that is before us. — Franklin Graham, president, Billy Graham Evangelistic Association

Stand up and pray!

Shout out and pray!

Put your life and the lives of all Americans and the lives of all people in the world into the hands of God. That is the true safe and secure election!

Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair; the rest is in the hands of God. — George Washington, U.S. president

I love what my friend, J.M. Patton, says below. The prayers of real people are more powerful and meaningful than any election, any government. Prayers can change the world. And do!

*Many need reminding that the prayers of believers are more powerful and meaningful for continued freedom in America than anything an election or government can do. Thanks for being one to encourage others. — J.M. Patton, author, West Point, a novel*

Trump: The Hope of the World

We must always keep faith in America's destiny—that one nation, under God, must be the home and the promise and the light and the glory among all nations of the world. — Donald J. Trump, U.S. president America is the light of the world. Step up and help to make America great again!

Trump's State of the Union, 2020

Here are a few significant excerpts from President Trump's 2020 State of the Union speech. With the sentiments expressed here, I would love it if Trump gave the State of the Union speech in 2021.

This is our glorious and magnificent inheritance. We are Americans. We are the pioneers. We are the pathfinders. We settled the new world, we built the modern world, and we changed history forever by embracing the eternal truth that everyone is made equal by the hand of Almighty God. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

In America, we do not punish prayer. We do not tear down crosses. We do not ban symbols of faith. We do not muzzle preachers and pastors. In America, we celebrate faith. We cherish religion.

We lift our voices in prayer, and we raise our sights to the Glory of God! — Donald Trump, U.S. president

This Nation is our canvas, and this country is our masterpiece. We look at tomorrow and see unlimited frontiers just waiting to be explored. Our brightest discoveries are not yet known. Our most thrilling stories are not yet told. Our grandest journeys are not yet made. The American Age, the American Epic, the American Adventure, has only just begun! — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Our spirit is still young; the sun is still rising; God's grace is still shining; and my fellow Americans, the best is yet to come! — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Now, that is my President!

Trump's Presidential Proclamation (12/28/20)

Here are a few excerpts from President Trump's presidential proclamation on the 850th anniversary of the martyrdom of Saint Thomas Becket.

We pray for religious believers everywhere who suffer persecution for their faith. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

As Americans, we were first united by our belief that "rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God" and that defending liberty is more important than life itself. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Our freedom from religious persecution is not a mere luxury or accident of history, but rather an essential element of our liberty. It is our priceless treasure and inheritance. And it was bought with the blood of martyrs. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

If we are to continue to be the land of the free, no government official, no governor, no bureaucrat, no judge, and no legislator must be allowed to decree what is orthodox in matters of religion or to require religious believers to violate their consciences. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

No right is more fundamental to a peaceful, prosperous, and virtuous society than the right to follow one's religious convictions. ... The people of America and the people of the world still cry out: "We want God." — Donald Trump, U.S. president

America stands with believers in every country who ask only for the freedom to live according to the faith that is within their own hearts. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

We have directed every Ambassador—and the over 13,000 United States Foreign Service officers and specialists—in more than 195 countries to promote, defend, and support religious freedom as a central pillar of American diplomacy. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Every child—born and unborn—is a sacred gift from God. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

We pray for religious believers everywhere who suffer persecution for their faith. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

A society without religion cannot prosper. A nation without faith cannot endure—because justice, goodness, and peace cannot prevail without the grace of God. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

The crimes against people of faith must stop, prisoners of conscience must be released, laws restricting freedom of religion and belief must be repealed, and the vulnerable, the defenseless, and the oppressed must be protected. The tyranny and murder that shocked the conscience of the Middle Ages must never be allowed to happen again. As long as America stands, we will always defend religious liberty. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

A society without religion cannot prosper. A nation without faith cannot endure—because justice, goodness, and peace cannot prevail without the grace of God. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Now, that is my President!

Trump's statements on January 6, 2021:

We have to have peace. We have to have law and order. We have to respect our great people in law and order. We don't want anybody hurt. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

This was a fraudulent election, but we can't play into the hands of these people. So, go home. We love you. You're very special. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

And here's a later statement from the president a week later:

We believe in respecting America's history and traditions, not tearing them down. We believe in the rule of law, not in violence or rioting. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Trump's Farewell Address on January 19, 2021

As long as the American people hold in their hearts a deep and devoted love of country, then there is nothing this nation cannot achieve. Our communities will flourish. Our people will be prosperous. Our traditions will be cherished. Our faith will be strong. And our future will be brighter than ever before. — Donald J. Trump, president

America is not a timid nation of tame souls who need to be sheltered and protected from those with whom we disagree. That's not who we are. It will never be who we are. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

Shutting down free and open debate violates our core values and most enduring traditions. In America, we don't insist on absolute conformity or enforce rigid orthodoxies and punitive speech codes. We just don't do that. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

The movement that we started is only just beginning. There's never been anything like it. The belief that a nation must serve its citizens will not dwindle. — Donald Trump, U.S. president

A Summary of 2020 Election-Rigging Claims

Doug Ross @ Journal

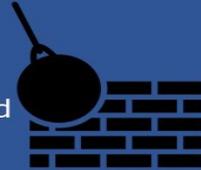

Overview of Vote Fraud Allegations

Illegal Procedures

No chain-of custody for machines and large bundles of ballots

Poll watchers removed & threatened

Unprecedented voting pauses

Insecure Voting Machines

Design permits operators to easily move votes between candidates

Audit logs incomplete and insecure

Linked to foreign governments

Illegal Ballots

No signature verification

No barcoding or ballot verification

Statistically implausible dumps of votes late in the counting process (over 95% for Biden)

Illegal Procedures

No chain-of custody for machines and large bundles of ballots

"We typically receive the machines, the ballot marketing devices—on the Friday before the election, with a chain of custody letter to be signed on Sunday, indicating that we had received the machines and the counts on the machines when received, and that the machines have been sealed. In this case, we were asked to sign the chain of custody letter on Sunday, even though the machines were not delivered until 2:00 a.m. in the morning on Election Day... This is unacceptable and voting machines should [not] be out of custody prior to an Election Day."

Democrat-majority counties illegally prevented Republican poll-watchers from monitoring vote-counting activities

Democrat-majority counties provided political parties and candidates, including the Trump campaign, no meaningful access or actual opportunity to review and assess the validity of mail-in ballots during the pre-canvassing meetings. While in the audit or recount, they witnessed Trump votes being put into Biden piles...

Witnesses testify: "There [was] no meaningful way to review or audit any activity." [and] "There was no way to tell if any counting was accurate or if the activity was proper."

Large batches of pristine, identical ballots (98% for Biden)

"A large number of ballots were identical and likely fraudulent... Affiant... observed a batch of utterly pristine ballots: These different ballots included a slight depressed pre-fold so they could be easily folded and unfolded for use in the scanning machines. There were no markings on the ballots to show where they had come from, or where they had been processed. These stood out... In my 20 years of experience handling ballots, I observed that these ballots were unusually uniform, perhaps even with a ballot-marking device. By my estimate in observing these ballots, approximately 98% constituted votes for Joe Biden. I only observed two of these ballots as votes for President Trump."

Insecure Voting Machines

Design permits operators to easily move votes between candidates.

96,000 mail-in ballots were illegally counted as they were not cast by legal voters.

“Russell Ramsland confirms that data breaches in the Dominion software permitted rogue actors to penetrate and manipulate the software during the recent general election. He further concludes that at least 96,600 mail-in ballots were illegally counted as they were not cast by legal voters.”

“Expert Navid Keshavarez-Nia ... states that Dominion’s software is vulnerable to data manipulation by unauthorized means and permitted election data to be altered in all battleground states. He concludes that hundreds of thousands of votes that were cast for President Trump in the 2020 general election were transferred to former Vice President Biden.”

Audit Logs Incomplete and Insecure

In Floyd County, Georgia, 3,300 votes were found on a memory stick that had never been counted. It is unclear how many other times this occurred.

“The Dominion system... undermines the reconciliation of the number of voters and the number of ballots cast... opening the door to ballot stuffing and fraud. The collapse of reconciliation was seen in Georgia’s primary and runoff elections this year, and in the November election, where it was discovered during the hand audit that 3,300 votes were found on memory sticks that were not uploaded on election night, plus in Floyd County, another 2,600 absentee ballots had not been scanned. These “found votes” reduced Biden’s lead over Donald Trump.”

“The design and features of the Dominion software do not permit a simple audit to reveal its misallocation, distribution or deletion of votes. First, the system’s central accumulator does not include a protected real-time audit log that maintains the date and time stamps of all significant election events... This allows an unauthorized user the opportunity to arbitrarily add, modify, or remove log entries.”

Voting Machines Linked to Foreign Agents

Insecure Voting Machines

Democrat-majority counties performed virtually no signature verification, allowing massive, illegal vote dumps for Biden.

"In Georgia, the signature verification requirement is a dead letter. The signature rejection rate for the most recent election announced by the Secretary of State was 0.15%. The signature rejection rate for absentee ballot applications was 0.00167% — only 30 statewide. Hancock County, Georgia, population 8,248, rejected nine absentee ballot applications for signature mismatch. Fulton County rejected eight. No other metropolitan county in Georgia rejected even a single absentee ballot application for signature mismatch."

Hundreds of witnesses observed illegal handling of ballots even with restricted access to view counting.

"I witnessed two poll workers [removing] already separated paper machine receipt ballots with barcodes in the Trump tray, placing them into the Biden tray. I also witnessed the same two poll workers putting the already separated paper receipt ballots in the No Vote and Jorgensen tray... removing them and putting them inside the Biden tray. They then took out all of the ballots out of the Biden tray and stacked them on the table, writing on the count ballot sheet."

Summary of Vote Fraud Allegations

"Plaintiffs have no adequate remedy at law and will suffer serious and irreparable harm unless the injunctive relief requested herein is granted. Defendants have acted and, unless enjoined, will act under color of state law to violate the Elections Clauses of the Constitution. Accordingly, the results for President and Congress in the November 3, 2020 election must be set aside. The results are infected with Constitutional violations."

Below are additional graphics created by Doug Ross to illustrate the depth of criminal fraud carried out in the Michigan presidential election.

Source: <http://directorblue.blogspot.com/2020/11/infographic-bombshell-allegations-of.html>

GOP poll watchers were illegally prevented from observing vote counting activities in Democrat-run countries

"[GOP poll watchers] suffered harassment, intimidation, discrimination, abuse, and even physical removal... to eliminate any semblance of transparency, objectivity, or fairness from the vote counting process."

Tens of thousands of ballots were tallied secretly in Wayne County, Michigan (Detroit Metro Area)

"Denied [GOP] poll watchers at the TCF [Wayne County processing] Center... access to view ballot handling, processing, or counting and locked credentialed challengers out of the counting room so they could not observe the process, during which time tens of thousands of ballots were processed."

Election workers committed forgery, vote tampering, and back-dating of tens of thousands of ballots to benefit Biden

"[Election workers were] fraudulently adding "tens of thousands" of new ballots and/or new voters to QVF (Qualified Voter Files) in two separate batches on November 4, 2020, all or nearly all of which were votes for Joe Biden... forging voter information and fraudulently adding new voters to the QVF voters... recorded these new voters as having a birthdate of 1/1/1900... [and] changing dates on absentee ballots received after the 8:00 p.m. Election Date deadline to indicate that such ballots were received before the deadline."

Election workers allowed entry of mass-produced fraudulent ballots into TCF Center to be counted for candidate Biden

"[Workers unloaded and then counted]... unsecured ballots arrived at the TCF Center loading garage [that were] not in sealed ballot boxes, without any chain of custody, and without envelopes, after the 8:00 p.m. Election Day deadline, in particular, the tens of thousands of ballots that arrived on November 4, 2020... [as well as] accepting and counting ballots from deceased voters."

Biden's attraction of 100% (and more) of new voters was statistically implausible

"385,000 votes [were] injected by four precincts/townships on November 4, 2020, that resulted in counting of nearly 290,000 more ballots processed than [physically possible]... Biden gained nearly 100% and frequently more than 100% of all "new" voters in certain townships/precincts over 2016, and thus indicated that nearly 87,000 anomalous and likely fraudulent votes from those precincts."

Summary of Michigan vote fraud allegations

"Relief sought is the elimination of the mail ballots from counting in the 2020 election... [and] the electors for the State of Michigan should be disqualified from counting toward the 2020 election... [as well as a] permanent injunction prohibiting the Governor and Secretary of State from transmitting the currently certified results to the Electoral College based on the overwhelming evidence of election tampering."

People have testified to the following frauds:

Evidence based on an article by Andrea Widburg in American Thinker and a speech by president Donald Trump.

- poll-watchers were locked out of buildings,
- people were told they'd already voted by mail,
- provisional ballots were not counted,
- voting took place without any ID requirements,
- Democrat voters received preferential treatment,
- poll workers supervised Democrat party-line votes and illegally registered same-day voters,
- 250,000 Wisconsin voters were classified as severely disabled to avoid the mail-in ballot signature requirement (up from 70,000 last year),
- batches of Biden votes were counted multiple times,
- Georgia officials didn't match mail-in ballot signatures,
- "absentee ballots" for Joe arrived in huge batches without envelopes,
- 70,000 absentee ballots in Wisconsin had no matching applications,

- no state checks for citizenship,
- in Georgia, absentee ballots for Biden lacked folds, meaning they couldn't have arrived by mail in an envelope,
- the majority of recently located uncounted ballots were for Biden,
- Republican canvassers in Detroit were coerced into certifying votes,
- in Nevada, voting machines were set so that virtually no signature matching occurred,
- some Native American Nevada voters got gifts for voting,
- across contested states, the number of rejected mail-in ballots was dramatically lower than ever before,
- Pennsylvania's Democrat secretary of state and supreme court unconstitutionally abolished signature verification requirements,
- Trump had long, powerful coattails, which is inconsistent with his apparent loss, and
- Democrats fought hard to loosen all voting safeguards, and the pandemic gave them a useful excuse.

Exhibit II

The Expert Affidavit

The following conclusions were made by Dr. Navid Keshavarz-Nia after reviewing much of the evidence regarding fraud and bad behavior during the 2020 General Election.

Based on his findings, Dr. Navid Keshavarz-Nia concluded with "high confidence that the election 2020 data were altered in all battleground states resulting in hundreds of thousands of votes that were cast for President Trump to be transferred to Vice President Biden."

The following pages feature part of his affidavit for a Georgia election lawsuit. You can read his complete affidavit here: <https://www.scribd.com/document/>

In my expert judgment, the evidence is widespread and throughout all battleground states I have studied. I conclude the following:

A. The vote count distribution in PA, WI, MI, AZ, NV, and GA are not based on normal system operation. Instead, they are caused by fraudulent electronic manipulation of the targeted voting machines.

B. On approximately 2:30 AM EST, TV broadcasts reported that PA, WI, AZ, NV, and GA have decided to cease vote counting operations and will continue the following day. The unanimous decision to intentionally stop counting by all 5 battleground states is highly unusual, possibly unprecedented and demonstrates prior coordination by election officials in battleground state. There would be no legitimate reason battleground states need to pre-coordinate election activities and stop on-going adjudication processes.

However, it is equally puzzling that the vote counting did not stop, as reported. In fact, it continued behind closed doors in early hours of November 4, 2020. This activity is highly unusually and demonstrates collusion to achieve desired results without being monitored by watchers.

C. When analyzing the NT Times data for the 2020 election, I conclude that the software algorithm manipulated vote counts, forging between 1-2% of the precinct results to favor

Vice President Biden. The software performed data alteration in real-time in order to maintain close parity among the candidates and without raising red flags. The specific software algorithm was developed by Smartmatic and implemented in DVS machines to facilitate backdoor access by a nefarious operator to manipulate live data, as desired.

D. The DVS Democracy Suite's ImageCast Central optical scanner failed to correctly verify and validate absentee ballots, as described in its own literature. There is reported evidence that the optical scanner accepted and adjudicated ballots that did not have signatures or other key features that is required for ballot validation and verification. This indicates that the DVS system configuration was modified to accept invalid ballots when they should have been rejected.

E. After the DVS ImageCast scanner validates a ballot, by design, it is required to tabulate and store the results in a cast vote record along with a human-readable image of the ballot that has been scanned. The image, called AuditMark, provides the user with scanned results that is verifiable.

However, media reports indicate that not only did the ImageCast fail to properly verify absentee ballots; it also failed to maintain records of the AuditMark that would be necessary to conduct an audit. The only way to alter this protocol is to alter the system configuration and prevent the ImageCast scanner from rejecting illegal ballots; and reprogram AuditMark to store ballot image that could be verified. This is evidence of fraud perpetrated to prevent investigators to discover the number of invalid votes that were cast.

F. The cryptographic key store on a DVS thumb drive (reported stolen in Philadelphia) was used to alter vote counts prior to up chain reporting. Since DVS uses the same cryptographic key for all its voting systems in all battleground states, the key allowed a remote operator to conduct massive attacks on all battleground state data set without being detected.

G. Beginning on approximately 4:30 AM EST on November 4, 2020, the vote counts favored Vice President Biden by nearly 80% in many jurisdictions. The data distribution is statistically incongruent, even when considering a larger number of absentee ballots were collected for Vice President Biden.

H. The data variance favoring Vice President continues to accelerate after 4:30 AM EST on November 4, 2020 and continues until it momentum through November 9, 2020. This abnormality in variance is evident by the unusually steep slope for Vice President Biden in all battleground states on November 4, 2020. A sudden rise in slope is not normal and demonstrates data manipulation by artificial means. For example, in PA, President Trump's lead of more than 700,000 count advantage was reduced to less than 300,000 in a few short hours, which does not occur in the real world without an external influence.

I conclude that manually feeding more than 400,000 mostly absentee ballots cannot be accomplished in a short time frame (i.e., 2-3 hours) without illegal vote count alteration. In another case for Edison County, MI, Vice President Biden received more than 100% of the votes at 5:59 PM EST on November 4, 2020 and again he received 99.61% of the votes at 2:23 PM EST on November 5, 2020. These distributions are cause for concern and indicate fraud.

I. DVS has acknowledged that Chinese made parts are used in its voting machines. However, the company is unwilling to share details on its supply chains, foreign ownership, or its relationship with China, Venezuela, and Cuba. In particular, I have seenUSIC intelligence reports showing China's espionage activities in the United States and efforts to infiltrate elections. Since these countries are our enemies, I conclude that FIS and other operators were involved to influence the outcome of the 2020 election.

J. A Man-in-the-Middle (MITM) cyberattack was carried out by covert operators using sophisticated tools, such as Hammer and Scorecard. The MITM attack occurred in two ways. Initially, remote operatives used USB memory cards containing cryptographic keys and access system backdoors to alter votes in battleground states. Subsequently, the results were forwarded to Scytl/SOE Software servers located in Frankfurt, Germany (previously, Barcelona, Spain). The MITM attack was structured to ensure sufficient data alteration had occurred prior to forwarding the tallied results to the Scytl/eClarity Software Electronic Night Reporting

(ENR) system. The reason election data are forwarded overseas is to avoid detection and monitoring by the USIC to obfuscate the MITM.

K. In my expert opinion, the DVS Democracy Suite, Scytl/SOE Software/eClarity and Smartmatic have not produced auditable results in the 2020 election. It is evident that ballots were not properly validated, system records were not kept, and the system experience considerable instability even several days prior to November 4, 2020 that require DVS to implement software changes at the last minute. In addition, the disparity in data distribution after 4:30 AM on November 4, 2020 indicates significant systemic anomalies that were widespread among all battleground states. The evidence is both extensive and persuasive and indicates large-scale fraud by remote operators.

Billionaires Buy the Election

Check out this report on how billionaires, via private funding, bought the 2020 presidential election. Here are just a few of the main points from the report and ancillary comments by project director Phill Kline:

The Legitimacy and Effect of Private Funding in Federal and State Electoral Processes

The 2020 presidential election witnessed an unprecedented and coordinated public-private partnership to improperly influence the 2020 presidential election on behalf of one particular candidate and party.

Funded by hundreds of millions of dollars from Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg and other high-tech interests, activist organizations created a two-

Private monies dictated city and county election management contrary to both federal law and state election plans endorsed and developed by state legislatures with authority granted by the United States Constitution.

Executive officials in swing states facilitated, through unique and novel contracts, the sharing of private and sensitive information about citizens within those states with private interests, some whom actively promote leftist candidates and agendas.

Swing state governors also started issuing emergency executive orders shutting down in-person voting while pouring new state resources into encouraging persons to vote in advance. Polling data revealed this coordinated assault on in-person voting generally favored Democrat Party voters who preferred to vote in advance, while placing Republicans, who preferred to vote in person, at a disadvantage.

These actions represent the beginning of the formation of a two-tier election system favoring one demographic while disadvantaging another demographic.

America understands that there are serious problems with this election. This effectively is a shadow government running our elections.

This network pumped hundreds of millions of dollars into local election systems using the COVID crisis as a pretense. Our report proves that in reality, it was nothing more than a naked attempt to purchase an election.

Zuckerbucks and local election officials invited a billionaire into the consolidated ballot counting centers while kicking out the American people.

This report paints a clear picture of a cabal of billionaires and activists using their wealth to subvert, control, and fundamentally alter the electoral system itself. We must act now to prevent such privatized elections in the future. The American public deserves transparent and fair elections, not lawless elections directed by powerful private interests.

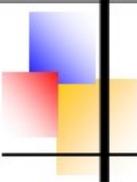

In addition to Zuckerberg, the main foundations funding the effort to subvert the electoral system were The Democracy Fund, New Venture Fund, Skoll Foundation, and Knight Foundation, according to the report. Key nonprofits involved in distributing the money include CTCL, the Center for [Election] Innovation Research, the Center for Civic Design, the National Vote at Home Institute, the Center for Secure and Modern Elections, and Rock the Vote.

The report demonstrates that funding from nonprofits was especially unnecessary in Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, as the federal government had already provided sufficient funding through both the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) and the CARES Act.

The Pennsylvania Flim-Flam

Mark Levin, host of the Life, Liberty & Levin radio show, started one episode of his show detailing all the problems with the Pennsylvania presidential election mail-in votes. Watch this YouTube video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wuSJQrMmSYQ> (if it's not already censored by YouTube when you read this).

Well, it was censored, but here's another video you may still be able to watch:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BHOjWP4QQ8>. Here is how he started out in the censored video:

Fourteen months ago in the state of Pennsylvania, if you had voted by mail-in ballot, it would have been discarded. If that mail-in ballot had been counted, that would have been fraud.

Fourteen months ago in the state of Pennsylvania, if you sent in a ballot without a signature, that ballot would be discarded. If it was counted, that would be criminal fraud.

Fourteen months ago in the state of Pennsylvania, if you sent in a ballot with a signature that did not match the signature they had on file, that would be discarded. If it was counted, that would be criminal fraud.

Fourteen months ago in the state of Pennsylvania, if you sent in a ballot beyond election day, it wouldn't be counted. And if it was, that would be fraud.

And if you sent in a ballot without a postal stamp date on it, it wouldn't be counted. Or, if it was, that would be fraud.

Or if you sent a ballot where they couldn't tell with the date was, because maybe there was a smudge on the ink, it wouldn't be counted. If it was counted, that was fraud.

All of those ballots today count. They were all counted in Pennsylvania because of unconstitutional and illegal changes that were made by officials and made quote unquote officially by individuals in Pennsylvania....

October 2019. Fourteen months ago. The Republican State Legislature in Pennsylvania passed an omnibus bill called Act 77. In Act 77 they included language changing their election laws to allow universal mail-in voting.

The problem is, Pennsylvania being an old state, having an old constitution, one of the original state legislatures, didn't allow that. There wasn't even early voting in Pennsylvania.

The only way you could have a mail-in vote was through the absentee ballot—and you had to go through a process, a multi-step process, there in order to get an absentee ballot.

Pennsylvania Congress People Respond

On New Year's Eve day, Republican congresspeople from Pennsylvania published a news release with the following comments:

Until these unlawful practices are acknowledged and corrected, we cannot agree to support electors chosen based upon an inaccurate total vote count. The voters of Pennsylvania deserve integrity in the election process and equal protection under the law. — Republican congresspeople from Pennsylvania

Here are seven concerns they had:

- Not properly requiring signatures to match those on mail-in ballots or requiring dates
- Meanwhile, the matching of signatures was required at a polling site

- ❑ Accepting ballots past 8:00 pm on Election Day
 - ❑ Authorizing the curing of mail-in ballots with less than a 24-hour's notice
 - ❑ Authorizing the use of unsecure drop boxes, which is not permitted in statute
 - ❑ Only some counties were informed and adhered to this order leaving voters treated unequally from county to county
 - ❑ Prohibiting certified poll watchers overseeing the canvassing of ballots in Philadelphia

In our attempt to provide a comprehensive understanding of exactly how elections were facilitated throughout the commonwealth, and answer constituent questions, we identified a plethora of process control flaws, internal control weaknesses, and a battery of inconsistencies.

In light of these findings, it is incumbent upon Pennsylvania's secretary of state to explain why the voters should trust the election process that unfolded in Pennsylvania. If voters are to trust election results, they must trust the election process. The process was clearly compromised, and the voters deserve an explanation and remedy. — Frank Ryan and Dawn Keefer, Pennsylvania legislators

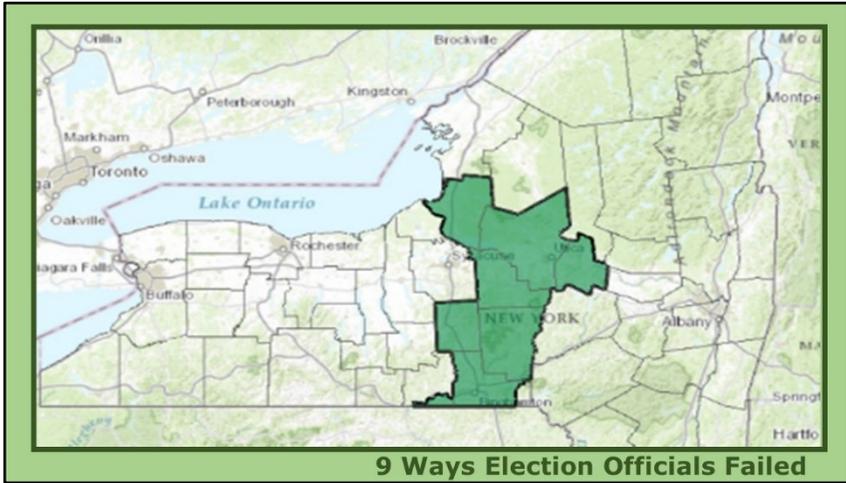

Exhibit V

Judge Rules 9 Ways Election Officials Failed

New York State Supreme Court Justice Scott J. DelConte admonished county election officials for failing to provide an accurate, transparent vote count in the contested race for Congress between Rep. Anthony Brindisi and Claudia Tenney.

Here are nine of the ways that election officials failed in doing their duty.

- Chenango County discovered 55 uncounted ballots.
- Chenango County found 12 ballots stuffed in a drawer.
- Cortland County didn't tell anyone about almost 100 rejected ballots.

- ❑ Broome County used a creative numbering system that didn't work to track more than 300 absentee ballots.
- ❑ Herkimer County miscalculated the vote tally.
- ❑ Madison County lost track of 132 disputed ballots.
- ❑ Oneida County had a big problem with illegal sticky notes.
- ❑ Oneida County mishandled about 1,500 rejected affidavit ballots.
- ❑ Oswego County used illegal sticky notes to track disputed ballots.

Election Commentary by John Droz, Jr.

The following timely election commentary is provided courtesy of physicist John Droz, Jr., at the Alliance for Wise Energy Decisions (<http://www.WiseEnergy.org>):

Yes, that would be another check-off part of the normal election process—but the verdict is No as the current election situation is anything but normal. For example:

1. Analyses have been done by independent statistical experts of 2020 Presidential election results in some swing states. Their conclusions are that hundreds of thousands of votes in those key states are highly suspect (e.g., see here and here).

2. Multiple sworn affidavits from cyber security experts have been filed asserting computer manipulations of the 2020 Presidential election. These adjustments could also be affecting hundreds of thousands of votes (e.g., see here and here).

3. Many hundreds of sworn affidavits from citizens have been filed testifying to 2020 Presidential election irregularities, likewise, possibly affecting hundreds of thousands of votes (e.g., see here and here).

4. Only a few US counties have done a basic recount (e.g., here). It's important to understand that a basic recount is little more than a rudimentary check of the math. For counties that have been identified as statistically suspect (e.g., see #1 above), a basic recount is a start, but it's not sufficient, as a forensic recount is warranted.

5. ZERO counties in the US have done a forensic (or audited) recount of the 2020 presidential election. That type of recount verifies that every vote came from a legitimate citizen — and that there was only one vote counted per citizen. (Independent studies like this give an indication of widespread inaccuracies. One small Michigan precinct is doing a partial forensic audit, but results are withheld.)

6. Certification of voting results by state legislatures is based on the assumptions that: a) the math is right, plus b) the results from all precincts are only votes cast by legitimate citizens, and only one vote per citizen. The critically important "b" assumption has not been verified (via even a sample forensic audit) in ANY state.

7. There is a difference between what citizens consider as evidence and what courts will consider as legal evidence. Here is an extensive crowd-sourced list of citizen submitted evidence of 2020 election malfeasance. Here's another.

8. To my knowledge, all the 2020 election court cases to date have been dismissed on legal technicalities (e.g., whether the petitioner has legal standing, whether evidence is admissible, whether filing time constraints have been met, etc.). Despite incessant media claims that judges have rejected claims of fraud, etc., the courts have not yet ruled on the merits of any of the 2020 election cases.

9. There are ZERO 2020 election court cases where a judge has mandated even an investigation into any type of fraud (voting machine algorithms, duplicate votes from the same person, votes from deceased parties, illegally corrected votes, etc.).

10. In an extremely rare case where a judge actually did look at some 2020 election results for a single district, he ruled that election officials violated the law in nine (9) different ways! And that was in a run-of-the-mill district not known to have been compromised. (He also did not mandate any fraud investigation.)

So, if audited recounts are ever done, and if those end up proving that the results are materially different from what's been reported (and "certified" by state legislatures), then there might be legal grounds for: a) state legislatures to un-certify their prior results, and/or b) Congress to over-rule certain states Electoral College submissions.

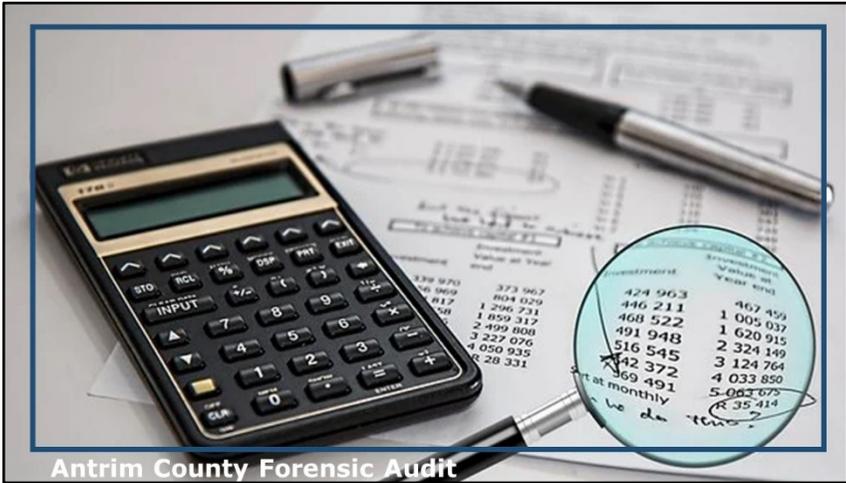

Exhibit VII

Talking Points on Voting Machines

Here are some talking points from Allied Security Operations Group and the Trump Legal Team regarding the forensic audit of voting machines in Antrim County, Michigan.

1. General Points

There was a 68% error rate in the votes cast. The Federal Election Committee allowable rate is 0.0008%.

There was an 81.96% rejection rate in the votes cast—these were sent to Adjudication.

The Adjudication files for 2020 were missing, which violates state law.

The security records for the election software were missing—which violates state law. These security records also contain the internet connection records.

The election software was changed inside the 90-day Safe Harbor window, which is forbidden by state law—this automatically decertifies the results.

Standard security protocols were not followed—software systems were out of date by years, creating a provable security risk.

All counties in Michigan are required to operate with the same software to guarantee consistent treatment of voters—so errors in the Antrim County software system are determinative of identical errors across the state due to the requirement to use the same software everywhere.

The Secretary of State directed the county clerks on December 1, 2020, throughout Michigan to delete all of their electronic election records for 2020 by December 8, 2020, in violation of Michigan state law MCL 168.811 requiring retention of voting records for 22 months.

2. Evidence of Intentional Fraud and Corruption of the Voting Machines

This is the evidence that voting machines can and are being manipulated.

This is not human error as we have proven.

Secretary Benson lied.

Federal law was violated: The election records were destroyed.

This is a cover-up of voting crimes.

Records were missing in violation of the legal requirements for retention.

These records exist in this county for previous elections, but not 2020.

Security records are missing—including the record of internet access to the machines.

Adjudication records do not exist. There is no ability to tell who or how or to where the adjudicated votes were moved.

An administrator reviews votes sent to adjudication and then can vote them as they wish—no oversight, no transparency, no record, no accountability.

68% of votes were switched in this county in error. FEC rules only allow a .0008% error rate.

81% of the votes were voted by an Administrator—not by the VOTER.

The voter's choice was not voted by the voter. Intervention happened and votes were moved.

The same ballots were run three times and produced three different results.

A cover-up is happening regarding the voting machines in Michigan.

We fought this for the voters of Michigan whose votes were not accurately counted. We are here for the integrity of the voting process and the will of the people.

Republicans and Democrats alike had their votes manipulated. All voters were impacted, and we must defend their voting rights.

3. Conclusions

Based on the violation of law, these election results cannot be certified in Antrim County.

The vast amount of fraud in the votes here demands a review of the votes throughout Michigan.

Security on the voting machines was practically non-existent. This is not a secure result.

These same voting machines were used throughout Michigan, and the results must be discounted until all voting machines can be reviewed for fraudulent vote manipulation.

The other 48 counties have been required to use the same certified software. The error rate is a given.

Michigan cannot certify for Biden.

This is a seditious conspiracy to undermine the election process and the will of the American people.

Exhibit VIII

The Immaculate Deception: Six Key Dimensions of Election Irregularities

On December 15, 2020, Peter Navarro released a special report on 2020 election irregularities.

- The ballots in question because of the identified election irregularities are more than sufficient to swing the outcome in favor of President Trump should even a relatively small portion of these ballots be ruled illegal.
- All six battleground states exhibit most, or all, six dimensions of election irregularities.
- This was theft by a thousand cuts across six dimensions and six battleground states rather than any one single silver bullet election irregularity.

- Significant irregularities appear to be ubiquitous across the six battleground states. Only Arizona is free of any apparent widespread ballot mishandling while only Pennsylvania lacks significant statistical anomalies. The rest of the matrix is a sea of checkmarks and occasional stars.
- In Pennsylvania, for example, a statistical analysis conducted by the Trump Campaign matching voter rolls to public obituaries found what appears to be over 8,000 confirmed dead voters successfully casting mail-in ballots.
- In Georgia—underscoring the critical role any given category of election irregularities might play in determining the outcome—the estimated number of alleged deceased individuals casting votes almost exactly equals the Biden victory margin.
- On the Ghost Voter front, a “Ghost Voter” is a voter who requests and submits a ballot under the name of a voter who no longer resides at the address where that voter was registered.
- In Georgia for example, it is alleged that over 20,000 absentee or early voters—almost twice the Biden victory margin—cast their ballots after having moved out of state.
- At least one instance of a large and inexplicable vote switching and vote surge in favor of Joe Biden took place in Antrim County, Michigan—and it is associated with the controversial aforementioned voting machine hardware-software combo. In this Republican stronghold, 6,000 votes were initially, and incorrectly, counted for Joe Biden. The resulting vote totals were contrary to voter registration and historical patterns and therefore raised eyebrows. When a check was done, it was discovered that the 6,000 votes were actually for Donald J. Trump.

- A subsequent forensic audit of the Antrim County vote tabulation found that the voting system had an astonishing error rate of 68 percent. By way of comparison, the Federal Election Committee requires that election systems must have an error rate no larger than 0.0008 percent.
- In Georgia, there were numerous glitches with the voting machines where the results would change. The most notable of these changes was a 20,000 vote surge for Biden and 1,000 vote decrease for Trump

On January 5, 2021, Peter Navarro, director of the Office of Trade and Manufacturing Policy, released a second report, called The Art of the Steal. Here is a summary of that report provided by Matt Palumbo of The Dan Bongino Show (<https://bongino.com/peter-navarro-releases-art-of-the-steal-report>):

- Key methods used by the Democrat Party to strategically game America's presidential election included changes in the law approved by State Legislatures; rule changes and new guidance initiated by Secretaries of State or other election officials; court rulings and interventions; and the aggressive use of so-called "public-private partnerships" to commandeer and manipulate the election process in key Democrat strongholds.
- The Democrat Party used a two-pronged Grand "Stuff the Ballot Box" Strategy to flood six key battleground states—Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin.
- Prong One of the Democrat Party's Grand Strategy used seven basic gambits to dramatically INCREASE the flood of absentee and mail-in ballots: relaxing mail-in and absentee ballot rules; sending absentee or mail-in ballots or applications for such ballots to every voter (universal mailing); increasing both the legal and illegal use of drop boxes; ballot harvesting; and the use of corrupted voting machines.
- Prong Two of the Democrat Party's Grand Strategy used five additional gambits to dramatically DECREASE the level of scrutiny of the new flood of absentee and mail-in ballots into the battleground states: relaxation of ID verification; reduced signature matching requirements; illegally counting naked ballots to increase ballot curing—both legal and illegal; and reduced poll watching and observing.

- This pincer movement resulted in a FLOOD of illegal ballots into the battleground states more than sufficient to tip the scales from a decisive legal win by President Trump to a narrow and illegitimate alleged “victory” by Joe Biden.

Republicans Can Take Actions to Protect and Nourish Patriots

In an op-ed on TheBlaze, Daniel Horowitz, host of the Conservative Review podcast, put forth a list of things that real Republicans can do to change what is happening in America today.

The mistake all these Republicans made is that rather than putting Trump out of business by offering voters a better and more effective version of that alternative vision they were looking for, they opted to make Trump a martyr.

Rather than attacking the left even more skillfully than Trump, they reminded the voters that they couldn't care less for their concerns and only attacked the one man they perceived as at least

senior editor, TheBlaze and host of the Conservative Review podcast

His list of the actions that true conservative Republicans should take in the next two years is crucial. Note: I've put his calls to action into my words rather than his.

Use every lever of power, from the filibuster in the Senate to every budget bill under the Biden-Harris socialist administration, to fight the horrible Democrat agenda.

Pass real election reform in all states that the Republicans control. Real reform includes requiring voter identification, banning indiscriminate use of mail-in ballots, trashing ballot harvesting, ensuring that poll watchers can actually see what is happening when votes are counted, not allowing idiot court jesters to pick the winners, and purging the voter rolls filled with dead people and those who live elsewhere.

Combat the sexual licentiousness movement at every turn. Condemn sexual predators every time they pop up.

Declare red states as sanctuaries from Wuhan virus fascism, First Amendment violations, rampant gun control, and other cases of federal overreach.

Terminate all lockdowns and mask mandates in red states. Give the people the freedom to act in their own interests!

Turn states into conservative versions of California. Take total electoral control of the states where Republicans have supermajorities. And, at the same time, learn how to regain some semblance of common sense in California!

Tell federal courts to butt out of state affairs, since the court jesters are clearly frauds. They allowed blue states to violate the Constitution and subvert election laws.

Pass self-defense legislation. Toughen sentences on violent criminals and Antifa terrorists. Decriminalize laws against peaceful citizens. Ensure that people can protect their homes.

A Day by Day Chronicle of the 2020 Election and Aftermath

I started this day-by-day chronicle to follow up on the court cases calling out the fraud in the 2020 election. As you know by now, none of those court cases went anywhere because the courts were afraid to weigh in on the fraud.

As the courts declined to hear cases, I started tracking other interesting stories and opinion pieces about the 2020 election. I think you will find this day-by-day chronicle interesting for the way it reveals what happened during the election fight.

This chronicle also showcases the censorships and bans propagated by the billionaire tech bullies and billionaire social media networks. As the days went by I also featured some great comments by some wonderful people. Be sure to scan these comments.

STATEMENT ON THE ARIZONA SUPREME COURT'S ELECTIONS CONTEST RULING

PHOENIX — Despite evidence presented of human error and unexplainable discrepancies in the ballot adjudication process, the Arizona Supreme Court today denied our request for further inspection of defective duplicate ballots.

Chairwoman Kelli Ward issued the following statement on the Court's ruling:

"It is disappointing that the Court would not permit us to look behind closed doors to review additional material for similar mistakes, of which we were in a short time able to identify statistically significant evidence of human error. The question persists then, how can the voting public have confidence in our elections if such pertinent information is inexcusably withheld from them?"

"Although we may never know with complete certainty the identity of the winner of this year's Presidential election, the identity of the loser is perfectly clear: Arizona voters and their confidence in election transparency and accuracy. And while today's decision is not what those who value and recognize the importance of election transparency and integrity were seeking, rest assured, the fight to restore that corroded confidence will continue."

Chairman West's Response to the SCOTUS Decision
Austin, TX, Release: December 11, 2020. For Immediate Release

Below is Chairman Allen West's statement in regards to the decision by the Supreme Court to dismiss Texas's constitutionally legitimate and critical lawsuit.

"The Supreme Court, in tossing the Texas lawsuit that was joined by seventeen states and 106 US congressman, have decreed that a state can take unconstitutional actions and violate its own election law. Resulting in damaging effects on other states that abide by the law, while the guilty state suffers no consequences. This decision establishes a precedent that says states can violate the US constitution and not be held accountable. This decision will have far reaching ramifications for the future of our constitutional republic. Perhaps law-abiding states should bond together and form a Union of states that will abide by the constitution."

The Texas GOP will always stand for the Constitution and for the rule of law even while others don't.

Don't expect justice for any of the criminal electioneering unearthed by the Trump team. Politicians, being politicians, won't seek justice after the fact because they don't profit from it. Source: <https://www.frontpagemag.com/fpm/2020/12/yes-it-was-stolen-election-john-perazzo>

This article is a must-read summary of the election fraud that happened in 2020.

Fifteen years ago, a landmark report by the bipartisan Commission on Federal Election Reform, known informally as the Carter-Baker Commission, advised all U.S. states that in order to guarantee free and fair elections, they should: increase voter ID requirements; minimize the use of mail-in ballots, which "remain the largest source of potential voter fraud"; disallow ballot harvesting by third parties; purge voter rolls of all ineligible or fraudulent names; allow election observers to monitor ballot-counting processes without restraint or obstruction; ensure that voting machines are accurate in their tabulations; and encourage news organizations to "delay the release of any exit-poll data until the election has been decided." All of these recommendations were widely ignored in the elections of November 2020. — John Perazzo, columnist, Frontpage Mag

the ballot box, not employing proper signature verification on absentee ballots, voting machines deleted or switching votes from Trump to Joe Biden, blocking Republican observers from being in the vote-counting rooms or making them stand so far away that they couldn't possibly see what was on the ballots, counterfeit ballots for Biden, moving Trump ballots into Biden trays, transporting hundreds of thousands of mail-in ballots from one state to another, running the same ballots for Biden through the machines multiple times, dead people voting, illegal aliens voting and the list goes on and on. — Rick Welsh, columnist, DJHJ Media

First of all, just to be clear, if the Democrats control all 3 branches of government, there will be bad legislation pushed through on a party-line vote. It's just unavoidable.

That being said, what they would really like to do is create a "transformative change" in America. By that, I mean they'd like to stack the deck in their

We know that leftists will open the borders. We're going to get flooded with illegal immigrants. Since we can't stop them, we may as well educate them in the ways of our Constitution. Do what leftists do and provide free English classes and other resources for illegal aliens—except instead of teaching them Marx, teach them the Constitution, Adam Smith, the free market, etc. Let's embrace them and make them ours, not theirs. ...

It is blindingly obvious that in the last days of the Trump administration, the Democrats are laying the groundwork for a comprehensive repudiation of the considerable achievements of the last four years, tying them all to Trump's sometimes-unfortunate personality, and in particular to yesterday's riot, which was small beer compared with countless riots that the Democrats have either cheered on or indulgently tolerated. — John Hinderaker, columnist, PowerLine

Source: https://www.americanthinker.com/articles/2021/01/yes_it_was_a_fraudulent_election.html

As I write this, we're into January, yet Reasonable Explanation remains a no-show. Instead, we are to believe that there was, okay, maybe some fraud, but not enough to change the result. Nothing major. And I suppose a certain level of unscrupulous background noise is to be expected during any nationwide election. Dead people voting, people voting twice, lost ballots. We're a big country, and if some of that happens, I don't lose sleep over it.

But this time around, it seems like much much more than a few dubious ballots from the living dead. I've come to the conclusion that the will of the voters was not taken seriously by the people in charge who, presuming to know better than we do, changed the result to one of their liking. It happened in a hurry. The left is, apparently, attempting to impose the complete destruction of First Amendment rights of roughly half of America's citizens. In cases large and small, massive multinational corporations with no particular allegiance to the United States are colluding with members of the media and Democratic politicians to permanently silence dissent and cement their own power. — Eric Utter, columnist, American Thinker

Use a wrong word, express an incorrect idea, misuse a gender pronoun, and one will be viciously harassed online. The next step in this process is canceling people who make a verbal slip, even if a breach of P.C. etiquette was committed years in the past. They would be attacked, then canceled. That means they might lose their job, be kicked off a college campus, publicly reviled and ruined. The whole notion is totalitarian, anti-freedom. — Patricia McCarthy, columnist, American Thinker

More accurately, what Dorsey has done is embolden one ideological group into believing that they can silence whomever they want, whenever they want, for whatever they want. All they need to do is cook up an excuse and no matter how thin that excuse is, they can use it to gag anyone including, but not limited to, the President of the United States...if he's a Republican. ... Source: https://www.americanthinker.com/blog/2021/01/karma_will_not_be_kind_to_sore_winner_democrats.html

So, I tend to think in terms of soccer when I see political rivalry. The other side played dirty with every match over the past 4–5 years; they cheated, tripped, kicked, took dives, and blamed every fault on the other team. And now that they prevailed in the big game, it's not enough to merely win (again by cheating).

It doesn't suffice to exult in their tainted victory. Rather, they want to kick the other team all the way around the stadium and beat the living daylights out of the opposing fans out beyond the stadium. And, most naturally for them, the other team has to be totally removed from the league, and the members are prohibited from selling their jerseys (quite literally). ...

There is a small matter of karma in all this. Those who cheat and lie and get what they want with less than ethical methods invariably find that their own actions come back to haunt them. — Richard Dean Young, columnist, American Thinker

The Big Lie of 2020 is that it was a clean and honest election. Like the Big Lie of Hamburg raids, the Big Lie will fail. Like Hamburg in 1943, there are simply too many witnesses.

There are the videos of election observers being blocked in several cities and videos in Atlanta of observers sent away, and in their absence election workers piling ballots into the counting machines. There is sworn testimony from hundreds of election workers detailing illegal actions. There is hard documentary evidence of the dead voting by mail.

Joe Biden is beginning his presidency with one of the biggest lies in the history of American politics. On top of the "honest election" lie, he will have to maintain lies about his family's Chinese and Ukrainian business connections, as well as his involvement in illegal deep state surveillance of political opponents. — James Corum, military historian

1/15/21 - Did the Democrats Steal the Presidential Election?

Source: <https://www.powerlineblog.com/archives/2021/01/did-the-democrats-steal-the-presidential-election.php>

First, this question: why are the Democrats so hysterical in their insistence that fraud not be mentioned? One reason is obvious. Joe Biden will take office under a cloud, since close to half of all Americans doubt that he really won the election. The Democrats want to stamp out such doubts to preserve Biden's authority as president.

But there is a second reason that may be more important. The Democrats want the lax voting procedures that prevailed in 2020 to continue in the future. They know that efforts will be made in many states to improve ballot integrity, and they want those efforts to fail.

By rendering all discussion of voter fraud out of bounds, they hope to forestall reforms that would make it harder for them to cheat, or enable cheating, in the future. — John Hinderaker, columnist, PowerLine

1/15/21 - New Rule: The Tragedy of Trump Voters | Real Time with Bill Maher - Maher calls on Democrats not to write off all Trump voters as deplorable. As usual, Maher is wrong about a lot of things but, for the most part, he is sympathetic to the people he calls assholes.

Source: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8_eeavqZ8V8

I keep wrestling on this show with the hard question of how do Americans, all of us, learn to share a country with assholes you can't stand. I preach, and still do, you can hate Trump, but not all the people who like him. And as counterintuitive as it may seem, you can like something run by assholes without being one yourself. — Bill Maher, host, Real Time with Bill Maher

1/18/21 - The Dangers of Mass Censorship are Growing - The Dan Bongino Show ... In this episode, Dan discusses a troubling video of liberal tyrants and media totalitarian idiots openly calling for a surveillance-style police state.
